lk Hats, Goodbye.
—ieer Mr. Norris.
MA tican and Hitler Agree.
Semitic War.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MUSSOLINI, Italy's ruler, looks well in a stove pipe hat, and hitherto has always worn one on formal occasions. But now he decides that for Fascist officials "silk hats" must go.

Hereafter his officials must not wear stove pipe hats, or "frequent de luxe restaurants and theaters. They must walk rather than ride, as much as possible, use moderate-priced automobiles and motorcycles when riding is necessary. They must be humble, not arousing the jealousy of the poor."

SAYS MUSSOLINI:

"Frequent humble quarters of the cities, get in tune with the working classes, morally and physically, keep regular office hours, lending a patient and sympathetic ear to as many as possible of the people who come to see you."

Many American politicians would find work for Mussolini not sympathetic.

HITLER ALSO intends to make the upper half know how the other half lives. Before a young man in Germany can get a university degree he must do a certain amount of hard, physical labor. You may see aristocratic sons of rich Germans out in the fields, working with shovel and pickax.

SENATOR NORRIS, queer Republican who represents those that vote for him, had to wait for a Democratic President before he could win his fight for government exploitation of Muscle Shoals.

Now, after a tour through the St. Lawrence region, he comes back to denounce the "power trust" and railroads for opposing the St. Lawrence waterway development. He says it would save users of electricity in New York state hundreds of millions of dollars annually, and cut the cost of electricity at least 50 per cent. That program would be welcome to all but a few.

It will be interesting to see whether Senator Norris can win this time, as he did after his long fight at Muscle Shoals.

THE ST. LAWRENCE waterway, in addition to supplying cheap light and power, would help the Middle West farmers by cutting the cost of transporting grain to the seaboard, which means, as Senator Norris said, "the difference between red ink and black ink for the farmer."

That waterway would give New York state "1,100,000 horse power of electricity as cheap as any provided on this continent."

Senator Norris is a great nuisance to some of our "best minds," but the people are glad to have him around.

ROME REPORTS the signing, or "initialing," of a concordat or understanding between the Vatican and Hitler's German government. The papal secretary of state signed, with Col. Von Papen, the letter declaring that the concordat would "render impossible any future conflicts between the church and state in Germany."

Under the concordat, the Vatican withdraws its support from the dissolved German Catholic Center party, and will concentrate all future efforts on the development of non-political Catholic organizations. The German government releases all Catholic political prisoners.

MEANWHILE Germany continues, apparently with undiminished energy, her campaign against Germans of Jewish descent. Eighty German physicians have been arrested and sent to a German prison camp, accused of "Marxist, Communist and anarchist propaganda, and spreading atrocity reports."

Strict regulations now bar Jewish doctors from treating the vast majority of the German people.

THERE WAS a time in the Middle Ages when Christians were forbidden to employ Jewish doctors on religious grounds, but many high dignitaries that would not permit their underlings to employ Jewish doctors had personal Jewish doctors of their own, because they were the best doctors.

The learned Maimonides, after the great synagogue in Lisbon had excommunicated him because he invented new Jewish words to translate Greek philosophers, lived as physician with the Khedive of Egypt, who wisely put good health ahead of religious prejudices.

PROF. PIERON, one of the world's leading scientists, proves that lack of sleep develops poison in the brain.

Remember this when compelling children to sit up late, to do their "home work." A child's future depends on strength, a sound constitution built up now, not on the child's grade in passing some particular examination.

IT IS A common-sense suggestion that the great number of unnecessary, expensive county governments, with their innumerable officials, should be wiped out, or greatly diminished.

Small counties with their county seats, belong to the horse and buggy age. Today, the farmer or business man can go farther in an hour than he could go in twenty-four hours with a horse and carriage. The excuse that county seats be close together is no longer valid.

Half the people spend their lives paying taxes to support the other half, on public payrolls. That could be changed, and should be.

AT THE world conference in London, Poland suggested international regulation of grain and butter prices. Long ago it was suggested that the dollar represented a certain amount of

SWEATSHOP WITNESSES SHIELDED

State Group Due Here Tomorrow to Take Secret Testimony

The plaint of Pittsburgh district sweatshop victims was gathered today from factory, mill and shop.

Women and children who toil long hours for a few cents a day, investigators claim, will have their innings tomorrow as the Gallagher commission opens hearings in the Courthouse.

Representatives of the State Department of Labor today assembled the evidence.

There were charges by Rose Stein, research secretary of the League for Social Justice and the Pennsylvania Security League, that boys and girls were afraid to testify because they might lose their jobs, but Stephen Raushenbush, investigator of the Labor Department, gave this assurance:

"At the hearings held in other cities a large number of employes appeared to testify, but as none of their names was divulged, they suffered no injury because of it."

NAMES GUARDED

Raushenbush said none need hesitate to appear, because the names of those appearing before the investigators would not be disclosed.

Employers against whom evidence is offered will have an opportunity to appear before the commission Wednesday. A form letter was prepared today to be sent to the employers asking them to send a responsible official of the firm to the Wednesday session.

The hearings will open in Courtroom No. 2 at 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, daylight time.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, will attend as a member of the commission.

The Gallagher commission was created by the Legislature to look

GUNMEN ROB HILL TOP BAKERY

Girl, Two Men Held Up As Bandits Flee With $1,397

Into the office of the Bold Baking Corporation at 823 Industry street, Allentown, today, strode three armed bandits, who hurried out five minutes later with $1,397 in loot.

Miss Anna Earnest, 21, bookkeeper, was in the office with Louis Marhoefer, the president, and Frank Weitzel, treasurer.

The bandits rushed the two men to a rear room, forced them to lie on the floor, emptied the open safe and a satchel of $927 cash and $470 in checks and rushed to their new cream-colored sedan at the curb.

But they didn't rush fast enough. Mrs. Emma Evans, with her 1-year-old baby in her arms, became suspicious of the hurrying bandits and noted their license number, which she supplied the police.

A German police dog owned by the Bolds was near the plant at the time, but not at the scene of the stickup. The dog's name is Ado von Singolstrand.

Yeggs Dynamite Store Safe, Miss Loot

The safecrackers who dropped through the second-floor skylight of Woolworth's store at 101 East Ohio street early today left in disgust. After they had dynamited loose the outside door of a large safe, they found they couldn't crack the inner door, which locked several hundred dollars. They did crack open a smaller safe. It was empty.

U. S. STEEL ORDERS JUMP

Sharp Mark-Up Fails To Jolt Stocks From Rut

NEW YORK, July 10.—A sharp increase in United States Steel Corporation's unfilled orders and a further downward swoop in the value of the American dollar as measured against foreign currencies failed to jolt the stock market out of its rut today.

Prices washed back and forth uncertainly, a few selected issues gaining ground, but with the main body of stocks inclined slightly lower.

United States Steel common ignored the bullish tonnage figures almost completely. It ranged around 65 most of the day as against Saturday's close at 65¼.

The corporation's unfilled orders increased 176,856 tons in June to a total of 2,106,671 tons, the largest monthly rise since late in 1930 and taking the backlog above 2,000,000 tons for the first time for a year. In May, the unfilled tonnage increased 65,241.

Last month's gain in forward business was far in excess of even the most optimistic forecast in Wall street. A significent feature of the June increase is that it took place during an expansion of operations and shipments. Operations gained 10 per cent during the month, rising from 43 per cent at the end of May to 53 per cent at the end of June.

The leading speculative commodities improved and the bond market was noticeably steady most of the session. In grains, rye made smashing gains, September advancing to 89¼ cents, and December to 93¼ cents, gains of 7⅜ cents, respectively.

MACKRELL AND JURIST TO CONFER

Register Postpones Announcement Of Candidacy

By MARK SHIELDS

Judge Frank P. Patterson today repeated his declaration of several weeks ago that he would not become a candidate for Mayor of Pittsburgh.

In a telegraam from Atlantic City, where he is spending a vacation, Judge Patterson told the Sun-Telegraph:

"I have no intention of reconsidering decision."

This telegram was in response to an inquiry as to whether the Judge would take note of the revived effort to make him a candidate, a compromise champion of the varied elements opposed to the city administration.

MACKRELL DELAYS

Meanwhile, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, who had intended to file for Mayor today, withheld action. First he had desired to determine the attitude of Judge Patterson, to whom he pledged support should he run.

Second, he wished to confer with Judge Patterson in Atlantic City.

Mr. Mackrell intends to leave for the East coast resort tonight. He will determine his course upon his return.

Councilman P. J. McArdle, himself a potential mayoralty candidate, today said he saw no reason why he should be interested in inviting Judge Patterson to be a candidate.

MALONE SEEKS UNITY

Former President of Council James F. Malone, an announced candidate for Mayor, reiterated past statements that he was willing to talk things over with any one with a view to procuring unity

It was the first trip of his holiness outside the Rome metropolitan area since he was crowned.

He was accompanied by Monsignor Caccia Dominioni, master of the chamber, and other attendants who rode in three automobiles.

Castel Gandolfo is 17 miles from Rome.

Woman's Body Found Trapped by Bars On Baby's Bed

CANONSBURG, Pa., July 10.—A mother and child were burned to death early today under mysterious circumstances that brought about an investigation by local and county authorities.

The body of Mrs. Leona Packer, 39, was found wedged in the bars of her child's bed in an undamaged portion of the Packer home on the McMurray-Thompsonville road, Peters Township. Although her face, arms and chest were burned, her nightdress was not scorched nor her hair singed.

Five-year-old Betty Packer died at 6 a. m. in the Canonsburg General Hospital.

The fire damaged a bed and the ceiling of a room across a hall from the room in which Mrs. Packer's body was found. Fire

NEW BOOST DUE IN BREAD PRICE

Another increase in the price of bread in Pittsburgh loomed today.

Fred C. Haller, president of the Western Pennsylvania Bakers' Association, declared the price of bread must be raised soon as some bakers are losing money on every loaf.

Flour prices at Minneapolis, principal milling center of the country, skyrocketed $1.50 a barrel, going to the highest level since July, 1929.

Haller's announcement here came at the same time that Attorney General Cummings in Washington said investigators will be dispatched to cities where authorities request it or where there is definite proof of a conspiracy to raise bread prices.

In discussing the situation, Cummings said:

"It is highly important that selfish interests should not be permitted to seize on approaching prosperity for their own profit."

Student Faces Quiz in Mystery Death of Woman

SPRINGFIELD O., July 10.—(INS.)—After allegedly admitting he was a companion of Mrs. Nora Coffey, 24, on the night she was fatally shot, and that he threw her body into the Little Miami River, Theodore A. Holmes, 20, of Winsted, Conn., a student of Antioch College, today was to be questioned further about his claim that the shooting was accidental.

With the student insisting that he disposed of the body because he was frightened, and that the shooting was unintentional, authorities had not filed any charges.

His alleged confession, climaxing the death mystery that has stirred this section for weeks, was repeated to Clark County officials last night almost as he told it in New York late Saturday as he was being returned from his home, where he was placed under arrest.

Holmes' story of Mrs. Coffey's death, as police say he gave it in his purported confession, follows:

"I met Mrs. Coffey in Springfield the night she was killed. We drove to a bridge over the Little Miami River, south of Springfield, and parked there. I was driving the car of a friend.

"Mrs. Coffey discovered a pistol in a side pocket of the car and pointed it at me. I tried to take it away from her and in the struggle the gun was discharged."

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Spokesmen for a group of mine union officials and bituminous coal producers, mostly from union fields, said today they hoped to reach an agreement on a code for their industry by tomorrow.

George Harrington, of Chicago, president of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association, and spokesman for the producers, said operators and miners were "pretty well together" on the question of minimum wages and maximum working hours.

7 Others Set Free In Ban Box Bombing

Louis Volpe and seven other suspects in the bombing of the Ban Box Cabaret were discharged today in Central Police Court when witnesses failed to appear against them.

Two other men were held for court.

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, in discussing the case with the defendants' attorneys, revealed that witnesses were afraid to testify.

Those held were Joseph Rose, 32, of 1847 Funston street, and John Aliberti, 35, of 806 North Highland avenue, on charges of conspiracy to commit malicious destruction of property by explosives.

Those discharaged with Volpe were James Terenzo, Jack Terenzo, Mike Walker, Louis Busa, William Raymond, James Marciano and Frank Ruff.

ERK AWAITING PROBE RECALL

Former Congressman Edmund F. Erk probably will be recalled today by the Federal Grand Jury investigating vote frauds in the Thirtieth and Thirty-second Congressional districts.

Erk who was defeated by Congressman Twing Brooks in a close fight in the Thirtieth district, testified last week. He was in the ante-room today, expecting to be called back by the grand jury.

In the meantime the grand jury had switched again to consideration of the contest between Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, and Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democrat, in the Thirty-second District. More than 125 witnesses from the Seventh District of the Fifteenth Ward, Hazelwood, are being examined.

All indications today are that the probe of last fall's election is drawing to a close.

Grandmas Greet Lindys Landing to See Son

NORTH HAVEN, Me., July 10.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, forced down by the fog at South Warren and delayed coming here by a broken plane cable, were undecided this afternoon when they would resume their air voyage from New York to Greenland and Iceland to map the airways.

Lindbergh said:

"I may stay here a day or two. I'm not on any schedule."

The Lindberghs are visiting with their infant son, Jon, at the summer home here of Lindy's mother-in-law, Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

The colonel's plane circled high over North Haven—an island 15 miles off the mainland at Rockland—several times before it came down on its pontoons in a cove.

A small boat put out to the plane and brought Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to the shore. Their respective mothers, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, hurried down to the cove in an automobile. They were preceded by almost everybody on the island, including the 100 natives and the summer visitors.

Two Pirate Stars, Girl Hurt in Auto Crash

Things have been bad enough in the ball parks for the fourth-place Pirates this season, but today things were worse—two of their stars had been bumped around in an auto accident.

With a young woman, Miss Alice Miller, 20, of Maytide street, Carrick, in their car, Pitcher Bill Swift and convalescing Catcher Earl Grace were driving in Sawmill Run boulevard when their auto collided with another machine.

At the South Side Hospital Swift was treated for a cut forehead, Grace for a bruised cheek. Miss Miller, her head injured, was detained there.

In the other car was Mrs. Mahlah Callahan, of Pary avenue, Brentwood, on her way to the bed of a dying grandchild. She suffered a fractured rib. Her driver, Samuel J. Johnson, of Aliquippa, escaped injury.

Swift and Johnson were notified to appear before Burgess A. Z. Kaufmann, in Brentwood, Friday.

WORLD PARLEY SLATED TO WIND UP SESSION JULY 2

TWO MONTHS' ADJOURNMENT PLANNED

Steering Committee Sets Tentative Date For Recess

LONDON, July 10.—(AP.)—The winding up of the present phase of the world economic conference on July 26 was tentatively decided upon by the steering committee of the parley, it was understood in a usually well-informed source.

The conference has been in a deadlock for more than a week over the question of currency stabilization and many leading delegates have frankly asserted that its continuance under present circumstances would be useless.

The American delegation, however, has been fighting strenuously to keep the conclave at work.

COMMERCIAL POLICIES

Meeting today to decide what subjects should be included in the revised agenda for the congress, the steering committee decided to eliminate the discussion of subsidies and commercial policies—including tariffs and quotas.

The committee, however, was unable to decide whether monetary questions, which the European gold countries say cannot be dealt with until stabilization is realized, should be treated and asked a drafting committee to consider this controversial matter and report to the steering group tomorrow afternoon.

After today's meeting it was stated that the conference would be adjourned on July 26 for an indefinite period, perhaps two months.

MAY RESUME

Meantime the conference would complete such work as is possible in view of the disagreement between the gold bloc and the non-gold countries. Committees would be appointed to prepare resumption of the deliberations in the autumn.

It was understood that the steering committee feels that sufficient work can be found to keep the conference going another 15 days at least. Developments in that period might even justify further continuance of the sessions beyond that date.

Some of the non-gold countries' delegates indeed predicted that events would warrant further continuance, although the gold bloc professed to see little use in keeping on with the discussions even for the present.

n Blames U. S. Deadlock

LONDON, July 10.—(INS.)—Blame for the deadlock in which the world economic conference now finds itself was inferentially placed upon the United States by Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, in an address in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Chamberlain opening debate on the British policy, reviewed the monetary controversy between the European gold bloc, led by France, and the non-gold powers led by the United States.

The conference opened under auspicious circumstances, said Chamberlain, following President Roosevelt's statement of May 16 to heads of the participating nations, in which Roosevelt declared the conference must "establish order instead of chaos in the stabilization of currency."

But the general work of the conference was halted as soon as the stabilization question was raised, he continued, when the United States declared temporary stabilization untimely.

Chamberlain said that the raising of the price of wholesale commodities still remains the primary objective of the nations seeking their way out of the economic crisis.

BRITAIN SEES DOLLAR PARITY

LONDON, July 10.—(AP.)—In British Dominion quarters today the belief was expressed that the fall of the American dollar is likely to be halted when it reaches $4.86, the old parity with the pound.

It was said the price level between America and Great Britain would nearly balance.

The dollar reached $4.82 at midday, a slide of $1.32 from the $3.50 rate maintained over a long period before the United States abandoned gold.

Dominion spokesmen said they expected if the dollar slid below $4.86 that Great Britain would unhook sterling from the French franc and let the pound follow the dollar.

Further strong British support for the Roosevelt program was voiced today by Hubert Meredith, financial editor of the Daily Mail.

Roosevelt and Glass Discuss Banking Act

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Administration of the new national banking act was discussed today by President Roosevelt with Senator Glass of Virginia, author of the legislation.

The President and the Senator are particularly interested in the appointment of the liquidating board under the act to speed release of deposits in closed banks. Early appointment of the board appears in prospect.

Roosevelt Conceited Buffoon, Snowden Says

LONDON, July 10.—(Universal.)—A bitter attack on President Roosevelt was made in the Sunday Chronicle by Viscount Snowden, of Ickernshaw, chancellor of the exchequer in the Labor cabinets and first National cabinet.

Snowden, whose irreconcilable faith in free trade cost him his post as Lord Privy Seal in the present National government, wrote:

"Roosevelt has made himself the laughing stock of the world. No such message as his first note to the World Economic Conference was ever before sent by the head of a government to representatives of other nations. It will be filed for all times in international archives as a classic example of hectoring conceit and ambiguity.

"A little modesty would have saved him from arrogantly defying the courteously expressed views of leaders of other nations. But modesty is not a characteristic of a certain type of American.

"American statesmen have long assumed moral leadership of the world. Their President is now presuming to dictate the economic policy of all other countries.

"Roosevelt is following the example of Wilson, who, without the slightest knowledge of European affairs, took the dominating part in settling new European boundaries with the disastrous consequences with which we are now so painfully familiar.

"It is not for a country like the United States, whose reckless economic and financial policy plunged it into the greatest depression ever known and who dragged the rest of the world almost to her own depths of misery, to teach other nations the road to recovery."

BRITTEN SEES FRENCH PLOT

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS.)—An attempt by France to "financially cripple the United States" is at the bottom of the difficulties of the world economic conference, Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, charged today. He said:

"Currency stabilization failed because France and her small bloc of gold standard nations found it impossible to ensnare American gold and further embarrass our position in world commerce."

LYNCHING FAILS, GUARDS LEAVE

LA PLATA, Md., July 10.—(INS.)—Extra guards about the Charles County Courthouse were withdrawn today after a Sunday mob of farmers failed to carry out lynching threats against Page Jupiter, a giant Negro, held for killing Mrs. Evelyn Reifschneider, 47, farm woman.

The Negro confessed he cleaved the woman's skull with an ax, but declared he had done it at her request, after he had announced arrangements to leave the Reifschneider place.

MONTOUR RAIL FIGHT IN COURT

BEAVER, Pa., July 10.—The battle of two industrial giants over construction of a 13-mile railroad began in court here today, with proceedings starting in the Pennsylvania Railroad injunction suit against the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

The railroad asks the court to halt the building of a rail-river terminal at the mouth of the Little Beaver Creek. If the proceedings are successful, it will halt construction of the projected Montour road, from the terminal to Negley, O.

More than 50 specialists, engineers, land owners and others appeared, with the railroad attorneys claiming part of the land the coal company is using for the terminal belongs to the railroad. Attorneys are Harold Reed and Leonard Ewing for the coal company and Thompson Bradshaw and Clyde R. Holt for the railroad.

Montour President To Aid Rail Study

H. J. German, president of the Montour Railroad, has been named eastern regional director of a railroad freight service study, it was announced today in Washington by Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation. The study is to be an effort to modernize railroad freight service to meet conditions brought about by motor trucks.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(INS.)—Two severe earthquake shocks were recorded today on the Fordham University seismograph. They were from the direction of Chile.

CAPITAL LOOKS FOR WOODIN TO QUIT

Ill Health, Not Morgan Expose Expected to Bring Resignation

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—After more than three weeks illness with a throat infection Secretary of the Treasury Woodin was expected to return to his desk at the Treasury Department sometime this week, it was learned today.

While it has been consistently denied that Woodin would resign his post in the Cabinet since disclosures before the Senate banking investigating committee which showed the Secretary had been one of the preferred customers of the Morgan house, no surprise would be occasioned should Woodin retire.

Well informed quarters said that if the resignation comes it will be because of Woodin's ill-health, rather than the Morgan disclosures. Neither President Roosevelt, nor Woodin himself, regarded the facts brought out at the Morgan inquiry as any reason for resignation.

The transactions were carried out some years before Woodin had any idea of becoming a Cabinet member. There was nothing unusual in the fact that the Morgan house, as well as many others, had lists of preferred customers.

The five tense weeks that followed Woodin's entrance into public life were just as strenuous as those of wartime. Woodin worked almost every day far into the night as the Treasury struggled with the banking crisis.

The struggle gradually sapped the health of the diminutive secretary and after the crisis had passed he was confined to his hotel for a considerable time.

Woodin is known to have been irked with the red tape which slowed up every course of action in connection with the banking holiday and the subsequent reopening of the banks.

Among the principal problems facing Woodin on his return will be a decision as to the August 15 financing when more than $1,000,000,000 in securities will be floated to take care of maturing obligations and new funds for use by the various emergency activities which are now getting under way. Officials are now considering a bond issue of probably 10 years at around 3 per cent as a part of the August financing.

Ohio Repeal Group Names Candidates

COLUMBUS, O., July 10.—(AP.)—Disregarding the attempt of the Anti-Saloon League to prevent an election of delegates, the Ohio Repeal Council today announced its list of 52 candidates for election to a state repeal convention.

The list was prepared for filing with the Secretary of State, who only recently received the petitions of the Anti-Saloon League calling for a referendum on the Mosier law that sets up the machinery for choosing the delegates.

Repealists claim the attempt to bring about a referendum is designed to delay the Ohio repeal vote.

Oklahoma to Vote On Beer Tomorrow

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 10.—(AP.)—Oklahoma votes tomorrow on whether 3.2 beer shall be legal in the state with beer forces confident and leaders of the opposition intent on getting out the dry vote.

The Rev. A. M. Jayne, head of the prohibition thousands, asserted:

"They have everything sewed up and in the bag, from their way of thinking, but we still are going to get all the votes that are for prohibition out to the polls."

SOUTH SPURRED INTO LINE ON REPEAL

Roosevelt's Appeal Hailed as Drive by Administration

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The campaign for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment today assumed the proportions of an administration drive to whip the Democratic South into line against prohibition.

The administration's influence became a decisive factor in the prohibition war after President Roosevelt publicly appealed to the Democratic South to support his party's platform declaration for repeal.

FARLEY SUPPORTED

It put his stamp of approval on the repeal efforts of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who has been urging Democratic leaders to fight for repeal in every state.

The President's personal appeal was addressed particularly to Democrats in the southern states of Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee, who vote next week on ratification of the repeal amendment.

The liberals were jubilant, believing the President's influence would swing all three states into the repeal camp and sound a deathknell to national prohibition before Christmas.

Alabama and Arkansas have been regarded as "key states" in the repeal campaign. Both wets and drys have concentrated on winning these two states, since they are the first in the "Solid South" to vote on the issue.

PREDICTIONS MADE

If they vote for repeal, the repealists predict prohibition will be taken out of the constitution before Christmas. If they remain dry, the drys predict the repeal campaign will be defeated.

The liberals do not agree with this conclusion but admit a defeat now in the South would seriously handicap their drive for repeal.

The President's attitude has made repeal a party issue in the South. He called attention of Democrats to the party plank, pledging repeal. He urged support of it.

Postmaster General Farley will follow up the President by making a speech in Memphis next Saturday, urging Democrats in the South to support the party platform. His speech will be broadcast throughout Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee. The latter state will vote July 20, two days after the balloting in Alabama and Arkansas.

CAPITOL ABLAZE ON DRY VOTE EVE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 10.—(AP.)—Damaged by fire and water and with part of its roof caved in, the Illinois State Capitol, scene of today's prohibition repeal convention, presented a sorry appearance following a $75,000 blaze.

The fire broke out Sunday afternoon and burned for four hours. Numerous state records were destroyed and probably more would have been had not Gov. Henry Horner and other state officials entered the burning structure and directed salvage efforts.

The fire attacked the south wing, which houses the chamber of the House of Representatives, where the convention is scheduled to be held. Gov. Horner said he thought workmen could put it in condition for the session. It was damaged by water only.

MOTHER, CHILD PERISH IN FIRE

WOMAN ON 2ND FLOOR

Sergt. Paul Arnold said that when police and firemen reached the Packer home on the old Caldwell farm, they were told all the occupants had escaped, and the fire was virtually out. Someone shouted there was a woman on the second floor, he said.

Another person, he said, cried:

"No, she has gone away."

Firemen found the empty bed still smouldering in the damaged portion of the house, and further investigation revealed Mrs. Packer's body in the room across the hall. It was necessary to pry the bars of the child's bed apart to release the body, Sergt. Arnold said.

SEVEN OTHERS ESCAPE

Deputy Coroner W. H. McNary, of Washington County, after examination of Mrs. Packer's body, said:

"It is a peculiar affair and I cannot imagine how she could be burned about her face, head and arms and her nightgown and hair not burned. It looks as though she might be bruised all over, but I can't be sure."

Roland Packer 41, the husband, said he and his wife were sleeping on the first floor and he was awakened by his wife's screams. He said he attempted to go up a stairway to the second floor, but was blocked by smoke. He went outside, climbed to the roof of the kitchen, and pulled Betty out a window, he said.

The other six children escaped or were carried out. They are Florence, 12; Doyle, 10; Ruth, 8; Jean, 6, and Ralph and Raymond, 1-year-old twins.

PITTSBURGHER HEADS NEW OHIO BANK

Sidney Congdon Rises To High Post by Work in Crisis

Out of the ashes of three closed banks a Pittsburgher today had risen to a place of eminence in the nation's banking affairs.

The man is Sidney B. Congdon. The new peak is the office of president of the National City Bank of Cleveland.

PRAISED HERE

It was from the office of vice president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., closed in September 1931, that Congdon started a rise that carried him to constantly higher places during the depression.

Bankers in Pittsburgh today say that the brilliance and the principal steadiness in the Bank of Pittsburgh was Congdon's.

Anyhow, he took the failure of his bank in his stride and held, successively, the posts of secretary-treasurer of the National Credit Association, forerunner of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, chief of the examining division of the R. F. C., itself, and manager of the Fourth Federal Reserve District of the R. F. C.

In that post, he supervised more than $100,000,000 in loans.

NAMED PRESIDENT

Then disaster came to Detroit, bringing bank holidays for many states and finally the nation. Two huge banks closed in Cleveland, O. —the Union Trust Company and the Guardian Trust Company.

Congdon became conservator of the Guardian Trust and, later, liquidator. A new bank was formed, the National City. Congdon headed it.

Today he is overseeing distribution of some $57,000,000 in dividends to depositors in the two closed institutions.

PUBLIC WORKS NOT CURTAILED

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Secretary Ickes took over his new assignment as Public Works Administrator today with an announcement there will be no curtailment of the $3,300,000,000 public works program, but that federal funds will be extended only to those local governmental bodies which bring their expenditures in line with revenues.

Referring to recent suggestions that the program might be curtailed in view of industrial gains, the Secretary said:

"Swift translation of the administration plan into action giving millions jobs is our first objective.

"Recent gratifying gains in industry and employment do not justify curtailment or slowing up of the employment program until those gains are secured and consolidated."

Swift Estate Sued For $37,308,646

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—A $37,308,646 claim was filed against the estate of the late Edward F. Swift, packer, in Probate Court today by Sam Howard as trustee in bankruptcy of the Corporation Securities Company.

The claim was based upon an allegation that Swift, with other directors and officers of the defunct Insull Investment House, were responsible for loss of the huge sum through fraudulent acts.

wheat, instead of a certain weight of gold.

It would not be easy, at present, to establish international prices for grain, butter or anything else, unless you established the price in gold, and that would mean putting a premium on gold currency. For the present, probably, each country must travel its own way, solving its problems with its own kind of money.

IT HAS been suggested that the world will divide into two camps, gold countries on one side, the non-gold countries on the other.

That would be, as regards numbers, a one-sided arrangement, since the non-gold countries would include the United States, British Empire, China, Japan, Mexico. Of the 1,600,000,000 human beings on earth that use any kind of money, at least 1,200,000,000 are not on the gold basis.

MATTERN LIVED ON WILD GAME THREE WEEKS

Gift Rifle Saved Flier Forced Down on Siberian Tundra

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

MOSCOW, July 10.—Jimmy Mattern, American round-the-world flier, whose rescue was made known to the world three weeks after he had been forced down at a desolate spot in Eastern Siberia, existed by shooting wild game and reindeer, it was learned today.

Russian officials at Khabarovsk gave him a rifle before he hopped off from there on an attempted non-stop flight to Nome, Alaska, and it proved of great use to him.

REGION OF NOMADS

The Kharbarovsky correspondent of the newspaper Izvestia reported today:

"Mattern and his plane were found by a Soviet frontier guard six kilometers from the bank of the Anadir River, 80 miles from Anadir, the first settlement on a vast tundra dotted with small forest-covered hills, and lakes which make a landing dangerous.

"The region was inhabited by only nomadic tribes, reindeer breeders, none of whom could understand Mattern when he came in contact with them.

ICE DELAYS RESCUERS

"When Mattern was forced down the Anadir River was frozen and it is understood he was not found until after the river was melted and the frontier guard was making an inspection tour. Mattern was found uninjured beside the airplane fuselage. One wing of his plane had been badly damaged."

Another Kharbarovsk message to Izvestia, dated July 9, indicated that Pilot Levanovsky, one of the Russian aviators going to the aid of Mattern, would not leave for Anadir until today, the necessity of making repairs to his plane having delayed his start. This was news to Moscow aviation officials who had believed that Levanovsky would reach Anadir today.

Mattern to Continue Hop; Paper Sending Seaplane

NEW YORK, July 10.—(INS.)—Poised at Juneau, Alaska, a powerful seaplane tendered by the New York Evening Journal was ready today to hop off for the remote stretches of Siberia where James Mattern, round-the-world flier, is awaiting a ship to enable him to complete his solo globe-girdling hop, the newspaper announced today. The Journal says:

"If all goes well, the fighting Texan, despite the crash of his own monoplane, 'Century of Progress,' and his 23-day absence from civilization, may yet become the first flier to circumnavigate the globe alone.

"It wasn't thought the evening Journal seaplane could make the jump from Juneau to Anadir in about 14 hours.

"Advices from the Alaskan city state that William Alexander, leader of the relief expedition, has obtained permission from local Soviet authorities to land in Siberia. However, official approval still must come from Moscow, and this privilege is expected to be granted today."

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(INS.)—The United States Coast Guard cutter Northland, cruising in sub-Arctic waters off the Alaskan coast, apparently has abandoned the plan to go to Siberia and pick up Jimmy Mattern, the globe-circling Texas airman.

BALBO EAGER FOR HOP-OFF

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 10.—(INS.)—Gen. Italo Balbo, commander of the Italian air armada bound for Chicago, is eager to resume the flight as soon as possible, he declared today.

It is possible the 24 seaplanes may take off on the early stage of the journey to Cartwright, Labrador, late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Continued bad weather along the 1,500-mile route to Cartwright, Labrador, had forced another postponement of the scheduled take-off of the armada on the most difficult leg of its journey from Orbetello, Italy, to the United States.

Reports from four ships along the route showed a stiff gale was blowing and that visibility was poor.

FIREWORKS TAX DODGE DISPUTED

Mayor John S. Herron thinks Councilman Robert Garland should furnish the Police Department information as to whether merchants obeyed or failed to obey the retail fireworks law.

At least, Herron's answer to Garland's charges that the law demanding a $50 permit fee to sell firecrackers was not enforced was this:

"Last year we heard the same complaint from Mr. Garland, but then we know it was for campaign purposes. I'm asking the Police Department to investigate. But if Mr. Garland has information, he should divulge it. It is so easy to make reckless charges, and we can expect most anything now."

Mayor Herron's answer followed a motion in Council, submitted by Garland and passed, ordering the Department of Public Safety to find out how many merchants sold firecrackers over the Fourth. When Controller J. P. Kerr's report listed only 61, Garland stated the number was ridiculously low and that many detailers sold without license. Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., of the Public Safety Department, was ordered to report back Monday.

Mattern Prepared To Foil Siberian Mosquitoes

ATLANTIC CITY, July 10.—(AP.)—A piece of mosquito netting probably will be found responsible for saving the life of Jimmie Mattern, round-the-globe flier, forced down in Siberia, Jack Clark, Matterns eastern representative, said today.

In planning the flight, Clark, said, the possibility of a forced landing in lonely Siberia was studied and mosquitoes were found to be the greatest hazard. He continued:

"We had learned that in Siberia clouds of huge mosquitoes made life miserable for every living thing. They breed as soon as the snow melts. Alaskan aviators informed us that sometimes mosquitoes form a layer a quarter of an inch thick all over their clothing in the territory where Mattern was forced down."

FACTOR CLUES PROVE FALSE

CHICAGO, July 10.—(INS.)—The strange case of the disappearance of John (Jake the Barber) Factor entered its tenth day with relatives frankly admitting their alarm and declaring they "were crazed by the suspense."

They were electrified by the report which circulated through detective bureau headquarters that the millionaire stock market operator had been picked up at an outlying police station, and was being held incognito.

Hope died, however, when a careful check of the distant precincts proved the rumor false. Authorities at headquarters also denied that the ex-barber had been found.

No word has been received from the ex-barber since his seizure. British authorities here believe that the kidnaping is a hoax, and that Factor is fleeing to Mexico to escape extradition. Reports that he had been apprehended at Alice, Tex., were denied by authorities there today.

URBAN, STAGE DESIGNER, DIES

NEW YORK, July 10.—(INS.)—Joseph Urban, famed theater and opera stage designer and architect, died today at his suite in a hotel. He was 61.

Born in Vienna, Urban came to this country in 1911 and was naturalized in 1917. He first rose to fame as a stage designer in Vienna and London. Later he designed all sets for the Metropolitan Opera Company and for Florenz Ziegfeld's various productions.

Joseph Urban visited Pittsburgh many times to witness premieres of stage productions he had designed. Two supper rooms in the Hotel William Penn, the Urban Room and the Chatterbox, were designed by him.

Low pressure is the dominating influence over the weather this morning, with centers over Oklahoma, Southern Alberta, Southern Manitoba, and the St. Lawrence Valley. High pressure covers the Lake Region, the Gulf of Mexico, and the far Northwest. There is, however, comparatively little cloudiness, and the rainfall for the last 24 hours was limited to small areas. Generous rains occurred over the lower Ohio Valley, and as far down as Memphis; elsewhere, the rainfall was light. Temperature changes since yesterday were slight. High maximum temperatures prevail again over the plains states. Temperatures of 100 degrees or higher occurred yesterday in South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. The highest reported was 104 degrees at Wichita, Kansas.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 0.8 feet; Lock No. 7, Mon., 11.2; Pittsburgh, 10.3; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 7.6; No. 10, 8.6; and No. 12, 7.1. The dams are up.

EVELYN NESBIT SEEKS DIVORCE

CHICAGO, July 10.—(INS.)—Judge Joseph Sabath today prepared to open a hearing on the petition of Evelyn Nesbit oMntani to divorce Virgil oMntani, better known as Jack Clifford, of the stage.

Miss Nesbit sought a divorce from Clifford on grounds of desertion, alleging he left her in 1918 after they had been married three years.

In 1924 Clifford obtained a divorce from her, but later she succeeded in having the decree set aside. His present address was given as Lake Chateau Bay, Lyon Mountain, N. Y. He was not expected to contest the divorce action.

DOUG AND SON TO MAKE FILM

NEW YORK, July 10.—(INS.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his father will make a motion picture together in England this summer, it was learned today.

It will be the first time that the two have ever appeared together in a movie.

The younger Fairbanks, recovering from a recent attack of pneumonia, is staying at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jack Whiting, and left the house today for the first time since his illness to visit a doctor's office. He had to be assisted from the automobile by his mother and the chauffeur.

He was asked whether he would visit his father to console or be consoled—Joan Crawford having recently divorced him while Mary Pickford has announced that a divorce between herself and the elder Fairbanks is quite likely.

He replied:

"Oh, my lord, no. It won't be either. Of course, I sympathize with dad, but I'm sorry for Mary, too. As to Joan, I can't discuss that except to say that I haven't changed toward her. As to any talk that I may soon re-marry, nothing is farther from my thoughts."

ORPHAN HAILED AS 'BROTHER'

Universal Service.

LAKE HOPATCONG, N. J. July 10.—Even if the wealthy Mr. and Mrs. Jean Strengs had not definitely made up their minds to adopt Peter Christopolis, the orphan they brought from Omaha, Neb., to take the place of their dead son, Henry, a decision binding the family was already irrevocably made.

For Jeanne, their 13-year-old daughter, had certainly made up her mind.

The children were walking together yesterday, the boy's eyes wide with interest as the girl described the countryside to him—when a stranger halted them, asking:

"Oh, is this the orphan?"

Pete flushed and made no answer, but Jeanne's blue eyes blazed indignantly and her arms dropped around the lad's shoulders as she retorted:

"He isn't an orphan any more—he's my brother!"

FRENCH BEAT CULBERTSON

PARIS, July 10.—(AP.)—The French drew first blood today in the International Plafond Bridge duel between Ely Culbertson's American team and the team captained by Pierre Bellanger.

The French team finished the first six hands with a net score of 856, scoring 1,082 against 226 by the Americans.

Culbertson went down on the first hand. He was set one on a four spade bid.

The two teams will play 36 hands ending Wednesday afternoon for 5,000 francs, to be given to charity.

EX-GRID PLAYER HURT, BRIDE KILLED

Duquesne Squadman's Car Crashes With Three Others

Yesterday Stanley F. Ebert and his bride were honeymooning—today the bride was dead and Ebert was in a hospital, victims of an auto accident.

Ebert, who a few years ago was a football player at Duquesne University, was married at Bryn Athyn, home of the bride's parents.

After a visit to the World's Fair in Chicago, they returned here to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ebert, at 7031 Penn avenue, Homewood.

Yesterday they were motoring to their new home in Bryn Athyn, Pa., where Ebert teaches and coaches football at Bryn Athyn Academy, near Philadelphia.

Near Lancaster their car figured in a crash with three other machines. Mrs. Ebert was killed instantly. Today Ebert was in Lancaster Hospital. He was expected to recover. Before her marriage Mrs. Ebert was Miss Nancy Edmonds.

PRIEST, PRISON FIRE HERO, DIES

COLUMBUS, O., July 10.—(AP.)—The strain of caring for the dead and injured in the 1930 Easter Monday fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary here was blamed for the death yesterday of the Rev. Father Albert O'Brien, Catholic chaplain at the prison for seven years.

He had been in poor health since the prison tragedy. On June 28 he was stricken at Cincinnati while en route from Memphis, Tenn., to Columbus. He was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital at Cincinnati, where he died today.

He was a native of Emly, Tipperary County, Ireland.

He leaves his mother, of Emly; two brothers and two sisters.

Thelma Todd Denies Divorce With Kiss

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—(Universal.)—Belying all rumors concerning an impending divorce, Thelma Todd, blonde film comedienne, was affectionately greeted by her tall, dark-haired husband, Pasquale (Pat) Decicco on her return home yesterday.

Miss Todd stepped from a transport plane at United Airport, right into the arms of her husband. She dropped her armful of bags and bundles to respond to an enthusiastic kiss—much to the entertainment of onlookers. She declared:

"I'd like to give the fellow who started that story a punch

'Heiress' Arrested In Raid on Club

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP.)—All but two of 18 persons arrested early today in a raid on the fashionable Latimer Club, including a young woman who said she was an heiress, were discharged several hours later.

Charles Gross and John Harris, alleged to have been the proprietor and bartender respectively, were held in $500 bail each.

Commoners Wed In Royal Chapel By King's O.K.

LONDON, July 10.—(AP.)—By special permission of King George, a professional dancer and a film producer were married today in the Chapel Royal at St. James' Palace, where their majesties were married 40 years ago last week.

The bride was Elaine Howlett, only daughter of Richard Howlett, superintendent of the king's wardrobe, who lives in St. James' Palace. The groom was Patrick Brunner.

The wedding of "commoners" in the royal chapel is unrecorded in modern times. Miss Howlett is a god-daughter of Queen Mary.

YOUNG ACTRESS DAILY VISITOR AT BEDSIDE

Actor Talks of Divorce As Sally Eilers Tours Europe

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(AP.)—Divorce of Sally Eilers, motion picture actress, and her film cowboy husband, Hoot Gibson, is planned, Gibson has announced from his hospital bed. He is recovering from injuries suffered in the crash of his airplane at the national air races.

His statement was made in the presence of June Gale, 21-year-old San Francisco actress, who agreed with Gibson that she and he were "madly in love." Miss Gale has been a daily visitor at Gibson's hospital room since July 3, when his plane cracked up.

Asked if they were going to marry, Gibson said:

"I don't think this is the time to talk about engagements or marriage. I still am married and it wouldn't be fair to anyone concerned to make any statement now."

Miss Eilers, second wife of the actor, left for Europe several months ago.

3 MORE SEPARATIONS

Meanwhile the current run of divorces and separations among persons prominent in the Hollywood film colony today had added the marital difficulties of a Hungarion actress, a noted director and an independent producer.

Striking among the elements figuring in the woes besetting marriage in the town dedicated to the production of celluloid fictions is the oft-repeated friendliness of the principals.

Last week Richard Dix said he and the San Francisco society girl, the former Winifred Coe, would remain dear friends after their divorce, and he might woo her again later.

Today came Zita Johann, Hungarian, who said she and her husband, John Haussman, playwright, now engaged in the brokerage business in New York, have separated—on a friendly basis.

'IDEALLY PARTED'

There came also Mabel Le Baron, former actress well known in musical circles, with word that she and her husband, William Le Baron, producer, were living apart—as an "ideally separated couple."

And finally—for the moment, at least—there came Edmund Goulding, film director, and his wife of less than two years, the former Marjorie Violet Moss, stage dancer, whose reported separation remained unconfirmed.

And, in passing, Miss Lombard is in Nevada for a divorce from William Powell, the actor.

MOVIES TIED UP BY STRIKE

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—(AP.)—Nancy Carroll and Allen Dinehart are among the film players immediately affected by the strike of 1,000 members of the Sound Technicians' Union and allied trades, which has tied up all production at the Columbia Motion Picture Studio.

Pictures, in which they were under contract, will be delayed.

Samuel J. Briskin, general manager of the studio, said two full length feature pictures and some shorts were in the making when the strike was called Saturday night. He said the strike was called without the studio being given any warning, but Harold Smith, business representative of the sound union, said it followed negotiations lasting several months. He said:

"We have been trying to get a wage adjustment with the Columbia studio and have failed. Almost 40 other indepedneat producers have met our wage scale."

Briskin said the technicians' salary demands were exorbitant, and that in some instances increases of 250 per cent were asked.

Monkey Attacks Customer in Store

LANCASTER, Pa., July 10.—(AP.)—Summer Huber's desire to make friends with monkeys is gone.

Huber, who is 20, stopped to chat with one on display at a "5-and-10" toy counter and was bitten on the face and fingers.

He had his wounds treated at a hospital.

'Far Too Old to Smile,' Says Smiling John D.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 10.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., says (with a smile) that he's far too old to smile.

He was 94 Saturday and he went to church yesterday. When he came out photographers took aim at him.

They said:

"Smile, please."

He said:

"Don't say that. Just snap your picture. Remember I'm an old man and if I smiled people would think I were pretending. I can't smile."

The crowd around him laughed. Then Mr. Rockefeller smiled.

He was in high spirits and robust health as he attended services at the Pocantico Hills Union Chapel. He responded cheerfully to scores of neighbors who congratulated him.

Word that Mr. Rockefeller would appear spread rapidly and the Rev. Lesier Brent spoke to the largest congregation in the history of his pastorage.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was with his father at the services.

The aged capitalist was asked:

"How do you feel?"

He replied:

"Never better. I lead a simple life and none simpler than yesterday. I did not play golf. I did not go outside of the estate. Had a quiet family party and that was all."

"How is your golf?"

"It's good, but not as good as it used to be. I can still hit a straight ball, but as for distance I can't make it."

Mr. Rockefeller shook hands with numerous children, but he did not pass out dimes or nickels as often is his habit.

Model Divorces Artist; Beauty Views Blamed

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(AP.)—Helen Marie Haskin, screen actress and motor car and cigaret ad girl, and Col. McClelland Barclay, noted artist and illustrator, who have just been divorced here, had their own ideas about beautiful women.

Said Miss Haskin, former New York socialite, a while before the family rift:

"A red-headed woman cannot depend upon her hair alone for charm."

She herself has red hair, which did not always show red in the advertisements and magazine covers. She was her husband's model. She maintains:

"If red-haired women lately have become preferred to blondes and brunettes, it is because of bright colors rampant in women's dress."

Barclay, who had been married once before, declared that for a woman to be really beautiful she should have Kay Francis' gait, Marlene Dietrich's legs, Wayne Gibson's knees, Marion Hopkins' chest and shoulders, Carole Lombard's hips, Sylvia Sidney's hands, Mae West's teeth, Helen Twelvetrees' lips and Elissa Landi's carriage.

The most recent expressed idea of Nan Barclay, his first wife, was post-marital. She was reported seeking a patent for a "Reno ring" for divorcees. The ring was of black onyx, plain like an old-fashioned wedding ring and to be worn on the third finger of the left hand. Inside the band was engraved the word "free."

Miss Haskin, in obtaining her divorce, charged cruelty. She said Barclay had quarreled with her over a game of backgammon last Christmas and the following morning refused to look at a Christmas tree she had decorated for their home.

PATTERSON REFUSES TO RUN

of action behind himself or some one else, if another candidate appeared to offer greater strength against Mayor John S. Herron, city administration leader.

William P. Witherow, urged for the mayoralty by the Citizens League and other independent elements, pointed out that some time ago, when the candidacy of Judge Patterson was a live issue, he had agreed to throw his assistance to the jurist. He observed that the important issue was a complete change of the city government in Pittsburgh and that individuals should subordinate their personal desires to that end.

Within the Citizens' League group there was a disposition to believe that its membership had done everything which could be expected in its previous approaches to Judge Patterson, and that nothing more would be attempted unless the Judge himself made the first move in the form of a statement agreeing to run. In that event pledges to him probably would be renewed.

REVIVED BOOM

The revived Patterson boom, definitely killed by the Judge himself last month, does not appear to be based on any spontaneous joining of the various political and business elements. Its present foundation rests among friends of Mackrell, whose own candidacy has been embarrassed by the suit for $31,000 filed against him by Joe Engelsberg, Hill district character, alleging he loaned Mackrell this sum during the Register of Wills' mayoralty campaign in 1921.

At the time Patterson emphatically declined to run for Mayor last month he asked his friends to support Mackrell. Many who had been pushing the Judge immediately transferred their support to Mackrell. Now they would like to shift back.

Mackrell, in view of the indorsement given him by Patterson, is obligated to return the compliment if Patterson will reconsider.

The judge is in Atlantic City, having left Pittsburgh Saturday with plans to be away until the middle of August. He repeated to friends just before he left that he would not become a mayoralty candidate. This declaration followed the Engelsberg suit against Mackrell, when some friends of both the Register of Wills and Judge Patterson tried to reincarnate the former Patterson boom.

M'ARDLE STAND

McArdle, when Citizen Committee leaders were dealing with the judge some time ago, punctured the belief that there then existed unified action in the judge's behalf with a statement pointing out that the movement appeared to have little impetus from the independent elements active in the campaign of 1931 when McArdle was elected as an anti-administration councilman and the present County Commissioners were victorious on an independent ticket.

McArdle, whose mayoralty petitions will be circulated within the next day or two, today said:

"I don't see why I should be interested in inviting Judge Patterson to be a candidate. I am willing to go into any conference if invited, but will come out of them as free as when I go in."

Mr. Malone said:

"On June 8 I stated I was willing to sit down and talk to any one. On July 7 I reiterated that I will contribute my share toward bringing about any situation which would be for Pittsburgh's welfare, whether through my own candidacy or in some other capacity."

Mr. Witherow said:

"My position was made clear when representatives of organizations urging me to run for Mayor conferred with Judge Patterson several weeks ago. The first consideration of a campaign should be action which would insure a complete change in the city government."

WITHEROW MOVE

It is known that the Citizens' League group felt that Judge Patterson closed the door to further consideration of his candidacy, and its recent efforts have been devoted to securing aid for Witherow. Conferences have been held with various political and industrial figures to that end, and it is expected that Witherow will announce his candidacy in a few days.

With the exception of Judge Patterson, none of the candidates mentioned other than Witherow appeals to the Citizens' League leaders.

Meanwhile, Mayor Herron, candidate of the city organization, is laying plans for the town meeting July 20, when his campaign will be formally launched.

HOSIERY STRIKE PEACE DELAYED

READING, Pa., July 10.—(AP)—Absence of hosiery manufacturers from the city promises to delay, at least until late this week, settlement of the strike which has virtually paralyzed the industry.

More than 10,000 full-fashioned hosiery workers have walked out in an effort to force recognition of their union.

A reported settlement of the strike, negotiated by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, of Chicago, acting at the request of Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, fell through and other efforts at conciliation have failed.

A majority of the hosiery manufacturers are attending the convention in New York of the National Association of Hosiery Workers. The Mill Owners' Association is preparing a code under the terms of the national industrial recovery act. It is to be announced Wednesday.

ADVENTISTS SET CAMP MEET

The annual camp meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of Seventh-day Adventists will convene at Conneautville, Thursday.

Leaders from the general conference will have places on the daily program of the sessions, scheduled to continue 10 days.

The opening services on Thursday and Friday nights will be addressed by Pastor L. H. King, of Pittsburgh, who will speak on "The Bible, the Only Book for Such an Age as This," and by Milton G. Conger, of Greensburg. Conger will welcome the delegates and make the keynote address.

At the conference, special attention will be given to the interests of kindergarten, primary, junior, and young peoples' groups. Pittsburgh pastors planning to be present incude L. H. King, C. W. Weber, T. M. Rowe and Ilija Belich.

EVICTED MINERS FACE EXILE IN CAMPS

"Send 'em to 'Siberia'."

This, according to officials of the United Mine Workers of America, is the alternative to eviction of union leaders and organizers in the company-owned towns of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the explanation of President J. D. A. Morrow to union complaints to the United States Department of Labor.

"Siberia," in the parlance of the miner, is any one of four abandoned mining camps—rickety unpainted frame shacks, at bleak, isolated mine workings idle many years.

Morrow explained evictions thus:

"We do not evict families from our houses except where absolutely necessary, and the number of such evictions is small. It is our policy not to evict families in winter months.

"Furthermore, in every case where we find an eviction necessary, we offer such evicted employe a house in some community not attached to one of our operating mines."

CAMP AT ESSEN

One such community is Essen, over the hill from the poorhouse, about a mile from Woodville. Here in unkempt shacks live white and Negro families hoping somehow to find a job and get back to civilization.

There is no company store, there are no electric lights. A few squeaking pumps supply water.

Food—well, there's some county relief and a few scraggly gardens.

Another "Siberia" is near Cecil, around the abandoned workings of Montour Nos. 1 and 2.

Two more camps are at Gallatin and Manown, along the Monongahela River above Monongahela.

WATCHED BY COMPANY

The exiled miners and their families are ever under the watchful eye of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, union officials say. Exile in itself must be considered punishment in addition to loss of employment the miners say, because after they have been in "Siberia" for a while they receive an occasional day's work in some distant mine.

If they continue their interest in union affairs, it is asserted, they soon lose even this pittance and eventually suffer another eviction.

Five families were evicted last week from Gallatin. Notices of eviction also have been served on families at Manown, Westland, Library and Cliff Mine.

The ousted Gallatin families are living in the union hall there.

Officials of the United Mine Workers here claim 100 per cent organization of Pittsburgh Coal Company employes. Locals have been formed, committees chosen and overtures made to company officials.

FAGAN'S VIEWS

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, U. M. W. A., commenting on the company's attitude, declared:

"They have repeatedly ignored our requests for conferences. Our members have the right to organize, but the company will not recognize us."

An investigation is underway by Hugh Kerwin, chief of the Bureau of Conciliation of the Federal Department of Labor, according to word received here.

Officials of the union are attending a conference with operators in Washington this week. The Pittsburgh Coal Company is not represented.

PRIEST LAUDED AS BUILDER

Marking the tenth anniversary of the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley as pastor of Sacred Heart Church, J. Frank McKenna, chairman of the church committee, has issued a report of the achievements of the parish during the decade.

Among the achievements listed in the report are building of a new church on the Shady avenue property, construction of a new high school for girls, a new rectory and of a new convent for the Sisters of Charity.

Sacred Heart Church, the report states, was the first parish to print announcements, to inaugurate its own social service for the relief of the poor, and the first parish to have an organ recital every Sunday.

The parish, McKenna's report says, has raised and spent $1,600,000 during the past 10 years.

COAL MEN NEAR AGREEMENT ON CODE

Workers of America, said the sub-committee drafting the labor clause in the code had made "definite progress" at the end of a late night session.

DRAFTING CODE

The sub-committee went into executive session again today to clear up disputed points in the labor clause. Meanwhile, T. G. Eissington, of Chicago, attorney for the operators, and Henry Warrum, of Indianapolis, counsel for the miners, started actual drafting of the code. They were to confer frequently with Harrington and Murray regarding the sub-committee's progress in ironing out disagreements.

The full committee of 28 miners and 28 operators representing 14 bituminous producing states, held a brief conference with the sub-committee this morning. Harrington said he reported "progress" and obtained the committee's consent to defer a full report on the sub-committee's work until tomorrow.

Both Harrington and Murray said they hoped they could send a code to Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, this week.

DISPUTE HIDDEN

Harrington and Murray would not say what points were in dispute. He said:

"It's such a complicated problem it would have taken us all day to explain to the full committee."

The union officials went into the conference asking that present union contract wage rates be made the basis for rates in the code, with differentials for differences in living costs and working conditions.

The present Illinois contract calls for $5 pay for an eight hour day. It was understood that John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers, was insisting that wage rates in other fields be based on the Illinois scale.

Johnson has received several codes submitted by the steel industry, but said he had rejected each one for changes to bring the industry into line with the recovery act's purposes.

Likewise, he said he had returned proposals of the oil industry for additional data on employment.

ROAD PROGRAM TO GIVE JOBS

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—A vast network of highway construction that will criss-cross the nation has been made possible by a $600,000,000 state and federal program that has for one of its principal purposes the furnishing of employment to thousands of workers.

Of the huge cash outlay required to push it to completion, $400,000,000 is being provided by the national government, while the states are making up the balance.

Six states—South Carolina, Louisiana, North Dakota, Alabama, Wisconsin and Oklahoma—have allotted no funds for the purpose. Illinois is to be one of the big spenders, appropriating $88,000,000 in addition to $17,500,000 to be received from Washington.

A few of the larger amounts to be spent in other states, including federal funds, are: Washington, $18,565,000; Indiana, $15,000,000; Virginia, $21,000,000; Michigan, $16,000,000; Maine, $10,700,000; Georgia, $18,500,000; Ohio, $26,000,000; Florida, $12,000,000, and New Jersey, about $15,000,000.

ATTACK ON JOB PROBLEM SEEN

UNIVERSITY, Va., July 10.—(AP.)—Early adoption of a constructive American program in the attack upon unemployment was predicted today by Dr. John B. Andrews, of New York, in an address before the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia.

The country-wide public employment office system, inaugurated this month under the direction of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was termed of the utmost importance "for future constructive action."

He commented on the introduction this year of unemployment compensation bills in 25 state legislatures with passage through one house in seven of these states. Dr. Andrews has for 20 years directed the active work of the American Association for Labor Legislation and has participated in the drafting of a number of important social measures.

Speaking at the round table on Far Eastern relations, Charles K. Moser, chief of the eastern section of the Department of Commerce, said trade between the United States and the Far East probably will aggregate $500,000,000 annually with the return of normal conditions.

Rum Probe Adjourns Awaiting New Clues

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP.)—The federal grand jury investigating violations of the prohibition law in Delaware County recessed today until Thursday to give Department of Justice agents a chance to search for "missing links."

Chet A. Keyes, special assistant attorney general, said numerous leads will be investigated. Ten days ago the jury indicted 96 persons, including State Senator John J. McClure.

'FRISCO BRIDGE WORK STARTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(AP.)—Construction of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge was officially under way today.

Both President Roosevelt and Former President Hoover, who participated in ground breaking ceremonies yesterday, declared the completed structure will be the greatest bridge ever built.

The President pressed a key in Washington, setting off a charge of dynamite on Yerba Buena Island where the former President turned a spade of earth.

Gov. James Rolph, Jr., of California, and F. B. Balzar, of Nevada, took part in the exercises.

Estimated cost of the bridge, for which $36,000,000 in contracts have been let, is $75,000,000. It will be eight and one quarter miles long and the estimated time of construction is three years.

QUIZ TO SHIELD SWEATSHOP WITNESSES

into labor conditions and recommend new laws.

Raushenbush, who formerly headed the Labor Department's Bureau of Industrial Relations, which was eliminated by the Legislature, will act informally as counsel in presenting the evidence.

The League for Social Justice and the Security League anticipated the arrival of the Commission by investigating conditions in advance of the hearings.

CITES LOW PAY

Miss Stein today said that a town near Pittsburgh girls get three cents for sewing 24 pockets on a dozen garment. She added:

"At this rate the girls can rarely make more than 10 cents an hour. Some of the jobs that cannot be done by piecework pay an hourly rate of 16 cents, and these are held at a great premium. At the same shop, the girls are charged $1 for the scissors they must use."

At another shop, she said, 150 employes are compelled to eat their lunches at sewing machines because there are no lunchrooms.

Members of the commission include members of the Legislature, Mrs. Pinchot, Judge Horace Stern, Philadelphia, and Clarence Moser, Allentown labor leader.

Grundy Denounces Secret Sweatshop Charges

BRISTOL, Pa., July 10.—(AP.)—Aroused by anonymous charges of workers at hearings from which employers were excluded, Joseph R. Grundy, former United States Senator, says the "star chamber proceedings" of the legislative committee investigating sweatshops are like "a stab in the back."

In a letter to State Senator G. Mason Owlett, of Wellsboro, chairman of the committee, Grundy said last night that many of the accusations are "defamatory" and "should be beneath contempt." He flayed what he termed an "obvious conspiracy" of state officials "to create a sinister and false picture of industrial conditions."

One of the committee members is Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, who is a political ally of Grundy.

The former Senator's letter was inspired by reported contents of four letters introduced at the committee's hearing in Doylestown on Thursday.

Purporting to be from employes of the W. H. Grundy plant, the missives said workers there were "slaves."

Asserting the letters bore evidence of having been prepared for "sensational purposes and with an ulterior motive," Grundy said his plant "is being conducted as a model factory with every convenience and consideration for the welfare of the workers, in all of whom I take a deep personal interest."

10,000 to Get Wage Raises, Mines Speed Up

Nearly 10,000 men will profit from pay raises, longer working schedules, or by getting jobs back again as the coal and coke industry and the railroads reflect the gradual resumption of business.

Likewise, word from Washington that bids would be let July 26 for Navy ships to cost $238,000,000 stimulated the steel industry, although company officials here were not able to say what amounts they would be asked to supply.

Full-time employment for 6,500 employes of the H. C. Frick Coke Company's plants in Fayette County was announced, with 10 plants affected.

Approximately 2,000 employes of W. J. Rainey, Inc., with plants near Brownsville, will get a 10 per cent increase in pay, bringing the rate almost up to the average scale of $3.60 a day paid by other operations in the district. Similar raises were put in effect today for 225 men at the Duquesne Coal and Coke Company plant, and 375 at No. 1 mine, Penobscot Coal Company.

The Frick Company also announced the overhauling of the Standard works at Mt. Pleasant, largest beehive coke plant in the country, had begun. This plant, with 999 ovens, will employ 500 men. It has been idle a year.

Repairing 1,000 freight cars was given as the reason 125 men were recalled to the Altoona car shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Ex-State Senator Held After Crash

CHAMBERSBURG, July 10.—(AP.)—Charles H. Clippinger, former state senator and former district attorney, was held under $500 bond today, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Clippinger's automobile crashed into the concrete base of a safety light in Memorial square yesterday.

COTTON MILLS' CODE PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS.)—Signed and approved by President Roosevelt in high terms, the cotton textile code today was a reality, first of the codes to be promulgated under the "new deal" in industry. It goes into effect July 17.

Pointing to the significance of the event, President Roosevelt said:

"Child labor in this industry is here abolished. After years of fruitless effort and discussion, this ancient atrocity went out in a day, because this law permits employers to do by agreement that which none of them could do separately and live in competition.

"In the eyes of the whole public, there was a great conference among the very leaders of our industry, labor and social service, presided over by government. It considered the most controverted question in the whole economic problem—wages and hours of labor—and it brought that question to a definite conclusion.

"It dealt with facts and facts only. There was not one word of accusation. And most remarkable of all, it arrived at a solution which has the unanimous approval of these conferring leaders on all three sides of the question at issue.

"It would be unfair to omit a word of commendation of this great industry. It has proved itself the leader of a new thing in economics and government."

20 Die, Thousands Homeless in Flood

BUCHAREST, July 10.—(INS.)—Floods roaring through a hundred villages in North Transsylvania today took a toll of 20 lives and left many thousands homeless as their dwellings were swept away.

LABOR SOUNDS WARNING

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—The American Federation of Labor said today in its monthly business survey that "industrial activity has made a spectacular increase in the last three months, but when the figures are analyzed it is clear that much of the present feverish activity is speculative."

The federation said wholesale and retailers, anticipating price rises under the Roosevelt emergency legislation, were "buying against the future; stores are stocking up their empty shelves; plants are ordering raw materials some times as far ahead as the first of next year, and are lying in supplies of steel for repairs."

It added that consumers likewise were preparing for price increases with the automotive and building industries making large gains in output as a result of the consumer buying. The federation said:

"These gains have far outstripped buying power. Workers' income increased only 7 per cent from March to May, while factory production increased 35.6 per cent."

FOOD LEADERS TO AID U. S. PROGRAM

Universal Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 10. — Twenty-nine leaders of the nation's food industry, representing firms with an annual business of $8,000,000,000, have agreed to serve the government as the Food Industries Advisory Board.

The board was organized here yesterday, at the conclusion of a three-day conference called by Charles J. Brand, co-administrator of the agricultural adjustment act.

The board will co-operate with the Department of Agriculture in the administration's herculean efforts to restore buying power to the nation's large farming population, and will also help, Brand asserted, in preparation and adoption of codes to assist the food industry in becoming self-governing under the national recovery act.

HEINZ ON BOARD

Twenty-six of the 29 members of the board attended the conference. They named committees to deal at once with two of the most pressing problems—helping the farmer market his perishables without the usual tremendous losses, and eliminating price-cutting and destructive competition that depresses farm produce prices.

R. R. Deupree, president of Procter and Gamble, Cincinnati, was elected chairman of the board, and other officers chosen were: Treasurer, John Stuart, president of Quaker Oats, Chicago; secretary, A. C. Dorrance, president of Campbell Soup, Camden; vice chairmen, A. F. Goodwin, chairman of First National Stores; Howard Heinz, president of H. J. Heinz Company, and Fred Wolferman, of Kansas City.

CORBALEY NAMED

Administrative responsibility for the group was placed in an executive committee composed of Deupree, Heinz, Colby M. Chester, Francis E. Kampfer, Albert H. Morrill, Sylvan L. Stix, G. F. Swift, Samuel Zemurray and Gordon C. Corbaley.

Corbaley, by designation of Brand, is to be special representative of the agricultural administration of the advisory board.

Among the nationally known food industries represented by membership on the board are General Foods, United Fruit, Swift & Co., American Sugar Refining, Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, Borden Company, Continental Baking, National Biscuit, Institute of American Meat Packers and California Fruit Growers.

NAVY BUILDING PAYROLL AID

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS.)—Building up of the American Navy through expenditure of $238,000,000 allotted from the public works fund will provide more than 2,430,000 man-weeks of work, the Navy Department reported to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, newly-named as director of public works, today.

Work on the vessels will get underway soon, the navy reported, conforming with the plan to make every dollar put somebody to work as soon as possible. Ickes pointed out:

"Every dollar spent by the government on ships will be more than trebled by indirect payroll dollars generated in the shipbuilding and allied industries."

Col. Don H. Sawyer, who has been temporarily public works administrator while the program was being started, commented:

"In relieving unemployment and starting the wheels of industry, the building of ships is far-reaching. Official estimates were that at least 18,400 men will be directly employed in government and private shipyards. An unestimated number of men in allied industries also will benefit."

SLUMP OFFSET IN INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—The "billion dollar revenue law of 1932" produced enough taxes to offset a continuing slump in income payments and provide $58,494,366 more than was collected in the previous year.

Final Treasury Department calculations fixed the total tax income at $1,616,223,408 for the 1933 fiscal year, which ended June 30. Individual and corporation income tax receipts dropped from $1,056,756,697 to $746,783,196. But the so-call nuisance taxes, plus beer revenues for April, May and June, rose $369,000,000 to $869,440,211.

HER BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED TODAY

MISS ELIZABETH PATRICE KELLY, DAUGHTER OF THE JAMES BENNETT KELLYS . . HER FIANCE: RICHARD O'BRIEN ENGLISH

Hospitable Longue Vue Country Club with its spreading lawns, shrubs and colorful flowers, is to be the scene this afternoon of a most charming simple wedding—that of attractive Lorraine Taylor, the Clyde C. Taylor's daughter, and George Smith Fichtel the Frederick A. Fichtel's son.

The ceremony is to take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the drawingroom of the club in which an altar has been constructed for the ceremony. It is to be lighted by white cathedral candles in candelabra, and distinguished by urns of white peonies on either side. Cibotium ferns and peonies will decorate the remainder of the room.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, is to officiate, and the bride's father is to give her in marriage.

To Wear Satin

She's to wear a gown of ivory satin made in princess style with a train extending from the skirt. The sleeves of satin, tucked at the top, end in rose pointe lace falling over her hands. And rose point edges the high, round neck-line.

Her veil of ivory tulle is to cascade from a cap of rose pointe and duchess lace, and her boquet is of calla lilies, tied with ivory satin.

Her only attendant, her sister, Mrs. William B. Rodgers, as matron of honor, is to wear a gown of rose jacqueminot net having a ruffled skirt ending in a train and a ruffled cape. Her hat is to be large, and of natural straw, tied with rose velvet ribbon to match her gown. She is to carry a Dresden bouquet.

Frank M. Harbison, Jr., is to be best man. There are to be no ushers.

In Gown Of Lace

Mrs. Taylor, mother of the bride, plans to wear a French blue lace gown with a large hat to match and Mrs. Fichtel, mother of the bridegroom, a flowered chiffon gown with a large black hat.

A reception and dinner will follow with the bride's table arranged in the club, and smaller tables for guests placed on the terrace. The bride's table is to be decorated in blue and ivory.

Following a motor trip and a stay at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, the bride and bridegroom will be at home after August 15 in the King Edward Apartments.

Dance Dec. 1

Another proof that those wanting to give affairs this winter must hasten to reserve dates—the Cinderella ball committee has already taken the day for its annual ball, at which the debutantes always entertain with special dances.

The date this year is December 1 with the place the University Club, as usual. And Mrs. W. W. Blair, Jr., will be chairman. The affair is given by the dispensary board of St. Margaret's Hospital.

Anna B. Sankey Married to Dr. Madden

A bride of Friday had a lovely garden as the scene of her wedding. She was Miss Anna Blanche Sankey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Sankey, of The Boulevard, Carrick, and she married Dr. Frank B. Madden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Madden, of Zara street, Knoxville.

The marriage took place in the garden of the Sankey home, between two lily ponds banked with ferns and garden flowers, before a rock garden. Officiating was the Rev. T. LeRoy Hooper, of the Knoxville Methodist Protestant Church, at 7:30 o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white crepe made with brief, puffed sleeves, and with a deep V-decolletage in the back, with tiny buttons extending nearly the length of the skirt. She wore a miniature nosegay of tiny roses and lilies of the valley in a lace frill.

Her matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Sankey, who wore maize organza, made with a jacket having a cape, and her corsage was of tea roses.

The bride's mother wore blue and white figured crepe and the bridegroom's mother chose green figured chiffon.

William Madden was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Edward E. Sankey, George Sankey, brothers of the bride, and a cousin, Ira Sankey, Alden and Calvin Rosser and Walter McMain.

Mrs. Olive Viehman McMain played the wedding music, and Mrs. Vella Madden Ensell and Alden Rosser sang.

After an eastern trip Dr. and Mrs. Madden will be at home with the bride's parents.

The bride attended Frick Training School and Dr. Madden is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh.

'Our Home Land—Touring, Detouring,' Topic for Bellevue Outlook

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

"Our Home Land—Touring and Detouring"—is the rather original program topic announced for next year by the Bellevue Outlook Club. A luncheon honoring the new president, Mrs. W. S. Walker, is the first event on the calendar.

After that the members will tour "Our Nation's Capital," studying its early history and the city as it is today. An international relations round table with music from various nations is scheduled for November, as is also the Thanksgiving program.

A literature day in December brings a book review and on the eighteenth of the month the annual Christmas meeting will take place, the dramatic committee presenting the program. Under "America's Gateways," New York, Boston, New Orleans and San Francisco will be studied.

An open forum on the political situation in Pennsylvania and a paper on the state's place in national history are offered on January 22 and discussions of the state's natural resources and beauty spots for the first of the two February meetings.

"Pioneering with Washington," "The Lincoln Highway," "The Lone Star State," "The Sunny South," "The Land of Agriculture," and "The Great Open Spaces" are other subjects under which some interesting sounding sub-topics have been assigned. The annual outing, closing the year on June 4, the annual business meeting and a guest day are the only days with no programs listed.

Of especial interest, too, are the roll call responses which the members are to give.

For instance, at the president's day luncheon each member will answer with something concerning "Out Our Way," Washington news, quotations from the president's speeches, Thanksgiving quotations, favorite American authors, Christmas wishes, facts on immigration, Pennsylvania current events, great men and women of the state, Texas current events, great men and women of the South, natural wonders and "in retrospect" are other material from which the women will choose their responses to roll call, appropriate to each day's study topic.

Magazines Council Plans Outing Tomorrow

The National Better Magazines Council will have an outing tomorrow at Elmhurst Inn, Sewickley. Arranging the affair are Mrs. J. F. McCrory, president-elect; Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse, Mrs. T. S. Loring, Mrs. L. J. Feinaugle and Mrs. W. D. Brown.

Mrs. Fouse is in charge of the luncheon, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Feinaugle of cards and prizes and Mrs. Loring of reservations and transportation.

A short board meeting will precede luncheon.

National Business Women Convene In Chicago

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, of Richmond, Va., president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, says she believes women will do much in helping to solve present economic problems.

She expressed herself prior to the opening today of the four-day convention of the organization she heads.

Woman's gradual entrance into business, she said, was bringing about a change in the world's business attitude which will ultimately result in a solution of economic questions.

Successful and prominent women swarmed into Chicago yesterday for the biennial meeting. As a prelude to the convention, opening today, delegates were entertained last night at a buffet supper given by the Illinois Federation. Nearly 2,000 attended. Eight special trains brought in delegates from over the country during the day.

SIMPLICITY IN TENNIS DRESS PROVES AN AID TO THE GAME

FROM YEAR to year the formula for tennis dresses has remained practically the same: they're classically simple and unadorned, armholes are cut wide, pleats ample, skirts wide and short. New this year, however, is the universal acceptance of shorts for all sports. In fact, no one was the least bit surprised at the recent victory of one of our ranking tennis players in a Long Island title match after seeing her dart across the courts in comfortable shorts. They seemed to make her game so much freer!

IN THE accompanying sketch the artist caught two seasoned players in action. Their costumes are typical of what ranking tennis stars wear. The contender at the right wears shirt-and-shorts of a soft new, non-wrinkable knitted material. The navy skirts are laced on both sides in red. The white shirt has a sailor collar and red bow.

AT THE lower right you see another shirt-and-shorts costume of finely striped cotton shirting, a fabric with no peer in the sports world. The shorts are particularly new, being longer and fuller than most. Roomy armholes aid backhands and other difficult strokes.

* * *

FOR COMING to and from the courts, the player slips on a matching wrap-around skirt, with brown grosgrain belt. This is sketched behind the figure. She's likely to be one of the countless converts to the new-old fads for roller skating and bicycling. In that case, she wears a matching divided skirt of striped shirting, sketched at the upper right.

IF YOU haven't the correct figure for shorts (and it is needless to remind you that one must be young and slim) take one good look at the tennis dress on the lower left-hand figure. The wide circular skirt has an enormous circumference that makes for action. The double bodice eliminates the need for a brassiere. Straps button on each shoulder and under one arm is a slide fastener. Simply open this, unbutton one shoulder and the whole thing drops conveniently at your feet. The designer remembered to add a wide yoke to subtract inches from the hips. She must have been inspired to incorporate into one simple dress so many brilliant details!

Too Much Work Is Blamed For Wrecking Marriages

Glamorous honeymoons—
Gloom marriages.
How come?

It all began with such high dreams, didn't it? Perhaps you didn't put it in just that way, not being one to "fling fancy phrases." Maybe you only asked her "How about it, kid? Shall we try it in double harness?" as the two of you strolled from the corner movie, and she answered "It's okay by me, Big Boy."

But deep in your secret hearts, you believed that Romeo had found his Immortal Juliet; that Juliet had found her Romeo.

You were excited, gay, sure you had discovered the cure for all your lonely longings, the Perfect Pal for all the years ahead.

You walked in a moon-drenched Garden of Life (even though you lived on some drab city street, and the only "moon" you saw was the nearest arc light). You dreamed long, long dreams of the home you'd make, the life you'd build—together.

Together! There was the miracle that would never cease—the magic that would always work. You two would never be like that stuffy Jones couple down the street! Life would never become flat and dull for you! How could it? Didn't you have each other? And weren't you different?

Something has happened. Something has been lost. You're still pretty good friends. You don't quarrel, but the gaiety, the moon glimmer is gone. You're just two individuals now who live in the same house who have acquired a Chesterfield, a radio, a car maybe—and lost interest in each other.

WORK OFTEN CAUSE

The home you dreamed of is just a place where the two of you eat and sleep, and maybe argue mildly over which school Mabel shall go to, or what books Tommy shall read—and from which you each go your separate ways to be amused; you to your golf or your poker party; she to her bridge club. Or maybe neither of you goes anywhere. Maybe you just sit, sinking deeper each day into a miserable mire of boredom, disappointment, resentment.

But why?

What happened to wreck your miracle, to spoil your magic marriage?

You didn't cheat or fail each other. You've been loyal and kind. You've worked steadily. But perhaps that's the trouble!

Have you worked too steadily?

Have you worked so steadily that you have forgotten everything else—all the play and adventure which made courting time so gay; all the loving and loafing which made the honeymoon so dreamlike?

Can too-much-work do that to something which was once so tip-toe shining?

"It can!" says Dr. Paul Popenoe. And he should know, for he runs the Marriage Clinic in the Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, and patches up thousands of unhappy marriages every year.

"Too much work—that is what drives most marriages on the rocks," he says.

"Of course, there are plenty of other reasons for marriage to lose its balance—money, in-laws, unfair demands on each other, unfair criticism, clashing temperaments—but the biggest reason is: Married people get away from playing together. And to stay healthy and keep marriage an adventure, they not only need fun. They need to be interested in each other's fun."

A COMMON COMPLAINT

And about 6,889,876 wives will echo that sentiment. Every day they come pouring into this department, disappointed, bored, lonely, in spite of having A Man Around the House.

"He won't go anywhere with me!" they cry.

"He never even takes me to a movie!"

"If I visit friends, I have to visit them alone!"

"He just wants to sit and read!"

"He wants to spend all his spare time at lodge."

"I hardly know him, anymore."

Those are the things they say. Not complaints about poverty or sacrifice, unkindness or hard work. All of that they can stand gamely. But complaints about the loneliness and dreariness of home life.

"I didn't find the companion I thought I would!" cry these disillusioned wives. Or, often, it's the husband making the complaint.

How about you? Is your marriage "getting that way?" Or do you know of a marriage that is? Then what's your opinion?

Is "Lack of Fun" what's wrong with modern marriage?

Or is there other deeper cause?

Let's hear your analysis; see if it agrees with Dr. Popenoe's.

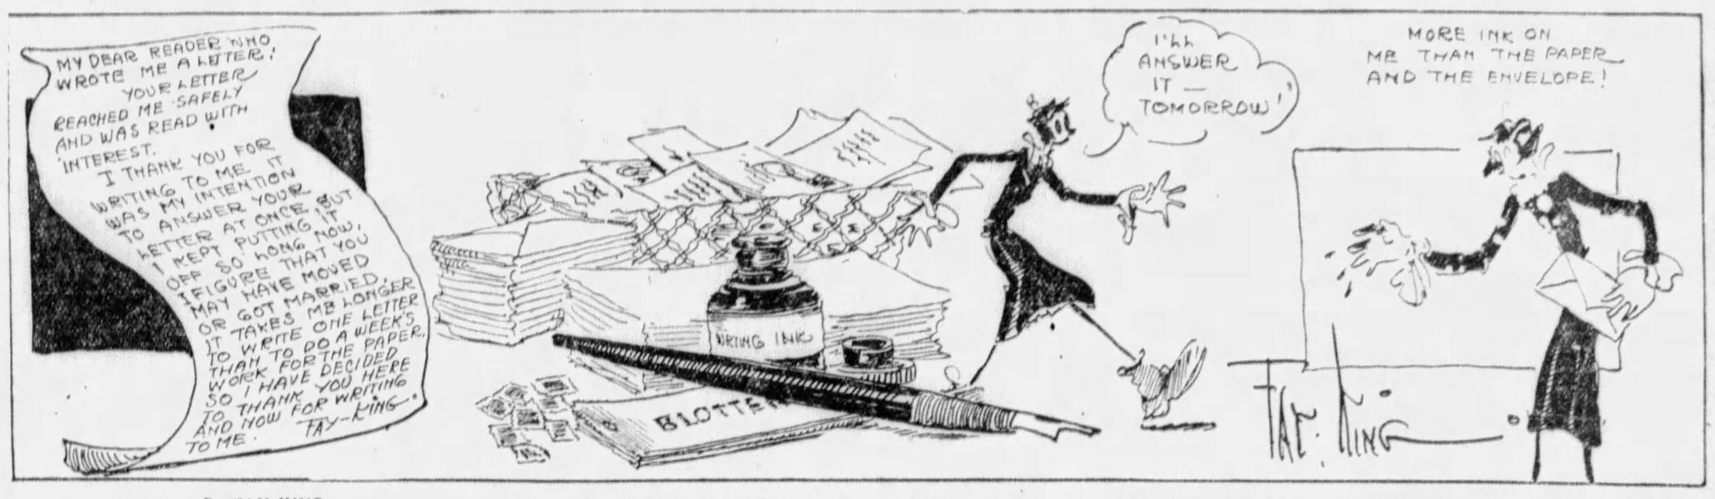
Fay King Thanks Reader for Letter Months Ago



MY DEAR READER WHO WROTE ME A LETTER: YOUR LETTER REACHED ME SAFELY AND WAS READ WITH INTEREST. I THANK YOU FOR WRITING TO ME. IT WAS MY INTENTION TO ANSWER YOUR LETTER AT ONCE, BUT I KEPT PUTTING IT OFF SO LONG NOW, I FIGURE THAT YOU MAY HAVE MOVED OR GOT MARRIED, IT TAKES ME LONGER THAN TO DO A WEEK'S WORK FOR THE PAPER, SO I HAVE DECIDED TO THANK YOU HERE AND NOW FOR WRITING TO ME. I'll ANSWER IT — TOMORROW!

By FAY KING

I hope, dear reader, who wrote me a letter sometime ago, that you will accept this little story today as a grateful answer.

It was my intention to answer your nice letter instantly—but alas, I put it off until tomorrow, and tomorrow and tomorrow—until the days ran into weeks, the weeks into months and perhaps a year has passed.

But it is never too late to let you know that your letter reached me safely, and was read with interest and pleasure, and no doubt cheered me for days.

I would even answer your letter now by mail, only I am afraid that you have long since forgotten that you wrote me, and to receive an answer at this late date would puzzle you.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Gets Some Enlightening News From "Floss"

There was something about the feminine voice inquiring for Dicky over the telephone which affected me unpleasantly. It was not the fact that a woman strange to me was calling my husband, for I am well used to all sorts of feminine calls for Dicky. Secretaries for art editors and authors, club women wishing to engage him for talks, and models anxious for work give me a good cross-section of Dicky's feminine acquaintances.

But there was something that savored of insolence in this woman's voice, something more annoying still, a note of possessiveness, as she spoke Dicky's name.

However, I let no hint of my feeling betray itself in my voice as I answered her query.

"I am so sorry," I said silkily, "but Mr. Graham is not in the hotel just now."

"Where can I get him?" The voice was staccato, the inflection that which snobs use in speaking to servants.

"Have you tried his studio?" My own voice was a bit crisp now.

"Yes. He's never there when you want him." She might have been speaking of some hireling of whom she had a right to demand regular hours in an office.

"Yes, his hours are a bit irregular, I said, wondering at the urge which kept me talking instead of slamming down the receiver, "but he is generally there at this time."

"Well, he isn't now!" Her tone was frankly impatient. "I've worn my arm off trying to get his studio. Don't you know some other place he's likely to be? It's important that I get him."

"I'm sorry, but I haven't the slightest idea where you can find him now. But I expect he will be back at the hotel for dinner, and I shall be glad to give him any message you wish."

A MALICIOUS THRUST

There was a moment's hesitation, then there came a short, brisk query:

"Are you his mother?"

In my astonishment, my eyes went unconsciously to Lillian's. She rose and bent over me.

"D'you need any help?" she whispered, with a comradely grin.

I shook my head in the negative and smiled back at her, chagrined to realize that I had to force the smile, or that I was anything but amused by this colloquy.

"No, I am sorry; but Mr. Graham's mother is in the country. Would you like her address?"

I could not resist the malicious little thrust, and was meanly gratified at the little gasp of astonishment which came over the wire.

"Say, are you kidding me?" The voice was a bit raucous now. "What would I want to be talkin' to the mother canary for? It's the Dickybird I want. But who are you, anyway?"

So she knew the name by which my husband was known among his intimates! Queerly enough her utterance of it was more infuriating to me than the insolence which invested the question she had just asked.

"I do not know of what possible use to you the knowledge can be," I said icily, "but you are welcome to it if it interests you. I am Mr. Graham's wife."

LEAVES HER NAME

I heard a quick, sibilant breath. Then, for an instant, there was silence.

"Honest? No kidding?" she said incredulously. Then, giving me no chance to reply, she went on pettishly:

"Well! What do you know about that? The big boy's been holdin' out on us. Well! I suppose now I've got him in bad with the home hearth fire. But it serves him right for not comin' clean. Well! Sorry and all the rest of it. No use of askin' you to give him a message, I suppose. So long!"

"Just a second," I spoke quickly, with a forced casualness. "You are very much mistaken. I shall be very glad to give Mr. Graham any message you wish; and may I add that I am sure you will find that Mr. Graham has not intentionally deceived you as to his marriage. In our artistic world, you know, that is a question never brought up. We take people at their face value, for fun and companionship, without bothering our heads as to their family ties."

In front of me Lillian pantomimed a clapping of hands.

"Bravo!" she whispered. But for two or three seconds there was no answer from the woman at the other end of the telephone wire. Then she spoke in distinctly puzzled accents.

"Well! That's a new one on me. It may be on the level, but I doubt it like the devil. However, I'll try anything once. Just tell the Dickeybird that Floss called. He'll understand."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Decrease in Goiter Is Reported

An important announcement was made at the recent Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons held in Washington. There was reported a marked decrease in goiter throughout the country.

Dr. Copeland

This is welcome news, because only a decade ago the number of goiter cases was increasing alarmingly. But a careful survey shows a decrease in the number of sufferers from this affliction, not only in the Western states, but in the territories formerly known as the "goiter districts."

Goiter formation, enlargement of the thyroid gland in the neck, is associated with a lack of iodine in the system. It has been prevalent, particularly in the Great Lakes region.

In 1916 Dr. David Marine showed that the disturbance was due to a lack of iodine in the water supply of those cities where the inhabitants suffered from this disorder.

Fortunately, simple goiter is a disease that is easily prevented. Persons who reside in so-called goiter districts are advised to include foods in their diet that are rich in iodine content.

Yet I must warn you against the indiscriminate use of iodine or iodinized preparations. It should not be resorted to without medical advice.

A lack of iodine in the system is associated with simple goiter only. Its value is limited to this type of thyroid disturbance. Of course there are many other forms of thyroid disease besides simple goiter.

For example, "exopthalmic goiter" is another disturbance of the thyroid gland. In this affliction there is an increase in the secretion of "thyroxin," a substance found in the thyroid gland. The sufferer presents thyroid enlargement, bulging of the eyes and palpitation of the heart. It is a serious disturbance that demands the utmost care in its treatment.

Another form is that known as "adenomatous goiter." This is caused by alternate enlargement and shrinkage of certain parts of the thyroid gland. In many instances this type of goiter can be removed only by an operation. The operation is called "thyroidectomy," the removal of the thyroid gland.

The control of goiter in this country is an outstanding achievement of medical science. We are to be congratulated that the research workers have been so successful.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Reading the Opponents' Minds

Almost every Bridge player would be able to bid his hands with greater precision if he knew in advance what would be the Opening lead. Sometimes it is useless to speculate upon such an abstract proposition. This is almost always true when the opponents have not entered the bidding. But when a vulnerable opponent has opened the bidding with a suit bid, it is reasonable to assume that if the final declaration is made by the player at the left of the Opening bidder, then the partner charged with the lead is likely to open that suit.

This inference drawn from the bidding permitted Mrs. Oswald Jacoby to bid and make a contract that without the information of the Opening bid and the inference drawn as to the probable Opening lead would have been dangerous in the extreme. Mrs. Jacoby was playing with her husband, the well known Bridge expert, against two strong players in New York. The hand and bidding were:

West, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ 95 ♡ 10763 ◇ 82 ♣ 107654 | |
| ♠ 74 ♡ QJ954 ◇ 97 ♣ QJ98 | North West East South | ♠ K1632 ♡ AK87 ◇ 103 ♣ 32 |
| | ♠ AQ108 ♡ — ◇ AKQJ654 ♣ AK | |

The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 1 ♠ | Double |
| Pass | 2 ♣ | Pass | 6 ◇ (1) |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

1—The soundness of this bid is dependent wholly upon the accuracy of the inference drawn as to the probable Opening lead. Of course, Mrs. Jacoby does not know that her husband holds such a complete blank, but in view of the fact that East has opened the bidding, it seems quite well assured that he can hold practically nothing of value.

The Opening lead, as anticipated, was a small spade, and from this time on the play was simple. Mrs. Jacoby played the 9 of spades from Dummy, and East went up with the King. South won with the Ace, the trumps were drawn, and a trick conceded to the spade Knave.

A contract that would have been a wild guess without the Opening bid became a reasonably safe one through the drawing of a correct inference.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You hold:

♠ J2 ♡ A54 ◇ Q1096 ♣ K1053

Both sides are vulnerable. Your partner, as Dealer, has bid one spade. Second Hand has bid two diamonds. What do you bid?

Answer: Double. With your partner opening the bidding and your hand containing 2 honor-tricks with 2 practically certain tricks in the opponents' suit, a very good opportunity for a lucrative penalty is presented to you. It looks as though Declarer must be defeated at least 2 tricks, and if he is able to get by with a set of 1, the assumption will be that you and your partner did not have a game. Moreover, you may conceivably set the opponents as much as 1,400 points if partner has a big hand.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are celebrating our third wedding anniversary very soon and we are planning to have a party. Would it be correct to have it as a housewarming party?

We have just started housekeeping in the city, as we have been living out of town since we were married.

If so, please tell me how to word the invitations? M.

This would be a perfect plan for your party—by all means carry it out. Such a party would accomplish many charming things; celebrate your third wedding anniversary, open your new house to your friends, and announce your residence in this new place.

You may send the invitation in one of several correct forms. Very often this kind of invitation is written on a visiting-card, like a tea invitation. The visiting-card is of the Mr. and Mrs. engraved kind. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alan Glynn
Housewarming
Tuesday, July first,
Four to seven Two Home Place

Or, if you have or wish to get some of the convenient "Informal Message Cards" (the double visiting-card), they are perfect, too, for this kind of invitation. On the front is the name...the Mr. and Mrs., as indicated above, and in the lower right corner, the new address. Then inside, on the two pages downward, write:

Dear Mary and Tom:

Jack and I are giving a housewarming on Sunday, the first of July, in our new home, from four to seven o'clock, and we wish very much that you both will come. Do say "yes"!

Cordially,

The other form of invitation, thoroughly correct, too, of course, is the written note, on regular note-paper or letter-paper (the kind on which you wrote to me is excellent for this), with the invitation written about like the one above.

Declining an Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me as to the proper way to decline a wedding invitation. We are unable to attend as we will be out of town at the time the wedding takes place. M.

If the invitation is for the ceremony only, it requires no acknowledgment. But if it includes also an invitation to the reception or for the dinner or breakfast, say, this is the form for the regret:

Miss Mary Robinson
regrets that she is unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of August

Write the acknowledgment on the first page of double-sheeted letter-paper, and space it as I have indicated. In a regret, it is not necessary to repeat the hour.

If you wish to give the reason, it is polite to do so, and then the second and third lines read:

regrets that absence from town prevents her acceptance of

Household Hints

Batter for pancakes and fritters will be greatly improved by allowing it to stand in a cool place for an hour or so before it is required.

One cup of milk heated and added to 4 tablespoons of sugar, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon and ½ teaspoon of vanilla makes a good sauce to serve with apple dumplings.

When hanging a picture frame drive a small brass-headed tack into each lower portion of the frame, in back, it prevents the marks on the walls that are so troublesome. In this way the pictures are held from the wall a fraction of an inch, thus allowing the air to circulate behind them.

Boredom Cause of Tantrums

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Personally, I believe there are various causes for tantrums, and in years of observing and wondering and studying "what makes the wheels" go round in children I've come to the conclusion that first and foremost in causes is a feeling of frustration. And the factors which produce that desire to "explode," when isolated, seem to be, first, interference by an adult with a child's play, not allowing him to enjoy to the full the fun of a new experience; secondly, boredom! Third, and I believe this not to be a usual but unusual cause of tantrums, the desire to gain attention, although child psychologists may take issue with me on rating this cause third.

In fact, Mrs. Dorothy C. Thompson, director of the Cannon Nursery School, of New Haven, rates boredom first in causing these violent emotional scenes we call tantrums.

Mrs. Thompson says: "When children are 'cantankerous' it is often because they are bored." She relates closely the child's supply of workable toys with his happiness or violent protest in the form of appropriating adult belongings in lieu of proper, constructive play material.

And it is not difficult to follow his line of reasoning, for it is logical.

Take a typical day in the home of Mary, aged 4. She has started out all smiles and energy. The cheap toy train on its first run of the day has lost a wheel and is rapidly disintegrating. The fragile doll loses her hair. The celluloid toys are stepped on. The "cute" mechanical things that intrigued relatives so much that they just had to get them for Mary have come apart after a few days use. Mary is balked at every play idea, by playthings that won't respond any longer to her wishes. So she hauls out all the pans from the kitchen cupboard and has a grand time—until mother arrives on the scene. Result, scolding, excitement, anger—tantrum!

Faith Baldwin Turns Radio Critic

By FAITH BALDWIN
Famous Novelist.

As a radio critic I am a pretty good novelist and an even better student of rosebugs.

The fact is that my usual hour for retiring is 9 o'clock, so I presume I miss numerous world-shaking offerings of the networks.

This is not strictly true in summer, because some of the kind neighbors on the street in back of me have taken to sitting on their front porches and turning their radios on full-tilt in back rooms. Hence I am able to hear a good deal of jazz, a mess of announcements and even a speech now and then.

Also, I miss the morning programs. I have always liked to write my stints to music, but one of my radios is in the living room and my typewriter is in the library. Hence, just as I get going to soft strains of music, it is disconcerting to have the program change to the coy voice of some domestic female who is thrilling her listeners with a recipe for potato salad or herring stew. And it is a waste of energy to have to arise and turn the thing off.

Snoonie and Gracie

My listening-in time is between 6 and 9 in the evening. Now and then I vary my routine by sitting up a bit later. For Snoonie, for instance.

I heard Snoonie the first time she appeared on a Valle program and became devoted to the little waif. When I discovered her on another program I sat up to catch her plaintive mutterings and was happy to greet her on Rudy's program again a recent Thursday night.

On Wednesdays I manage to sit up an hour later. I wouldn't miss Gracie Allen and her resigned side kick for anything in the world.

Likes and Dislikes

For the rest, I like

Snoonie . . . Gracie and George . . . Lombardo . . . Edwin Hill . . . some symphonies . . . all good organ music, but especially Ann Leaf, who has taken to a later hour than I like . . . Phil Cook . . . Ray Perkins . . . one or two songsters . . . occasional playlets . . . occasional Sherlock Holmes . . . all good gypsy music . . . Jessica Dragonette . . . the Aces . . . Sanderson and Crumit.

Now for the hymns (and sometimes shes) of hate:

All "hot" jazz . . . all "harmony singers, all blues shouters . . . all of the people who make goofy noises in bottles and such . . . most women speakers . . . Kate Smith . . . most crooners . . . and every announcer who goes in for culture and diction and blah . . . but most of all—commercial announcements.

And in Conclusion

On the Vallee hour I invariably turn off Dr. Whatshis name and take a great satisfaction in so doing. This plugging is ruining radio enjoyment. The programs which are cleverly sponsored are sponsored merely by a brief announcement at the start and close of the program.

Commercial announcements, yes, by all means. But make 'em snappy boys, and we'll rush to the counters and buy America.

I like radio; I would hate to be without it, but it is still far from perfect. Some of this imperfection is not due to networks or sponsors, of course; it is due to us, the listeners. I frankly confess I am perfectly average.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Has golf got appeal?

Frank Petrolia, of the Schenley links, says that it must be more compelling than ever, even to non-golfers. A motorist driving through Schenley's highways, almost invariably watches the waggler at the tee and then twists his neck to see how far the ball was socked, if at all.

The trouble is that the motorist seldom takes his foot off the gas during this process. The other day a driver never noticed a telegraph pole coming his way.

Three or four hundred municipal golf warriors lay down their weapons tomorrow to attend the dinner in honor of Director Lang. Wednesday will find them whizzing at each other again:

"Hey, why don't you holler 'Fore'?"

The zoo is providing never-ending delight to the children at the Highland Park day camp. The animals enjoy their daily visits, too.

When the kiddies approach, Big Bengal leaves off his napping and fiercely proud, exhibits his tawny stripes and cavernous mouth in a one-cat parade before the bars. Leo will positively roll over in his cage when his audience arrives. The birds indulge in overly exuberant chatter. And the monkeys seem to save their best acrobatic tricks for the appreciative onlookers.

It's circus day every day.

If Melvin Garkow, chosen to pilot an air line's new tri-motor, cares to chill your blood, he can tell of the time when lost in the fog, his mail plane in a spin, he maneuvered over the Pittsburgh Point before "bailing out."

Memos to a Columnist's Girl Friday

Catalina Island, off the Pacific Coast: My dear Mrs. Ebsen, Jr. And so, my dear, you're a bride! . . . Well, now . . . Imagine my little Girl Friday a bride—the adored one of Buddy Ebsen, whose sister Vilma is so lovely, too . . . And an elopement, yet! . . . All the thrills that go with an old silent moving picture . . . Well, every joy to you, Ruth—Buddy certainly deserves the best secretary in that two-by-four office of ours . . . I'm really thrilled about it all—Oh, for several reasons . . . The major reason being that I was getting terribly worried about you . . . I mean lately . . . Now everything is cleared up . . . Now I know why you've been sending my mail to Chicago (where Buddy was) instead of to California, where I am! . . . In fewer words, Ruthie, you have no idea how relieved I am knowing that you haven't been absent-minded—you've merely been Ebsen-minded!

The D. Fairbanks-M. Pickford confirmation was good to see . . . You must remember away back on the Magic Carpet program, how they made me delete the names. They'd only let me flash: "The most famous movie couple are on the verge" . . . What a wise audience they are—on the air . . . The mail came in bunches asking: "Did you mean Doug and Mary?" . . . Ditto that Lady Ashley (Sylvia Hawkes) was the heart . . . Now, this is the reason for the split being made public: Mary being so tough to give in . . . The noblewoman not long ago cabled Doug that if he didn't hasten to London—that she would come to Hollywood—and the rest is front page history . . . Judge Bushel, Rudy's lawyer, is here doing the town with June Knight . . . He won't deny that while here he will "see" Mrs. Vallee (Fay Webb).

In response to your query—Mae West is of Irish-German descent—her pop being of Irish extraction and her mother German . . . Is George Haldeman, who flew Ruth Elder almost across the Atlantic, in the hospital in New York?—Check . . . Saw the news that New York's thermometer touched 55 on July 4 . . . If it would only stay there while I'm in that town—everything would be honky dooly . . . It never is hot here—balmy and pleasant . . . I probably will be back August first—but not unless I'm forced into it!

You probably recall June Brewster of the Ziegfeld and other musicals . . . She came out here to die—but is healthier than ever—and plenty Caliente (hot to you!) . . . Milton Raison, who helped Heywood Broun sponsor those shows for the unemployed actors, isn't married (as recorded) to Gene Fursa, another of the nicer chorus girls . . . He's done a novel christened "The Season's Ended," which deals with the Broadway of "out-front" and not backstage, for a change . . . The time is 1929 when everybody was in the money—and ticket specs carried their big coin in their pockets, or in vaults, for fear of having to explain things to the income taxers . . . His chapter on the late Jack Donohue, who died from overwork (tackling too many different jobs at the same time) is most spellbinding . . . See how much you can find out on the Arthur Loew-Barbara Smith combination—and how serious it is . . . She was also trying to decide between Loew and one of the Schraffts . . . Have this line blown up and paste on my office wall to my left, to wit: "Every man should keep a fair-sized cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends."

Before Countess Di Frasso could answer the question: "How did you reduce so quickly?" someone said: "Not hearing from Gary Cooper!" . . . The Countess, however, gave me one of those looks when I asked if it were true. "You don't really think that, do you?" she said . . . I do, though . . . Gene Raymond is a bit burned about the local gazettes reporting how he rushed Lilian (one "l" as in Russel Crouse) Harvey — but with no sugary luck . . . If it is information about the stars you want—read and forget this one . . . Janet Gaynor won't put on or remove her left shoe first—superstitious . . . She also is that "soopy" that she wears the shoes she wore in "Seventh Heaven" at least in one sequence in every movie . . . But you may whistle in her dressing room—if, that is, you can get into it—and of course, if you like to whistle . . . Betcha couldn't guess right now what I would like to have most? . . . A typewriter ribbon! . . . I couldn't put it on if I had it.

Oh, yes—let's do our daily good deed . . . Get in touch with George White, who is readying his new "Scandals" . . . Tell him to bag a grand trio of comedy dancers, now in the prologue at Grauman's Chinese Theater here . . . They open in dress suits (with tails) and the girl is in eve'g frock . . . Their adagio routine suddenly switches into the funniest fifteen minutes of dance tricks and gags I've seen in years . . . They are surefire—tell him, he'll thank me for the warning . . . And if he does get them—tell him it's a bet—8 to 5 that they stop the show! . . . Their names are Lowe, Burnoff and Wensley.

The tuneist (yeah, tuneiest!) of the new songs is "My Own," plenty lovely . . . A swingy-thingy . . . How would you like to be a person whose numerous acres of land right on Wilshire Blvd. in H'wood rest on soil containing oil—yet, with times being what they are, the city won't permit the owner to drill them? . . . I'm no sissy, but I know I haven't the nerve to wear one of those white monkey jackets the dudes are wearing out here . . . And do they all look self-conscious on the Cocoanut Grove dance floor wearing 'em? . . . Phone Marty Lewis and see if he got my letter . . . Colleen Adams is canarying at the Stenton in Atlantic City . . . The lowdown on the Don Cook-Evalyn Knapp split was caused by a Mexappealer, not Lupe! . . . Cook, however, dropped everything after the blow-up, and is now having jolly moments with Mata Carpenter, a newcomer to the studios . . . What do you want for a wedding present? Munyee?

Among other things I don't even know as yet is this. It costs 8c to air mail a letter—but if it's overweight the teeniest bit—it costs an extra 13c stamp? If you were to split the contents of the letter in another envelope it would only cost 8c . . . Tell Postmaster Farley his arithmetic needs a rehearsal! . . . Now be a good girl and stop being a wife long enough to write me a long letter telling me how listless everything is in Nieu Yauk . . . And don't hold out too much mail you consider "unimportant" . . . The stuff you've been sending isn't worth the postage.—W. W.

Arlen, Cooper Plan Trip To Bali

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—An expedition to Bali, romantic isle of the East Indies, is planned by Richard Arlen and Gary Cooper, as soon as they can get time off from their film duties. This ought to be within the next five months.

The pair got the idea for the trip during the cruise they recently took on Dick's boat.

For the longer journey, they plan to charter a 165-foot yacht on which they will visit Bali and other islands.

The ideal arrangement, says Dick, would be for Bing Crosby and Jack Oakie also to go along. Then they could charter the yacht almost as cheaply as they could all travel first class.

Mr. Arlen

Bing is willing but his radio contracts probably will prove a hitch.

As for Dick and Gary, they're pretty sure of being able to get away at the same time.

One of the more ironic incidents of the week took place at the night auto races here.

Babe Stapp, careening around the track, lost control of his car and hit the fence at a speed of about 100 miles per hour.

The next day he was driving again.

But Carey Wilson, scenarist, a close spectator, jerked his head and tore a muscle from his spine. He spent the next day in bed under the care of a doctor and a nurse.

Director Monta Bell is almost ready to beat his head against the wall. After endless negotiations, Carole Lombard was finally signed to play in "The Worst Woman in Paris." Now, she too drops out of the role. Says Monta:

"If I don't get a leading woman by next week, I'm going to use a female impersonator."

Miss Lombard

The gossips are busy. The Countess Frasso visited Hollywood's favorite rendezvous the other night in the company of Ivan Lebedeff. At noon a couple of days later, she lunched in the Paramount commissary with Ricardo Cortez. And Friday, she was lunching again with Gary Cooper.

This month will see the end of Sari Martiza's contract with Paramount, and rumor says it will not be renewed . . . The Broadway columnists continue to gather here. Sidney Skolsky is the latest. He'll stay three weeks, and he's keeping a wary eye out for Constance Bennett . . . A call from the home studio may keep William Gargan from playing opposite Joan Crawford in "Dancing Lady." It wouldn't surprise me to see Clark Gable get this role after all. Clark has been baking out at a hot springs resort in the Northwest. He expects to be back here about the 20th.

Miss Maritza

There's to be a tennis tournament late this month at Arrowhead Hot Springs. Edmund Lowe, Gilbert Roland, Buddy De Sylva, David Butler, Claudette Colbert, Mrs. Ad Schulberg and the Charles Farrells are some who plan to enter. This list will be open only to those in the creative branch of the industry . . . Does this disillusion you? The only gun Edward G. Robinson keeps in his Beverly Hills house is a tin imitation of an automatic revolver that holds cigarets.

Did you know: That Bette Davis, one of the newer players, has never seen a silent picture?

War Picture Coming

An aggregate of 32 years of service is represented in the eight veterans of as many nationalities who explain in close-ups the foreign sequences in the official World War picture, "Forgotten Men," to be shown in the Davis and Sheridan Square, beginning July 14.

All these veterans hold the highest military honors offered by their respective countries, and all but the French veteran who was attached to the French Navy, were wounded at least once.

Sergt. Andre Beaufils, French submarine, saw service in the North Sea, Black Sea and the Mediterranean.

Sergt. Pierre Gayet, French infantry, saw service at Charleroi, Marne, Dardanelles, Salonique and Rheims.

Corp. Michael Donovan, of Ireland, British infantry, fought at Ypres, Somme and Cambrai.

Sergt. John McD. Forbes, Scotland, British infantry, fought at Ypres, Festubert and Somme.

Capt. Angelo Giliberti, Italian infantry, saw fighting at Sei Busi and Akayo and Grappa.

Sergt. Maj. Al Handy, Tank Corps, A. E. F., carries medals for his service at the Somme, St. Soupley, Kimmel Hill, Hindenberg line and Bellicourt.

Lieut. Gaston Lauryssen, Belgian infantry, fought at Ypres and Dixmude.

Walter H. Schellenberg, member of the crown prince's staff, was decorated for extraordinary service. Lieut. Schellenberg saw service at Marne, Champagne and on the Russian front.

Swimmers Banned From 'Hitch Hikes'

SEATTLE, July 10.—(AP.)—Water "hitch hiking" on log booms through the Lake Washington ship canal has become a problem.

Therefore, following complaints from tow boat operators, acting Port Warden Paul Sweeney ordered patrol boats to follow the tows and arrest any swimmers boarding them.

Pop Concert Tuesday

The fifth popular summer night concert will be given by the Little Symphony Orchestra on the Hotel Schenley lawn tomorrow evening. The Tuesday Musical Club is sponsoring this concert, and the soloist will be Helen Bell Rush, soprano. Miss Rush will sing arias from operas in which she appeared in Europe. The program follows:

Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar
Overture, "The Marriage of Figaro" ..... Mozart
Aria, "Voi che sapeta" from "The Marriage of Figaro" ..... Mozart
Helen Bell Rush.
Largo from "The New World Symphony" ..... Dvorak

Irish Rhapsody ..... Herbert
Aria, The Jewel Song," from "Faust" ..... Gounod Miss Rush.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Pittsburgh Summer Playhouse will give its opening performance of S. N. Behrman's "Second Man" in the Shadyside Academy Theater, Fox Chapel tonight, as the second of a series of six subscription plays. It also is to be presented each night this week. Chester Wallace is the director of "Second Man" and the cast includes Polly Rowles, Robert Gill, Dorothy Devlin and Henry Patterson.

* * *

The Fulton, which has temporarily changed its opening day to Tuesday, will have a new bill tomorrow, the feature to be "The World Gone Mad," with a cast including Pat O'Brien, Evelyn Brent, Neil Hamilton and Mary Brian.

Claire Windsor and Buster Keaton are in St. Petersburg, Fla., the former to be starred in a picture called "Playthings of Desire," while Keaton will work in one titled "Fisherman." The title of the Windsor film recalls the fact that a number of years ago the Pennsylvania censors found a similar title, "Playthings of Passion," the only thing about the picture that was objectionable, and changed it to "Playthings of Fate."

The illness of Dick Powell has cost him the leading role in another musical film, "Footlight Parade," now being filmed by Warner Brothers. Stanley Smith will play the juvenile lead instead of our Richard.

A comedy called "The New Deal" will be made by Universal, with a cast including Myrt and Marge, of radio; Eddie Foy, Jr., Trixie Friganza, J. Farrell MacDonald and Ted Healy and his stooges.

Fred Stone is said to be considering a modern revival of "The Wizard of Oz," musical comedy, first of the series that made popular that great team of eccentric comics, Fred and his teammate, the late Dave Montgomery. Stone's three daughters probably would be in it.

* * *

Paul Robeson, who canceled a concert tour in Europe to play the title part in "The Emperor Jones," is working in a studio in Astoria, Long Island. The only white person in the picture is Dudley Digges, in the character of Smithers. It is proving a boon for the actors of Harlem, as hundreds of Negroes are required for the screen version of the O'Neill play.

The Past intruded on her Triumph

"Those European stars always have one foot in the mud," said the theatre manager cynically. Ushers had just ejected a disreputable looking foreigner. The fellow had thrown himself at Leni Luneska as she entered the lobby for the premiere of her greatest picture. Why was she disturbed at this man's appearance—what did he know that could upset the glamorous, aloof Luneska—greatest star in Hollywood? Be sure to read . . .

Lewis Blewis & Son

THIS IS an ironical tale. But, as J. M. Josefsberg points out, it is always best to strike while the irony is hot. It's all about our old friend, Joe Blimp, whose wife ran away with another man. He should have been very happy about the situation, because plenty of husbands would have given anything to be in his shoes. But Joe was miserable—which is where the first touch of irony comes in.

All his life Joe Blimp had purchased his outfits from Lewis Blewis & Son. You know Lewis Blewis & Son—"Everything a Man Wears, From a Collar to a Corset." They were smart clothiers, those Blewises. Their stores featured the best of men's apparel—and with each outfit purchased they always gave two hangers.

Now it so happens that Mrs. Blimp fell in love with the "& Son" half of the firm. Ask me why and all I can do is to reply with a snicker. Maybe it was the gold in his heart or the pomade in his hair. Or maybe it was because the lad was a sheik—and Mrs. Blimp believed in the old adage, "Sheik and ye shall find."

At any rate, Junior Blewis liked Mrs. Blimp with the same fervor. Whenever she came into the store with Joe, Junior shook as though he had the palsy. He was in love with this bimbo and she was in love with him. And no sadder words have ever been written by any fool columnist.

Joe Blimp was the typical husband. That is to say, he never got wise. And it wasn't long before his loving life left him.

That, of course, should have been the signal for Joe to go out, get himself properly plastered and dig up a 1933 model of Mrs. Blimp—with a new paint job.

But he didn't. Instead he went home and moaned. And he wasn't moanin' low, either. In fact, his bellowings were so terrific that they would have made a cowboy homesick for the range. And after awhile the man next door came in.

"Say, Blimp," he asserted sympathetically, "you'll have to cut out this racket. My kids are trying to do their lessons. I like you—but if you don't stop it I'll have to part your hair with a soda bottle."

Blimp never stopped.

"Oh," he wailed, "this is terrible. Horrible. Awful! My wife has gone with Junior Blewis. She's gone, I tell you. Gone!"

Then came the second touch of irony. His neighbor stood up and bowed low.

"Blimp," he murmured, "if your old lady has left you for good I'm taking my hat off to you right now. You'll pardon me while I step into my house and get a bottle. I wanna know just how you worked it." . . .

From that day on Joe acted a trifle nutty. He didn't cut out paper dolls. You've got to study to reach that stage. But he did buy up a lot of newspapers each day—just to slash the Lewis Blewis & Son ads out of them.

He purchased a radio he couldn't afford just to have the pleasure of tuning out on the Lewis Blewis & Son program. It was shortly after that when Joe lost his job. His boss had shown Joe a beautiful tie he had just purchased. Blimp took one look at the Blewis label and almost choked the boss to death pulling it off.

Then he got himself into real trouble. He walked uptown, shabby and unkempt, muttering "Lewis Blewis . . . Lewis Blewis . . . Lewis Blewis." At the first Blewis store he reached he heaved a brick through the huge window. He was immediately arrested — showing that the crime wasn't serious.

The magistrate gave Joe plenty of time to cool off in the cooler, but Blimp had a terrific case of the Blewis. When he got out, he was worse. He went to a dance hall, paid his way in and disappeared. They found him a half hour later in the cloakroom, muttering something unintelligible while ripping all coats that bore a Blewis label.

It was a sad case, but the judge was in no mood to be moved to tears that day. He had a bad hangover and a terrific grouch. He glared at Blimp.

"Were you drinking?" he growled.

"Lewis Blewis," replied Blimp.

The judge hurriedly gulped a glass of water and made a mental note to consult his doctor that night. He was hearing things!

"What did you say?" he cried.

Lewis Blewis," returned Joe.

"Lewis Blewis!" shouted the judge. "What does that mean?"

"Lewis Blewis," said Blimp blandly.

The judge wiped his fevered brow.

"Take him away," he ordered hoarsely. "Bellevue Hospital. Observation."

If I'm not mistaken, Joe Blimp spent a week in Bellevue before being shipped to the land of Napoleons and columnists. The doctors in this partcular institution were capable, but they could do nothing with this case. Because, by this time, he had become as nutty as a fruit cake.

The man would do nothing but mutter "Lewis Blewis" all through the day. In the wind-up, they had to put him in solitary confinement because two of the younger doctors had begun to walk around muttering "Lewis Blewis."

He was two months in solitary when they found him dead one morning. He had hanged himself.

After a day of searching, the authorities located Mrs. Blimp. And to her credit, the lady felt very badly about Joe's death. For at least 10 minutes, she was inconsolable. Then she pulled herself together, visited the asylum and claimed the body of the man who went crazy because of her.

Perhaps her conscience troubled her. At any rate, when Joe's body came back to town, she engaged the most expensive funeral parlors in the city for the services. Joe, she wept, was going to have the best.

The procession, itself, looked like a gangster's demise. It had all the trimmings of a birthday cake. When the body was lowered into the grave, even the funeral director shed a few tears. He didn't get many clients like that.

In a few days the grave looked no different from hundreds of others. The flowers, withered and old, dropped to the ground one by one. And that's all there is to the sad story of Joe Blimp.

Except, of course, for that little touch of irony. Even Blimp himself might have appreciated it, had he lived to know. Because his wife wanted to give him the best of everything, he was buried in a suit that had been bought at Lewis Blewis & Son!

WOMAN ADMITS SLAYING YOUTH

WARREN, O., July 10.—(AP.)—Gerald Hutchinson, 23, of Sharon, Pa., was shot and killed during a fight at Mrs. Katherine Wagner's home at Masury yesterday. Several hours later police announced the 39-year-old woman confessed the slaying.

Iona Myers, 21, daughter of Mrs. Wagner, and Betty Mohl, 24, were taken into custody as material witnesses, but were released on their promise to remain within call.

Prosecutor George W. Secrest said manslaughter charges would be preferred against Mrs. Wagner.

Mrs. Wagner asserted, police said, that Hutchinson entered her home with a companion and threatened to smash it up. When she objected, he knocked her down and kicked her. She was quoted as saying:

"I got up, got a gun and fired."

The girls said they heard the shots, but did not see the shooting. Police said Miss Mohl fled with Hutchinson's companion and three other men as soon as the first shot was fied. All four men are sought for questioning.

G. O. P. LEADERS TO MAP DRIVE

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Republicans from eight states meet in Chicago tomorrow to discuss with party leaders plans for regaining the power that last November's balloting swept away.

Their first efforts, already begun, will be directed toward cutting down the Democratic majority of nearly 100 in the House of Representatives. All House members come up for election in 1934, as do 32 members of the Senate. In 1936 there is the presidential election.

The Chicago meeting, under the leadership of Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, will bring together the national chiefs and representatives from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. This is following up previous regional sessions held in Washington, Boston and New York. More will follow.

Already, Representative Snell, of New York, Republican leader in the House, has engaged in a word battle with Postmaster General Farley and other Democratic leaders, criticizing administration policies, which are to form a large part of the G. O. P. campaign talks.

"Do you girls know each other?"

Said Mrs. King:

"Sure we do. We've been pals for months."

CHEAPER PARK FARES BEGIN SUNDAY

PROPOSED CITY RAMP

ENGINEERS' PROPOSED RAMP TO HANDLE POSTAL TRAFFIC

The city engineers' plan—adopted so far by neither city nor federal government—to handle post office truck traffic to the new post office building's loading platform to avoid interference with traffic flow on Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue. The ramp would end in Telegraph square. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

City Proposes Plan For Disputed Ramp To New Postoffice

Substitute Project Aimed to Prevent Traffic Mixup

The latest plan prepared by the Department of Public Works at Council's request for the disputed traffic ramp from the loading platform of the new postoffice to the street suggests that the ramp bridge Seventh avenue and slope directly along Pentland street to Strawberry way at Telegraph square. The whole scheme is indicated by a drawing, superimposed on a photograph, as shown here.

Under this new plan, the original government plan to have the ramp enter Seventh avenue would be scrapped.

Drawings and blue prints prepared show the proposed ramp would have a width of about 20 feet with six-foot sidewalks. After crossing Seventh avenue with a clearance of 16 feet, it would slope down gradually along Pentland street, causing Pentland street, really a small alley leading from Telegraph square to Seventh avenue to be closed to vehicular traffic.

Strawberry way, it is suggested, could be widened from 40 to 60 feet at some future time.

Mayor John S. Herron and the Better Traffic Committee have protested the government's original plan to have the ramp enter Seventh avenue. It is their contention it would create an intolerable traffic congestion.

Charles M. Reppert, chief engineer for the city, prepared the new plan.

BANDITS FLEE AMID GUN FIRE

SANDWICH, Ill., July 10.—(AP.)—Four robbers held up the State Bank of Sandwich today, fought a gun battle on the streets with members of the recently organized town guard, and escaped with more than $4,000 in cash.

One robber was believed to have been wounded in an exchange of 25 shots as they left the bank. The town guards who fired at them were Al M. Hubbard and F. E. Kesslar, merchants.

Three of the robbers, two of them with pistols and the other carrying a rifle, entered the bank and forced the president, E. C. Mosher, and two girl employes, to stand facing the wall.

A fourth remained in an automobile outside.

Partly concealed in doorways, Hubbard and Kesslar began firing as the men left the bank.

WHOLESALE VICE RAIDS HERE THREATENED

N. S. Preacher Charges City Sleuths With Shirking Duty

Alleged inactivity of police in cleaning up vice conditions on the North Side today brought a threat from the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass that he might bring in state police and constables to clean up the district in a wholesale raid.

The Rev. Mr. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, said that he and his colleagues saw no other means of driving vice out of the North Side than a repetition of the raids conducted a week ago by state police. City police are doing nothing to aid in the vice cleanup, he charged.

He said in part:

"It may be that it isn't possible to do away with vice completely, but we shall continue our crusade. Open vice would not be possible without the connivance of a political machine. It's the machine we are after.

"I note they made a raid out in Buena Vista street. The proprietress must have been delinquent. The police aren't blind. They can find these conditions as easily as anyone."

MASONTOWN, Pa., July 10.—Nellie Dugan, 19, won't be bothered any longer by the unwelcome attentions of Charles Whyel, 23.

Charles and his brother George, 33, were slain in a knife battle with Nellie's enraged brother while Nellie looked on, District Attorney Wade K. Newell reported today. The girl's brother, Harry, 27, was seriously wounded in the fight.

The family feud was caused by the persistent advances young Charles made on the affections of the girl, Newell said.

FIGHT FOR KNIFE

George Whyel was a brother-in-law of the young man who today was charged with the double murder, but the marriage relationship was forgotten when the three men fought for possession of a butcher knife on the porch of the Whyel home at Gray's Landing, a mining settlement.

Nellie's brother, Harry, readily admitted the fight, according to Newell, who quoted him as saying:

"Yes, I killed them both, but it was on account of Nellie."

HURLS CHALLENGE

Eye-witnesses told Newell that young Harry strode on to the Whyel porch, threw down the butcher knife and shouted:

"There it is—may the best man win out."

In the fight that followed Charles Whyel rolled down the steps, mortally wounded in the back, and his brother, George, in fleeing, fell dead in the street when the knife was plunged in his back, according to the police.

A few weeks ago Nellie's father, William Dugan, was punched in the eye when he told Nellie's suitor to stay away, so it was said.

George Whyel was married to Nellie's sister, Bessie, mother of his five children. The accused killer, Harry, has a wife and two children.

30-CENT ROUTE BY TROLLEY, BUS CHOSEN

Combination Plan for Both Playgrounds Selected

Plans to provide cheaper bus transportation to North and South Parks today resulted in the selection of 30-cent round trip routes to begin Sunday.

County officials and bus company executives went over the routes. A combination of street car and bus transportation will be provided by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company and the Brentwood Motor Coach Company. The companies' co-operative move to provide cheaper transportaton resulted from the County Commissioners' application to the Public Service Commission to operate county-owned buses.

Two routes will be available to North Park. Special tickets will be sold on street cars within the one-fare zone to reach either the end of the Millvale or West View trolley lines. Pittsburgh motor coach buses will continue transportation to the park. From Millvale, the buses will use Babcock boulevard to the Kummer road park entrance. That road will be followed to the golf course where the buses will turn, returning to the Ingomar road and thence through the park to Babcock boulevard and back to Millvale.

West View terminal buses will use Perry highway to Ingomar road and thence to the park. In meeting the intersection with Kummer road, the buses will go to the golf course and follow the other route to Babcock boulevard, returning to West View via Keown Station to Perry highway.

The same combination ticket will be available to South Park via the Carrick street cars. Passengers will board buses of the Brentwood firm at the Brentwood trolley terminal. The buses will continue to use the present route through the park, reaching the swimming pool.

The schedule is tentatively set for daily trips at intervals of one and a half hours from 10:30 a. m. until 8:40 p. m. A 45-minute schedule is planned for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

AUTO REWARD SEEKER HELD

Accused of attempting to collect $25 from a man before he would return a stolen automobile, George Foreman, 21, of 128 Trent street, was held for court today in Central Police Court charged with larceny and misdemeanor.

Morris Loeb, of 302 South Pacific avenue, testified his car was stolen Saturday. Saturday night he received a telephone call from Foreman, he said, in which he was told he would get his car back for $25.

Taking city detectives with him, Loeb went to see Foreman and gave him a check for $25 and was shown his car about four blocks away, stripped of accessories.

Foreman said he paid $25 to thieves in order to obtain the car for the owner.

Gypsy Woman Freed On Fake Cure Charge

A black-eyed gold earring gypsy was found by County Detectives Samuel Riddle and John W. Geisler in a false fold of a tent in the Gypsy camp on Abers Creek road, Finley Township, today.

Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren said she was Dorothy Stanley, charged by Robert Finley, of 10 Chartiers avenue, Idlewood, with mulcting him out of $130.

She promised to cure his sick son, Robert Jr., detectives said he told them, for which he gave her $100, and promised as much more.

Murren declared he would file charges of obtaining money under false pretense against the woman but Finley was satisfied when the woman returned the money. He dropped the case.

With the woman was her year-old son, Johnny-boy, and her father-in-law, Frank Stanley. Her husband, she said, was in Chicago.

Finley told detectives, they said, that she frequently called him on the phone and demanded more money. He first saw her at a carnival with which she was traveling.

MENU CONTEST SHOWS WIDE APPEAL

Judged from the stacks of mail and the number of telephone calls received by the Contest Editor of the Sun-Telegraph, there has never been a contest conducted by any newspaper in Pittsburgh that has so solidly attracted the attention and interest of housewives. When 2,000 or more housewives shop for prices every week and then sit down and arrange a dinner menu as a contest entry, it is an accepted fact that they are aroused to the benefits of the test that is put before them.

In answering the question "Can four persons be served with a well-balanced appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?" many of the women have sent in real classics from the standpoint of household economics and it has been no easy matter for the judges to select the winners.

The interest of the women grew greater and greater from the very start of the Prudence Penny $100 weekly cash prize dinner menu contest—so great that the Sun-Telegraph started Contest No. 5 yesterday based on the question printed above. Contest No. 4 closes tomorrow night. The winners will be announced Friday. Contest entries for No. 5 must be submitted before Tuesday night, July 18.

The Prudence Penny contest is open to housewives wherever the Sun-Telegraph is read. There is an entry blank and complete set of rules on another page of today's Sun-Telegraph, and there is also plenty of time to go after one of these liberal cash awards totaling $100.

There is no limit to the number of entries any one person may submit. If additional entry blanks are needed they may be obtained for the asking at any one of these leading retail stores: Butler's, Krogers, Triangle Clover Farm, Donahoe's or McCann's.

YOUNG 'MATTY' LOSES LEG

SHANGHAI, July 10.—(AP.)—Lieut. Christy Mathewson, Jr., son of the famous baseball pitcher, who was gravely injured last January 8 in an airplane crash in which his bride was killed, had his left leg amputated above the knee, it was learned yesterday.

The amputation was made necessary by the failure of an infection and compound fracture to heal. For six months Mathewson has waged a courageous battle to survive his serious injury, undergoing several major operations. Following the amputation of his leg, however, his progress has been marked.

The flier's mother, who was in Shanghai at the time of the accident, is planning to take her son to America July 22. He will enter Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, for further treatment.

Mathewson hopes to return to China and resume his position in the government flying school as a ground instructor.

VETS TO BALK BONUS HIKES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Disabled American veterans, through their new commander, Joseph W. McQueen, of Kansas City, promised today that they will not sanction any bonus marches on the capital, because such things can "do little good, but cause much suffering and put the veteran in a false light."

McQueen said, though, that "we look forward to the coming session of Congress with supreme confidence that changes will go far towards removing the inestimable human misery resulting" from the economy act passed last session. He added:

"President Roosevelt, through two revisions, has indicated his desire to improve conditions, but we feel the public is prepared to go considerably further."

Airways Buys New 226-Mile Planes

BEER AVAILABLE TO GUARDSMEN

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 10.—(AP.)—Whether beer continues to be available at Pennsylvania's National Guard canteens depends on how the guardsmen handle the privilege.

Brig. Gen. Edward Martin, commander of the 55th Infantry Brigade and also Republican state chairman, warned his command yesterday against the abuse. He said continuance of the experiment of selling beer at canteens depends on the men's behavior.

The first units to start summer field training are pretty well settled in their quarters and actual training gets under way today.

Three enlisted men are on the casualty list already and are confined to the camp hospital. One was bitten by a snake, one suffered blood poisoning and another dislocated a cartilage in his knee while moving equipment.

Triangle in One House Not 'Sensible' to Law

Jay and Lyda in Cells As Ex-Wife Puzzles Over Their 'Crime'

RACINE, Wis., July 10.—(INS.)—The machinations of the law puzzled Jay Beegle as sat in his dreary and lonely cell in the county jail here today, contemplating the 18-month penitentiary sentence he is about to serve.

Beegle's "eternal triangle" was equilateral, until the law stepped into his happy home and made it "acute."

In another cell sat pretty blonde Lyda Weber, 22, sentenced to 90 days in jail.

And in the little cottage where Beegle, Lyda, and Beegle's divorced wife, Linda, had lived in domestic felicity, Linda watched the two children at play, wondered how she would support them while their father paid society for some crime which she could not understand. For she declared:

"If Jay was doing wrong, it was the children and me he was wronging. But we were all living happily together until policemen came and took away Jay and Lydia."

WAS HAPPY HOUSEHOLD

Beegle was divorced from his wife June 27 but under Wisconsin law couldn't remarry for a year. Lyda was censured at home because of the affair with Beegle and the resultant divorce, so the Beegles decided to have her live with them.

Despite the unique situation the household was a happy one. Mrs. Beegle was fond of Lyda. Lyda liked the children, Doris, 8, and Richard, 6.

But a complaint was made, warrants were issued, and Beegle and Lyda were arrested on statutory charges.

They pleaded guilty and were sentenced, Beegle to a penitentiary term and Lyda to three months in the county jail. Neither can understand it, but they had no money to fight the charges.

COTTAGE AWAITS LYDA

Mrs. Beegle indicated that Lyda would return to the little cottage, live with her and the children, until Jay is released from prison 18 months hence. Then his year will be up and he will be free to marry Lyda.

Beegle had declared when asked about the curious situation:

"It was just sensible. I told my wife about Lyda. There was trouble, of course. But I found I couldn't forget Lyda. She couldn't change her feelings toward me. So we worked the thing out sensibly—or at least it seemed sensible to the three of us."

But it didn't seem sensible to the law.

He was born in Ashland, Pa., and had served at Cresson since 1909, coming there from St. Brigid's Church, Pittsburgh. He entered the hospital June 1.

Legless Newsie to 'Hike' to Coast

Friend to Travel With North Sider On Coast Trek

Loss of both legs does not keep John Butcher, 53, North Side, close to home. Butcher, accompanied by a friend, Andrew Yekimawiz, 21, also of the North Side, plans to hitch-hike to Los Angeles, starting tomorrow.

When asked about food, Butcher stated:

"I plan to sell papers in almost every town I go into and the little bit I make from selling them will go for food. But that is the least of my worries."

He lost his legs in a train wreck at the age of 12.

His trip to California won't be his first long journey. Last fall he hitch-hiked to New York in three days. Going up hills, he says, he held on to bumpers of automobiles and then coasted down the other side.

Butcher is writing a book about his experiences. During his western trip he hopes to get more material.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

SYNTHETIC BABY BIRTH HELD NO MIRACLE

Prominent Pittsburgh obstetricians joined today in agreement that the Los Angeles "synthetic" babies of Mrs. Wesley J. Hommel are perfectly possible and not the result of any difficult feat of science. For ethical reasons, all asked that their names be not published. They pointed out that the same method was quite familiar to stock raisers.

One doctor said:

"Such treatment is necessary sometimes when a mechanical obstruction makes it impossible for a couple desiring a family to have babies. There is nothing difficult about it."

Another declared:

"Well, I wouldn't do it in such a case as the one reported. It doesn't sound ethical to me. And, anyhow, the man would soon change his mind. Of course, between man and wife, it's perfectly all right."

Physician Sued by Ex-Wife Also 'Miracle Man'

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(INS.)—Science is capable of many seeming miracles, and the miracle of the "synthetic baby" is among them.

Although involved in the civil suit against him brought by his former wife, Mrs. Mate Hommel, during which she told an amazing story of her three allegedly fatherless "children of science," it was as a physician, interested only in the physiological aspects his divorced wife's revelation, that Dr. Wesley J. Hommel made this statement today.

According to the small, blonde Mrs. Hommell's startling disclosures on the witness stand during a session of acting Superior Judge Bertin Weyl's Court, her three lovely daughters in their early teens have as a father a man whom she, herself, never saw until the youngest girl was several months old.

KNOWN TO SCIENCE

Today, Dr. Hommel, whom she met and married years after the strange, "scientific advent" of her trio of daughters, stated that so-called "synthetic motherhood" is a seemig phenomenon not unknown to medical science. He declared:

"I have, in fact, performed half a dozen such 'miracles,' myself, since I began practicing medicine."

Dr. Hommel said he preferred not to discuss the story which his ex-wife told in court, declaring only his fondness for the girls, whom he adopted when he married their mother, and pointing out that the strange circumstances surrounding their birth should in no way threaten the normalcy of their lives, nor their happiness: He concluded:

"Their mother's story is a remarkable one, but, if true, involves circumstances recognized throughout the medical world as ethical and proper."

VIVID STORY

Threaded through the cold, scientific facts of Mrs. Hommel's revelation was vivid rama. She testified:

"I was married to James Shelley, of Detroit, and we had no children. Unhappy and lonely, we at last held a family consultation; by 'we' I mean my husband, his mother, my mother and our doctor, a Dr. John Dunwoody. We were seeking a father for my children-to-be.

"At last, Dr. Dunwoody found someone. I didn't know who it was then. I became a mother. I had three girls in two years. They are now 15, 14 and 13 years old.

"We were happy with these three darling babies. But then, we made a mistake. We brought the children's father into our home that he might enjoy his daughters, too. And he fell in love with me—and I with him. There was a divorce from Mr. Shelley and I was to marry him.

"But fate often alters the laws of 'mice and men.' I met Dr. Hommel, and married him instead."

Physician Who Directed Synthetic Births Dead

DETROIT, July 10.—(INS.)—The only man who could tell the whole story of Mrs. Mae Hommel's three "scientific children," can never speak.

Dr. John Franklin Dunwoody is dead. Records revealed here today that the physician whose "marvelous scientific discovery," according to Mrs. Hommel, enabled her to have three daughters by a man she had never seen, died in 1919.

NAZIS FOREVER, SAYS HITLER

DORTMUND, Germany, July 10.—(AP.)—The training of citizens for the new Nazi state is the next task of the German government, Chancellor Adolf Hitler believes.

In it, reduction of unemployment will play an important part, he said, pointing out that in the five months the Hitlerites have been in power the number of idle has been cut by 2,000,000. Hitler added:

"If we make a false step, we will start over again the next day. We will restore the people's consumption capacity, thereby imbuing them with fresh courage to face life."

He said a new concordat between Germany and the Holy See would bar "priests forever from interfering with politics" and asserted the German political party system would never be resurrected. The Nazi regime, he said, would endure forever.

BABY KILLED, 3 HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. Irene Van Briggle, 27, of Bridgeville, who was injured in an automobile crash at Bigelow boulevard and Kirkpatrick street Saturday night, in which her infant daughter, Caroline, was killed, was reported in a serious condition in the Mercy Hospital today.

Her husband, Basil Van Briggle, suffered a broken right hip and a crushed foot.

E. L. McAllister, 1300 Beechview avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture. He was, police say, the driver of the other car.

PRIEST'S CLIMB NEARLY FATAL

FALSE PASS, Alaska, July 10.—(AP.)—Father Bernard Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest," was back here safe today after the second successful ascent of Shishaldin volcano, during which he said the expedition ended "almost fatally."

Already the conqueror of the dangerous Munimak Island peak while it was in eruption last year, Father Hubbard reported that this season his party was repulsed twice in six weeks before the summit was reached, on July 3.

Father Hubbard said:

"While struggling along the perilous glacier on the cone, a sudden gale registering at least 80 miles an hour swept our party off its feet and blew the men helpless along the swirling snows.

"In the lea of an ice pinnacle, we managed to get a fly tent over our heads. There, four men and three pack dogs, crouched freezing for hours, until a slight lessening of the gale allowed us to get to the bottom of the mountain."

When the summit was finally reached, he said, the mountain again "blew a blizzard" at the climbers, and all had to enter the gassy, steaming cone at the top to thaw out their clothes and freezing fingers before starting downward.

FATHER SPURS SONS TO TENNIS PEAK

HAVE YOU EVER wondered about the source of the tennis greatness of the O'Loughlins? Has it not occurred to you that there must have been a starting point, a background, an inspiration or a spurring influence for the racquet-swinging talent that has brought so much net fame to one family? Well, you can find the answer in a mild-mannered but determined little Irishman named Larry O'Loughlin. He is the father of the great O'Loughlin trio of the courts—Dr. Dave, the physician; Dr. John, the dentist, and Billy, the Pitt student.

Larry O'Loughlin

You can take it from William Pfarr, Sun Telegraph news writer and a lifetime friend of the family, that Larry is the man behind it all. Not only did the O'Loughlin boys inherit their athletic ability or aptitude, for Larry himself was a star athlete in his day, but it was their father who continually spurred them on. He was not alone determined that they should receive college educations and be fitted for professional careers. He was equally determined that the physical side should not be neglected, and he picked out tennis as the route to development.

FROM THE TIME when each of his sons was old enough to hold a racquet Larry kept urging them to play tennis. Most of his later life he has spent making them keep at it. It was tennis, tennis, tennis, day after day. Larry was the one who drove them on, and their present eminence in the net sport is due to the encouragement and insistent prodding of their father more than to any other factor.

Oddly enough, tennis was not one of the games followed by Larry himself in his younger years, though he was an ace in almost everything else. In Ireland, more than 40 years ago, he was the coxswain for the Lee Boat Club in County Cork. For Queens College, in Cork, he also played football and cricket.

IN THIS COUNTRY, and particularly in the Pittsburgh district, the senior O'Loughlin added to his sports activities. He represented the old Pittsburgh Athletic Club, one of the foremost organizations of its time, in the track and field meets that were held at the Larimer avenue field.

In the meet of 1897, Larry was entered in the 100-yard dash, the hop-step-and-jump, amateur boxing and sack race. If he missed anything, it was just an oversight.

DID YOU EVER hear of a 120-pound fullback in football? That was Larry. One-twenty was all that he weighed soaking wet when he played fullback for an old P. A. C. team. He recalls that one of the notable opponents of his club was the McConway and Torley Tiger eleven. So it's not to be wondered at that the younger O'Loughlins have reached such heights in sports with the background that their father provided. They're merely carrying out a family tradition. There are two feminine members of the family who never reach the papers, but who, until a few years ago, were active in track events. They are Mary and Catherine O'Loughlin, daughters of Larry. At one track meet in Cambria County they took nine prizes. Mary, besides being a school teacher in Pittsburgh, is also a member of the bar.

Carl Hubbell

THOUGH CARL HUBBELL, knocked out yesterday, denies feeling any ill effects of that 18-inning 1-to-0 performance of eight days ago, several other players still express the opinion that he will feel the strain of it later in the season. The Giant pitcher lost six pounds during that marathon, but says he has recovered the weight.

Four years ago, in New York, Hubbell hurled a no-hit game against the Pirates, but he thinks his 18-inning victory was the better pitched. "To pitch a no-hitter, you've got to be lucky," the southpaw said. "This time I didn't need any breaks."

SPEAKING OF NO-HIT games, Mal Eason, an old favorite in these parts and now owner of a sheep ranch at Silver City, Ariz., is visiting in Brooklyn, where he used to pitch. Eason pitched a no-hit game for the Dodgers against St. Louis on July 20, 1906, and declares that he never used a curve ball in doing it.

In the same season, on August 1, another Brooklyn pitcher had a tough-luck experience in an even better performance. Harry McIntire shut out Pittsburgh for 10 innings without a hit, but lost to Lefty Leifield in the thirteenth, when the Pirates scored one run.

ANSWERING SOME QUERIES from "A McKeesporter:" 1. The only Pirate pitcher ever to pitch a no-hit game was Nick Maddox, in defeating Brooklyn, 2 to 1, at Exposition Park, on September 20, 1907. 2. Alvin Crowder never pitched in a major league game for Pittsburgh, as he was turned back to Birmingham after the training trip of 1926. 3. George Pipgras pitched the first four innings for the Yankees in the exhibition game against the Pirates at Forbes Field on July 5, 1923. 4. If the first sacker touches his base first to retire the batter, the runner on first who has started for second has a right to return to first base if he can get there, as the retirement of the batter removes the force. 5. If the fielder touched only the original man on third, with no force and two occupying that base, and the other runner got back to second, the umpire was wrong in calling out the man on third. Nobody was out. The fielder should have touched the man who came over from second. A runner is entitled to a base until he has touched the next one, has been retired, or is legally forced to vacate the base for a succeeding runner. He is not forced to leave a base when any base behind him is empty.

PLAYING AWAY FROM home has brought the expected change in the fortune of the Giants. Terry's men have lost six straight games—two to the Braves and four to the Cubs—and their comfortable pennant lead of a week ago has been sliced to three and a half box scores. The Pirates, even though they dropped to fourth place while idle yesterday, were only four and a half games from the top today.

At the same time, the Bucs were only a game and a half out of the second division and ahead of the fast-going Braves, who open a four-game series here tomorrow. It's another of the open races for which the National League is famous. Only 12½ games separate the leaders and the tailenders. In the American League, where the flying Senators have won 23 of their last 26 contests, the difference between first and last places is 22½ games.

THERE'S ANOTHER PITTSBURG minus the "h" out in Kansas and if Johnny Gilbert, who resides there, had not made it prominent already by riding more winners than any other jockey in 1932, the town would be bidding for sports notice in another direction.

Lou Brouillard

Ernie Schmidt, star center of the Pittsburg Teachers' College five, scored exactly 1,000 points in four years of basketball. Entering his final game, Schmidt needed 14 points to bring his total up to 1,000, and he scored precisely the 14 required—no more and no less.

THE TROUNCING THAT Mickey Walker took from Lou Brouillard in Boston last week not only failed to upset the bout between Walker and Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight championship, which has been allowed to stand for July 20 in the Long Island City Bowl, as originally scheduled, but it made a second title match in another division, for it is now intended to send Brouillard against Ben Jeby for the middleweight crown at the Polo Grounds in New York on July 26, provided Jeby beats Young Terry in Newark, N. J., tonight. It will be quite a busy summer in upper glovedom if all plans go through. On Wednesday night Billy Petrolle will try a comeback against Bep Van Klaveren, the unbeaten Dutchman, at the Polo Grounds. A return match between Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri is set for September 13 at Yankee Stadium, and Jack Sharkey has accepted an offer of 40 per cent, with a $25,000 guarantee, to meet King Levinsky on September 29 at Comiskey Park in Chicago, and signed for three indoor bouts in New York.

Fist Fight Marks Library Polo Win

The South Park Polo Club came from behind to defeat the Old Furnace riders of Zelienople, Pa., 10 to 4, in a Western Pennsylvania Polo Association game on the South County Park field yesterday.

A fist fight marked the game between the Library trio and the Chartiers Heights team. Dr. Weisz, of the Chartiers club, and W. T. Phillips, of Library, came to blows over a disputed verdict. The Library team won the game, 4 to 3.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Tony Herrera, the cool-'em-off gent from Chicago, is in our midst again, for a 10-round shindy at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight. Herrera is the mittician they send for any time a lightweight gets too hot around here. Lew Raymond, of Baltimore, got hot when he defeated Billy Holt, Homewood Negro puncher, in his local debut, recently, and so now Tony is here to cool him off tonight.

Lew Raymond

Tony figures to do that job well within his stride, for he is just so good when right that he should be in there fighting it out for the lightweight title with the Barney Rosses and Tony Canzoneris. He hasn't had a real break yet; but for this fact he might be the ruler of the class today instead of having to sit by and see Ross up there getting ready for a return bout with Canzoneri. It is inconceivable to the local fans, who have seen Tony in so many good fights, that he wouldn't make it plenty hot in any man's ring for both Canzoneri and Ross.

A STURDY FOE

Raymond is a sturdy fighter who doesn't back up when the going is tough. He got the well-known old acid that night he broke in here, for his opponent, Holt, never was better. The battle rated as one of the best ever staged here, and was so close that it could have been given either way. Lew, who is a nephew of Vince and Joe Dundee, earned the right to be brought back against a worthy foe, and here he is in there with Herrera, who is all set to cool him off.

Fritzie Zivic and Don Asto head the preliminary card of three six-rounders with a return bout. The show gets under way at 9 o'clock.

Matchmaker Jules Beck, of the North Braddock Bowl, expects to complete his bill today for his show Thursday night, in the main bout of which Sunny Jim McVey, local Negro heavyweight, boxes Frankie Simms, of Cleveland. Frankie Ryan, of Cherlestown, W. Va., boxes Lloyd Clements in another 10-rounder.

BAER IN EXHIBITION

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 10.—(AP.)—Max Baer, leading contender for the heavyweight boxing championship, will fight a four-round exhibition here tonight with Babe Hunt, of Ponca City, Oklahoma's outstanding heavyweight. Jack Dempsey will referee.

PRO FOOTBALL LOOP CARDS PLAYOFF

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—The National Professional Football League, grown up to a 10-club circuit, will decide its championship by a playoff next season, opening with the Chicago Cardinals at Pittsburgh September 13.

The league will be divided into two sections, with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn and Boston in the eastern end, and Green Bay, the two Chicago clubs (Bears and Cardinals), Portsmouth, O., and Cincinnati in the West.

They will play the usual intersectional schedule, but the leaders of the two divisions will meet for the title.

The schedule calls for Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to play on week nights until the Pennsylvania blue laws are changed to permit Sunday games.

Green Bay will open on September 17 with Boston, and the champion Chicago Bears will get into action a week later.

Joe E. Carr, of Columbus, O., was re-elected president and secretary, and Carl Strock, of Detroit, again was elected vice president and treasurer.

California Seeks 1934 Crew Races

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 10.—Southern California has been bitten by the sculling bug. Despite the fact that the National intercollegiate crew races on Saturday failed to draw $2,500 needed to sponsor the affair, plans already are being made to bring back the races here next year.

Cornell, and not Harvard, finished third in the race. Washington was first and Yale second.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, July 10.—So far, the 1933 season of the Phillies has been the biggest washout since the Johnstown flood. Why, just Chuck Klein and eight clothing dummies should have won more games than they have so far this year.

Nick Altrock

Of course, it would help out the Phils if they could take their own ball park with them when they go out on the road. But even during home stays the team has acted like a nest of tsetse flies had bitten them.

No wonder the campaign for Sunday ball in Pennsylvania has simmered down. The Philadelphia fans would be satisfied if the Phils would only play baseball on week days.

GIBSON HOPES TO GET ACES INTO SHAPE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The collapse of the Pirate pitching in the past few weeks has irked Manager George Gibson to such a degree that Gibby has practically issued an ultimatum to his sharpshooters. Intensive morning practice sessions have been ordered by the Pirate skipper, who since he entered baseball more than 30 years ago, believes there is no substitute for hard work in the diamond game.

Gibson's theory has been challenged by many baseball men, some of whom might take the position that the Pirates have been worked too hard recently. But the Pirate boss is adamant and during the present home stay of the Bucs there will be plenty of morning activity in the Oakland Orchard while the dew is on the grass.

The manager is hounding his hurlers since they went into a slump.

The Pirates yesterday defeated the Jamestown, N. Y., Spiders, 13 to 6, in an exhibition game at Jamestown. Honus Wagner played a part of the contest. The score:

CHAPTER FIVE

THE 'AMBLING ALP' ON AMERICAN SCENE IN 1930

By PRIMO CARNERA, World Heavyweight Champion

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Police actually had to force a way for me through overflow crowds outside Stillman's Gym, in New York City, where I trained every afternoon for my American debut at Madison Square Garden in January, 1930. The papers were full of my feet and fists, and other giant lore, and, while nearly all this publicity was what you call "kidding," it did attract much mob interest so that the Garden was packed when I leaped over the top rope to box Big Boy Peterson, reputed then to be a fair trial horse. But he made a most feeble showing against me, going down and out after I had hit him a few hard belts.

Primo Carnera

The next day, nearly all the New York newspapers severely scored the bout as a "fake," denouncing Peterson as a "diver," and—that was the start of a lot of other like blasts.

All I can say is to pledge my word that, if "fixing" went on, I knew nothing of it. Green as I was in 1930, there was no need to make my opponents quit, because I could have hammered such battlers as Big Boy Peterson to defeat, anyway. Many of them, I am sure, I did stop quickly and fairly; but scandal naturally spread because of the many one and two-round knockouts, most of which bouts were about as easy as light training camp sparring workouts, except I was always leveling to win as quickly as possible.

THE 'SET-UP' CRY

In other words, I was really training in public at most of my showings in 1930. Instead of knocking more or less tough sparmates around in a "gym," I went through such paces in exhibition style from one coast to the other in the United States. In most places, where I boxed, the newspapers denounced the shows in advance and yet crowds jammed the halls to see "the giant freak" knock over what the reports scorned as "another set-up." And so, following Peterson, Elziar Rioux, Cowboy Bill Owens, Buster Martin, Jim Sigman, Man Mountain Erickson and Farmer Lodge were punched out or passed out in a round or two, until that most interesting night (for me) when I met Roy (Ace) Clark in Philadelphia, on March 3, 1930.

Clark, a rangy Negro, all but ruined by first American tour through giving me a black eye—the biggest, perhaps, that ever closed a human eye. Ace landed that damaging punch early in the fifth round, and I made the mistake that many boxers do of blowing my nose to clear the vision. That only increased the swelling so that when the bell sounded and I went to my corner M. See looked aghast. A club doctor and one of the boxing authorities were threatening to stop the fight because they feared my eye would burst, but M. See pleaded with them, and then told me that I must 'stop Clark in the next round!

TEST WITH ACE CLARK

So I tore into the Negro, putting everything I had in three body smashes. I knew Ace was tired and those blows did the trick. He collapsed and was counted out. Had he been able to open my big eye or had I failed to stop him in the sixth, Ace would have had a technical K. O over me and that would have been a great setback just then.

Ever since, some critics insist that Clark could have beaten me had he wanted to. I certainly doubt that, but surely he gave me one black eye that "protruded like a lobster's," as M. See said. Ah, the woods seem full of men who could have licked Carnera! If they could—where are they today?

After that Philadelphia black eye (and I remember Ace Clark by that!) I bowled over Sully Montgomery, Chuck Wiggins, Frank Savita, George Trafton, Jack McAuliffe and Neil Clisby in one-two round order while press protests grew terrific over the so-called "tank tour." Most of the opposition were green, strong boys or shop-worn veterans, it is true. Even if they tried their best, I am sure I could have beaten them down. Meanwhile I was gaining experience, the "feel" of the ring, crowds, etc.

THE TRAVELING SALESMAN

And what traveling I did! New York, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Jacksonville, Omaha, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities that just now slip my mind were visited by me during the first five months of 1930. By rail and sometimes by air we were on the move most of the time.

Finally, in April, I ran into a great mass of trouble at Oakland, Cal., when I boxed Maurice Chevalier, also called Bombo. As usual, "set-up" was the cry in the newspapers. It was an open-air arena, and a light rain fell throughout the bout. In the first round I slipped, but fortunately did not twist an ankle. My corner cautioned me to be careful with my footwork, so I boxed Bombo—as carefully as I then knew how—right up into the sixth round, when I pounded him to the floor. He took the count of nine; then arose. Suddenly a towel shot into the ring from his corner, much confusion and terrific booing resulting when the Negro was called the loser on a technical K. O.

The next day the papers fairly shrieked "fake." I felt terribly bad myself over the queer ending of that bout, which I certainly was winning when the towel was tossed so mysteriously after Bombo got to his feet.

BARRED IN MANY STATES

In investigation followed, the boxing authorities putting a ban on me, and most other states in America soon did the same. Personally I convinced the investigators that I had nothing to do at all with the towel-tossing, but my managers were suspended and so was I. Some urged that I be deported and things surely looked blacker than Bombo's skin or that eye that Ace gave me in Philadelphia.

But I kept on my itinerary, working in states that had not yet prohibited my exhibitions. I stopped Sam Baker, K. O. Christner and two or three others in from one to four rounds, and then faced what critics said should be my first real test in America—the Godfrey match. And until Black George fouled me badly in the fifth round that Philadelphia bout (June 23, 1930) was a real fight, indeed.

Outside of Stribling, perhaps, Godfrey easily was the best boxer I had yet faced, and during four rounds we exchanged many heavy blows before a huge crowd in the ball park. We battled rather fast, too, and the fans seemed pleased until the Negro hit me twice (very hard) in the groin, causing me to collapse from pain and temporary paralysis. We were wearing the regular old-style protectors and George's low blows actually dented mine, leaving bluish marks on the flesh that did not disappear for several days.

THE GODFREY BOUT

Soon afterwards Godfrey was fined and suspended for a long time because of what the boxing board declared were "deliberate fouls." Stories were published that he had refused to take a knockout, but had agreed with "fixers" to foul out. I knew, and know, nothing about that angle of the match. But I do know

GIANTS' LEAD CUT AS CUBS COP TWO

Associated Press.

The nation's baseball fans today were faced with the task of keeping one eye focussed upon George Herman (Babe) Ruth and the other upon the Chicago Cubs, who have forced their way into the thick of the National League race.

Ruth, the old gentleman who has been reported "through" at various times for the last half dozen years, hoisted three home runs into the bleachers at the Yankee Stadium yesterday and personally conducted the Yanks to two victories over the Detroit Tigers, 11-7, 7-6. The three circuit swats, which drove in six runs, lifted the Babe's total to 22 and left him only two behind Jimmie Foxx, of the Athletics.

YANKS GAIN ON NATS

The Yanks, however, gained only a half game and remained four behind the Washington Senators, who scored three runs in the first inning and edged out Cleveland's Indians, 3 to 2.

The Cubs climbed into third place in the National League, passing the idle Pittsburgh Pirates, as they took a pair of games from the pace-setting New York Giants, 4-0 and 2-1. They ran their string of victories to five games and New York's defeat chain to six.

The Giants collected only 10 hits altogether off Lon Warneke and Bud Tinning and the latter, after battling Fred Fitzsimmons on the hill in brilliant style, drove in the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game.

The double defeat reduced the Giants' lead over St. Louis to 3½ games, but the Brooklyn Dodgers kept things from becoming worse by dividing a twin bill with the Cardinals. A triple by Ralph Boyle with two aboard in the eleventh gave Brooklyn an 8-6 decision in the opener, but Tex Carleton turned in a seven-hit shutout and St. Louis won the second game, 2 to 0.

BRAVES WIN TWO

The Boston Braves' winning streak took them above the .500 mark for the first time this season as they won two close games from the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2 and 3-1. The first game went 10 innings before a hit batsman and a couple of singles off Paul Derringer produced the winning run. Wally Berger socked his sixteenth homer in the opener.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns divided a doubleheader, the Sox winning the first contest, 4-0, behind the five-hit flinging of George Pipgras and the Browns pounding out a 9-2 victory in the nightcap. Jim Levey, St. Louis shortstop, was injured in the opener when a pitched ball hit his arm.

Other major league clubs had an open date.

PRO-AMATEUR TOURNAMENT AT BUTLER

By TOM BIRKS

Two tournaments grace the local golf card today. One, a pro-amateur affair, with the pick of the tri-state paid brigade paired with the leading amateurs of the club, takes place at the Butler Country Club.

The second event finds the assistant professionals and the caddie masters engaging in their semi-monthly tourney over the Edgewood layout.

Tomorrow night the golfers of Schenley Park will give a testimonial dinner to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang. The affair will be held on the porch of the clubhouse.

FLINN, JR., WINS CLUB TITLE

George Flinn, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania State Golf Association, has served notice on the Philadelphia district golfers that he is all set for the state amateur tourney when he won the club championship at Fox Chapel yesterday, defeating Joe Oliver, 2 and 1, in the 36-hole final round.

At the end of 18 holes in the morning round, Flinn was 3 up, quite a commanding lead, and, when the turn was made in the afternoon, Oliver was 4 down. The match ended on the thirty-fifth green. Flinn's medal score showed 148, four strokes over par for the 36-hole match.

COURSE RECORD SET

Fred Brand, Jr., of the Shannopin Country Club, went to work on his dad's layout at Allegheny Country Club yesterday afternoon, and when he had finished an 18-hole round, a new course record was set. He was out in 32, three shots under par, and back in 34, for a 66. Brand, Jr., previously had toured the layout in 65 shots, but that was in the days of the heavy ball.

Regis Wolff and Miss Bette Davies won the mixed foursomes at the Highland Country Club with a card of 84. Mr. and Mrs. H. F. McKnight annexed low net honors with a 97.

Johnny Capebianco set a new course record, touring the Aliquippa Golf Club's nine-hole course, of which he is professional, in 31, five under par.

M. S. Henning received a membership in the Hole-In-One Club yesterday, when he sank his tee shot for an ace on No. 6 at the Thornburg Country Club. He was playing with J. W. Watson, J. W. Hunter and H. A. Harper.

HARRIS' TEAM IN FEATURE

The Parmalee-New Kensington game in the Greater Pittsburgh League, scheduled at the Peabody High School field this evening, has been postponed.

Manager Dinny Moore has been advised that the field is no longer available for league baseball. Community mushball will be played until the season's end.

Two games will be played in the City League this evening. The Cochrans go to Whitaker and Homewood goes to Olympia Park to meet Books.

The Dormont Club won the first half championship of the City League yesterday afternoon at Greenlee Field, defeating Books in the playoff by a 3-to-2 score. Elmer Knetzer, the Carrick baron, was the big factor in the title going to the South Hills. He connected for a couple of hits, one of them a triple in the fourth inning, which accounted for the tying run.

Abe Martin started for Books, but a hit and a walk in the seventh resulted in Bimmy Steele replacing him on the mound.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords dropped two games to the Detroit Stars at Detroit yesterday, the scores being 10 to 2 and 6-5.

At Akron, the Homestead Grays fared much better than the Greenlee Field players, taking both ends of a twin bill from the St. Marthas team, 16 to 5 and 13 to 3. Washington, the Grays' star, had a home run and a double in the first tilt.

YODANIS LOFT PIGEON WINS

The Central Combine Homing Club's 200-mile open pigeon race from Xenia, O., yesterday was won by Bruno Her, of the J. Yodanis loft. Sailer, racing for Joseph Winners, was second by 24 minutes.

Ditto, owned by A. Yodanis, was first in the Lincoln Homing Combine flight from Newark, O. O Haas was second and End of the Line took third.

Fiery Sadie captured the first regular race of the season staged by the North Side Combine, from Xenia, O., flying to the Sunnyview loft in near-record time.

Big Shot, flying for Joseph Hofmeister, won the Lawrenceville Center Club flight from Newark. Mother Goose and Little Henry were second and third.

MOHLER RELEASED

LOS ANGELES, July 10 (AP.)—Orville Mohler, former University of Southern California football star, has been released by the Los Angeles Club of the Pacific Coast League. Mohler was batting well over .300, but his fielding fell short. George Buchanan, southpaw pitcher, also was dropped.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

Whatever may be said of the complexity of the rules of golf, and of the uselessness or unreasonableness of a few of them, as long as they are as they are there can be no argument against strict enforcement. The rules are made to govern play, and no official or competitor has the right to ignore them merely because of his own beliefs or sentiments.

Because there can be no half-way ground, the man who chooses to play in competitions must have a close acquaintance with the rules of the game; and beyond that he must be watchful every moment lest he make a false step. In the course of ordinary play, the rules are simple enough, but the moment something unusual, such as a lost ball, unplayable lie, or the like, turns up, an unwary person or one not thoroughly conversant with the rules, is likely to run into trouble. Several occurrences lately have shown how easily one may incur a serious penalty.

Bobby Jones.

In the recent southern amateur championship, failure to make the correct decision in a tricky situation brought about the disqualification of young Alan Smith, of Asheville, N. C., a fine golfer and one of the favored competitors. It was a grievously unfortunate break for Alan, but it was no less distasteful to the officials, who had no option other than to make the ruling of disqualification.

PLAYING WRONG BALL

The incident occurred on the fourteenth hole of the new course at East Lake in the first qualifying round. This is a short hole of approximately 190 yards, and Smith's tee shot landed in some very long grass 20 or 30 yards to the right of the green. A search of two minutes or so having failed to discover the ball, Smith returned to the tee to play another. This, too, landed in the rough to the right, but was quickly found, and Smith played another stroke with it before his caddie shouted that he had located the first. Thereupon, he gave up playing the second ball, returned to the first, and, playing it onto the green, finished the hole with it.

Of course, there was nothing for the officials to do but to disqualify him when the incident was reported to them, for, as a matter of fact, he never had completed the hole. The rules permit the playing of a provisional ball wherever "a ball has been played onto a part of the course where it is likely to be lost or unplayable," but it has been repeatedly declared that this provisional ball must be played before the player leaves the spot at which his last shot was played. Young Smith had the right to make a search of five minutes before his ball could be declared lost. He did not search more than two minutes, but by returning to the tee, he abandoned the first ball, and could not subsequently resume play with it.

RUNYAN'S HARD LUCK

The disqualification of Paul Runyan is the open championship was another sad necessity which everyone regretted, yet it was the result of carelessness which easily could have been avoided. The marker for Runyan presented his card for Runyan's signature. Paul glanced at the totals, and, on perceiving that they were correct, signed the card and allowed it to be turned in. But the score marked for one hole was lower than it should have been. Runyan himself later reported the mistake, but it was too late. The committee is responsible for mistakes in the totals, but the competitor is required to see that the score for each hole is marked correctly.

Hardly ever does one feel that a disqualified competitor has deserved his fate, for it is rarely the result of an intentional transgression. But each other competitor is entitled to full and equal protection of the rules, and it is the duty of the officials in charge to see that he gets it, no matter how hard it may be upon the unfortunate individual.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

BUSINESS

Second Quarter Reports Will Be Watched With Interest

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

DURING THE NEXT three weeks all eyes of the financial world will be turned to the quarterly reports of leading corporations. These reports will throw a new light on the efficiency of industrial organizations. They will be the first reflection of the effects of recovery on earnings. They will show just how thoroughly many corporations cleaned house during the depression years.

During the years of declining business, income accounts, except in unusual cases, did not mean much. They showed that business was steadily getting slower but they told little about the true value of stocks which represent the ownership of American business.

During 1932, it became generally expected that losses were to be reported. In the cases of only exceptional companies and exceptional industries were large losses avoided.

Economies to Show In Income Accounts

PRACTICALLY ALL corporations took drastic steps to reduce overhead expenses and to achieve the utmost economy in their operations. But the continued decline in sales was so great that the effects of these economies were over baanced. Profits continued to decline. Then losses appeared and the size of losses increased.

In the second quarter of this year, however, business started to increase. As a result of economies, many companies found themselves able to show profits on rates of operation and at prices which would have resulted in losses in the past. While business still is far from good from the standpoint of the standards of 1928 and 1929, many companies will report profits for the three months ended on June 30. The results for this period will provide a measure of operating efficiency except in the cases of industries which have been lagging behind the general recovery.

Investors Will Make Important Comparisons

THE TRUE ABILITY of a company to take advantage of the business recovery cannot be secured by comparisons with the results of companies in unrelated industries, but comparisons with competing companies in the same industry will provide a fairly accurate picture of earning power and the efficiency of management

Indications of the extent to which individual industries are sharing in the recovery can be found by taking the earnings of representative companies in each major group and comparing the improvement with those in other fields of activity.

AIR LINE HITS HIGH RECORD FOR JUNE

Record figures both for efficiency of operation and traffic volume were established by Pennsylvania Airlines during June, it was announced today by H. S. Martin, president. Particularly outstanding was the completion of 100 per cent of the 232 trips regularly scheduled during the month. In addition frequent extra sections were flown to meet heavy passenger demand.

During the month a total of 1,310 passengers were carried between Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Akron and Washington, an increase of 43 per cent over the corresponding month of last year, and 20 per cent over the previous high point.

New records were also set for the volume of air mail carried, which amounted to more than eight tons, exceeding by one and a half tons the heaviest mail load prior to June. Express and freight established a new high mark with a total of two tons. Many various shipments were received in the latter category, one of the most unusual being a crate of live turtles with hand-painted shells. Martin said:

"Plans are under way for the expansion of the service during July to accommodate the increase in business. Three 12-passenger tri-motored air liners have been purchased for this purpose and will be placed into service immediately."

PRIMO WRITES LIFE STORY

that George walloped me hard and often; I did the same to him, and, to this very day, I believe he was weakening badly when he took the foul way out, his arms weary from my punching and mauling, and his aim spoiled by the hot pace of the fight.

Although another uproar of indignation followed the Godfrey foul, it did assure my managers and a few critics that I could "take it," that is, I could stand up under severe punching and fight back, and that I was not the usual overgrown palooka. Bill Duffy, especially, was delighted with my Godfrey showing. Several famous boxing experts, for the first time, had something good to write about my fighting, but most of them still insisted that I was, and would be, nothing more than a circus freak and a lucky palooka.

To that, Monsieur See used to quote an old Arabic saying:

"The dogs bark; the (Carnera) caravan moves on" . . .

FIRST AMERICAN DEFEAT

After a brief but most enjoyable three weeks at Atlantic City, I was off again on my "public gym routine," if you care to call it that. I knocked over George Cook, Australian heavy, in Cleveland; Riccardo Bertazolla at Atlantic City; Pat McCarthy in Newark, and Jack Gross — all within three or four rounds. Nothing wonderful in those feats; the press denounced "the diving act," but there were, at least, many minutes of mixing hard in all of those short bouts, and I was learning more in every bout. Then came my first defeat in America, in my first go with Jimmy Maloney.

HANEY

Recommendations On Stock Purchasing Reviewed

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, July 10.—It may be interesting to readers of this column to glance back at the recommendations for buying stocks which have been given.

All stocks suggested have been sound, and most of them pay dividends. They show what can be done in a "conservative" list, which contains neither cats and dogs, nor speculative high flyers.

ALTHOUGH too slow in becoming convinced that fundamental conditions were good enough to allow such a rise as has occurred, I recommended the purchase of gold mine stocks early in May, devoting a whole article specifically to this subject.

As I recall it, McIntyre, Alaska Juneau and Pioneer then sold around 24, 14 and 8, respectively. They have since gone to 33⅜, 29⅞ and 15, respectively, and are near their highs—a rise of over 50 per cent

ON MAY 29 I recommended the following, the two figures being the price at the time and the recent high: Hercules Powder, 28-63; Mathison Alkali, 24-33¾; Natural Gel Gas, 19-20; Ruberoid, 29¾-35½, Spencer Kellogg, 13-20; Union Tank Car, 17-22¾, and good gold mine shares.

AGAIN ON June 5, I presented the following list: Chessbrough Mfg., 108-115; Chickasha Cotton Oil, 19¼-29; Dow Chemical, 57-60; Gen'l Amer. Transportation, 33-42; Gen'l Mills, 55-71; Hercules Powder, 33-63; Kroger Grocery, 29-35; McIntyre Porcupine, 28-33⅜; Mathieson Alkali, 28-33; Pioneer Gold, 12¾-15; Southern Calif. Edison, 22-28; Standard of California, 32-40; Timkin Roller Bearing, 25-35½.

THEN ON June 22, came these suggestions: Bendix Aviation, 17⅛-20⅞; Briggs Mfg., 11½-13¾; International Cement, 33⅝-39⅛; Great Northern Pf., 22⅝-33¾; Northern Pacific, 23⅝-34⅞; Nat'l Tea, 19⅞-23¼; Standard of Cal., 34⅛-40. (The first figure in each case is the approximate purchase price; the second, the recent high.)

THE ADDITIONAL list presented here on July 7 is too recent to have prove itself. It contained several utilities, Nash Motors, Yellow Truck Tex. Pacific Coal & Oil, and others.

It was given as a speculative At the same time I recommended holding all stocks on the previous lists, especially the gold issues.

THE FOREGOING lists are presented again for several reasons. For one thing, I am as keenly aware as anyone that after being "right" on the market through all the years from 1929 to the middle of 1932 and having anticipated inflation long ago, I still failed to catch the big rise which began April 19. These somewhat belated recommendations are a partial defense.

Again, I think it worth while to note that the policy of sticking to sound, medium-priced issues which have some real merit, is a good one. With the exception of Natural Fuel Gas, all stocks in the above lists have shown a good percentage appreciation. Gains of 5 to 10 points are common, although few of the stocks cost over 30.

THIS SORT of stock causes little worry to the one who buys outright and with his means. Most of them do not gyrate so wildly as the "speculative favorites." Most of them pay dividends. They offer a good diversification.

Some of them have now had such large gains that a stiff reaction would be only natural, and the paper profits on Hercules Powder and General Mills are large enough for the most greedy trader.

IT IS A well-established fact, however, that the vast majority of men who "trade" in and out do not make any more money. Most of them suffer net losses.

Those who make money in stocks generally do it by buying outright the sounder issues while they are depressed, and holding them for months perhaps years.

AT PRESENT, after a long rise and a big increase in brokers' loans, the market is "churning." It is as clear as it has been for several weeks that a good reaction is desirable from the technical standpoint.

Yet profit-taking has been well absorbed, and the rise may be resumed for a while. Moves in Briggs and Crown Zellerbach seem to be contemplated, and the sound gold mine stocks set well. All one can say is that as stocks get higher and higher, increasing caution and selectivity are to be recommended.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Holders of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation numbered 189,569 on June 1, a decrease of 3,299 from March 18, the record date for the annual meeting. The total of preferred stockholders in May, entitled to the dividend, was 63,517 against 63,549 on March 18.

INVENTOR GETS PATENT IDEA IN OCTOPUS

What a spry young octopus displayed in a pet shop window on Liberty avenue in 1906 has to do with modern dental devices in 1933 is not readily apparent, was admitted today by Jacob Petry, 2022 Lowrie street, North Side. But there is a very definite analogy between the fundamental principle of atmospheric pressure exerted by the suction cups on the tips of an octopus's tentacles, and the retaining power applied to artificial dentures, he said.

When Mr. Petry stopped to gaze at the octopus in the pet shop window, he began to speculate on the possibility of applying the natural suction principle exercised by certain marine and land animals and plant life: Frogs, flies, insects, even climbing vines, which had developed suction cup arrangements to maintain them on smooth surfaces. He said:

"For hundreds of years dental practitioners had been trying to improve retainers for artificial dentures. George Westinghouse had struggled with atmospheric pressure in the invention of his famous air-brakes. The Wright brothers dealt with it in their early flying experiments. Why couldn't I apply the principle to retainers for dentures? So I set about to try."

During the last two decades, Mr. Petry has manufactured approximately half a million retainers, distributed throughout the entire world. They are patented in the United States and 13 other countries. He said:

"Every human mouth differs. Standardized retainers cannot be successful because they do not meet individual mouth needs. Because many metal retainers were considered inducive to cancer from constant irritation on the roof of the mouth and pressure on the palatine bone, I created a rubber suction retainer without a metal head. It is joined to a rubberized metal screen and cemented into a flange in the plate with a germicidal copper-oxide cement. Thus no metal touches the mouth."

COAL OUTPUT EXPANDING

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—Coal production keeps going up.

Increases were reported by the Bureau of Mines for both anthracite and bituminous coal during the week ended July 1.

From 5,990,000 tons mined the previous week, bituminous coal output jumped to 6,450,000 tons and anthracite mined in the same period was 1,137,000 tons as compared with 1,015,000 tons the week before.

The report stated the hard coal tonnage was greater than it has been since mid-February and was within 250,000 tons of that mined during the corresponding week of the boom year of 1929.

Pennsylvania bituminous coal production advanced with that of the nation. Output for the week ended June 24 registering 1,784,000 tons, compared with 1,636,000 tons the previous week.

STOCKS WAVER AS TRADING SLOWS UP

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—Dropping dollar rates apparently failed to bring the one-time fast "follow-through" in financial markets today and trading in most categories was of the indifferent type and prices a bit irregular.

The British pound sterling jumped about 10 cents to within reaching distance of its former gold parity and other European currencies were equally strong. Outside of some of the utilities and a few specialties, however, stocks were rather cool toward this further drastic dollar depreciation. The fast pace of the previous week slowed down considerably as many traders hugged the cautionary sidelines.

Wheat was somewhat hesitant at one time, while corn registered new gains along with cotton. The latter got up around $1 a bale. All grains later adjusted themselves to a fairly firm range, most of them showing advances of around a cent a bushel. Bar silver stepped up ¼ of a cent an ounce to 37¼ cents and copper held at the 9-cent level.

Utility shares, which generally have been a little behind the market, were supported for gains of 1 to around 2 points. Among the more active of this group were Consolidated Gas, National Power & Light, International Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, North American and American Power & Light. Bread price advances brought gains of fractions to around 2 points in Ward, Continental "A" and "B" and General Baking.

The U. S. Steel backlog increase in June of around 177,000 tons over that of May was highly cheering to followers of the industrial groups, notwithstanding the seeming lack of response in most of the shares. The Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage showed a decrease of about 150,000 tons last June and has dropped consistently in this month since 1929.

Proponents of the price upswing were not particularly disconcerted by the Federal Reserve System's figures for department store June sales, which showed a slight drop from May. The Reserve Board's index was 66 in June, compared with 67 in May and the same average in April. Sales for June were about 4 per cent smaller than in the same month last year and, for the first six months of 1933, were 15 per cent lower than for the same period in 1932.

Any hiatus in the retail trade situation, some analysts believe, may be corrected as soon as the result of further increases in employment and the stabilization of wages through the adoption and approval by the government of the various "codes" which are provided for in the new industrial recovery act. One reason for the seeming hesitation in public consumption, it is pointed out, was that many workers had been waiting for definite action on payrolls and working time schedules before altering their spending budgets. Once these details are settled, it is argued, postponed buying probably will be felt.

GRAIN VALUES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, July 10.—Grain values turned downward today after an irregular start. Showers in the spring wheat belt both sides of the Canadian border were a handicap to higher prices, and many traders were inclined to hold off pending the United States government crop report due this afternoon. Opening at ¾c decline to ⅛c advance, wheat later showed an all around sag. Corn started ½c lower to ¾c higher and subsequently underwent a general setback.

Advances both in wheat and corn prices followed early setbacks. Unfavorable wheat crop reports from Canada were a stimulus to buyers, and so too were renewed unfavorable advices regarding the United States corn crop outlook.

Corn traders bought on intimations that widespread rains were needed soon in the corn belt, and that a return of high temperatures without such rains would be disastrous. Provisions rose with the corn market, despite downturns of hog values.

GOOD SIGN SEEN IN INVENTORY REPLENISHING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—No one in or out of the government service questions the quantity of the advance in business, though Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator under the national recovery act, has raised some question as to the quality of the movement.

Mr. Rukeyser

Students of the advance have recognized that part of the increased production has gone into inventories rather than into actual consumption. That discovery, though important, does not seem startling to me. The impetus for recovery, after a prolonged depression, usually comes when farsighted business men, sensing a change in trend, decide that it will be profitable to restore depleted inventories. Such anticipation of consumer demand is one of the mainsprings of strength which causes a reversal of the downward spiral.

Though the national recovery administration has done a service in reminding business men of the importance of rehabilitating the consumer, there are also economic advantages in putting the entrepreneur back on his feet.

The business man's plans and developements create employment activity, likewise, the accumulation of business profits have a social value. They put business corporations in such financial position that they are again able to go ahead with capital expenditures, including plant extensions and betterments and the replacement of obsolete with modern equipment.

Usually, in depressions when dynamic shortages are created, the seeds for recovery are planted. In the past, these cyclical changes have been largely unpremeditated. This time the government, in cooperation with business, has assumed a responsibility for rationalizing the process. Accordingly, efforts are being made to keep the statistician's trained eye on excrescenses, and to abort dangerous tendencies before they go too far.

If government officials are to assume a responsibility for the course of the business cycle, they obviously cannot be either bull or bear partisans. In the last "new era" of prosperity, when spokesmen for the former administrations gave expression to their views without any formal code, they usually were found whooping it up for bigger and better times.

Gen. Johnson, however, has broken with that tradition by indicating that the trees of price advance will not necessarily grow uninterruptedly up to the sky.

Mortgagees Asked To Show Leniency

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—In a letter addressed to the 40 title and guaranty mortgage companies under his jurisdiction, George S. Van Schaick, state superintendent of insurance, has asked them to refrain from "harsh and unreasonable" foreclosure actions.

Van Schaick, in making public the letter tonight, said it is "not only humane but in accord with good business to extend time to trustworthy debtors who are temporarily embarrassed."

Steel Tonnage Gain Far Larger Than Anticipated

Unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation on June 30, rose 176,856 tons to a total of 2,106,671 tons, the corporation announced at noon today. The gain was far larger than Wall street had anticipated, estimates having run between 80,000 and 100,000 tons. It was in addition the biggest monthly rise in the backlog since the close of 1930. The rise occurred during a period of advancing schedules for the industry. Steel operations gained 10 per cent during June, rising from 43 per cent of capacity at the end of May to 53 per cent at the close of last month.

The rise of 176,856 tons in United States Steel's unfilled orders in June carried the backlog above the 2,000,000-ton level for the first time since June, 1932. Basing its opinion on reports of a substantial acceleration of demand for steel during the month, Wall street had estimated the tonnage gain at from 80,000 to 100,000 tons. It was figured that the volume of orders would add a liberal margin to the backlog in spite of the sharp increase in mill schedules. The unfilled orders at the end of June crossed the same month last year for the first time since the start of the depression

The June upturn in Steel's forward orders was the third successive increase after months of falling backlogs. Unfilled orders rose 65,000 tons in May, until then the biggest rise in many months. Since 1929 June has shown a decrease in the corporation's tonnage. Last year the drop in June was about 150,000 tons, against 141,000 in 1931, 91,000 in 1930 and 47,000 in 1929. The increase was the largest reported for any month since December, 1930. There were two or three minor gains in tonnage last fall, which with the increases since April were the only interruptions to a string of tonnage losses extending back for nearly two years

Lack of response marketwise to the unexpectedly good showing of the steel tonnage statement was the cause for no little disappointment in speculative quarters. The stock ran up less than a point on a few hundred shares only to fall back again alfost immediately. Failure of the good tonnage showing to stir up more interest in view of the surprising nature of the figures proved generally disappointing, and was susceptible to bearish interpretation in some quarters.

General Motors was unable to respond very definitely to the splendid showing of its June sales figures announced after the close Saturday. The reactionary tone of the general market may have been a factor, but then the stock had perhaps quite liberally discounted the figure in advance. Sales were the best for the month since June 1929, and total shipments exceeded those of June last year by 117 per cent. It was revealed, however, that the company is still ultra conservative in stepping up output and is keeping production geared very closely to actual demand.

The Trader, in Barron's Weekly, says in part:

"Stocks are high in contrast with the levels of February-March, and the advance has been the most rapid on record. These considerations and the exploitation of low-priced issues are the most unhealthy phases of the current situation. In the light of immediate earning power, current prospects, second quarter statements generally, and weighed against the return from cash, however, the general abandonment of equities does not seem warranted. Scores of stocks are just entering a period of impressive earning power."

BRYAN REGAINS HIS HEALTH

LINCOLN, Neb., July 10.—(AP.)—Gov. Charles W. Bryan, Nebraska's third-term Governor, is waging and apparently winning the longest, toughest "campaign" of his career—a campaign for recovery of his health, lost in winning re-election last November.

When Bryan campaigned last fall, he drove himself relentlessly and wound up by catching a cold on election night which led to pleurisy, pneumonia, and later, serious heart trouble. For weeks his life hung in the balance before he began to regain strength.

He left the executive mansion recently for the first time in nearly eight months for an automobile ride to one of his farms near Lincoln.

He resumed hard work in March, but doctors kept him in bed until after the Legislature adjourned in May. Gradually he was permitted to sit up more and more and finally slid into a chair.

FOREST EXPERT KILLS SELF

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 10.—(AP.)—Theodore Salisbury Woolsey, 53, internationally known forestry expert, shot himself to death today at his home. A verdict of suicide was given by Dr. M. M. Scarbrough, medical examiner.

Woolsey, who was cited by Gen. John J. Pershing for his services during the World War and honored by three European governments for his forestry work, was found dead in his bedroom by a maid.

Dr. Scarbrough said Woolsey had been depressed by illness in his family.

Born in New Haven, October 2, 1879, Woolsey was the author of several books on forestry and made studies of the forestry movement in India, Austria, France, parts of Germany, Corsica, Algeria and Tunisia.

SAVAGE PARADISE -:- Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas -:- By MARGARET MATCHES

CHAPTER XLVI.

Transcending all the faults of the tropics and their way of life is the virtue of their whole-souled hospitality. Waifs of the storm, we were welcomed with open arms into this isolated community of islanders. Like an ailing child, I threw myself on the comforting bosom of Lorengau.

I was harbored from that night forward within the native-built grass-roofed bungalow of the trader and his wife, Mike found shelter with the customs officer and his wife, the only other white woman on Manus, and so did the engineer, Caxton took possession of a bamboo outbuilding on the trading station, and dined with us.

It was December, and the gardens of this small clearing of Lorengau were gay. Yellow and crimson hibiscus were like great butterflies. The air was heavy with frangipani and lemon blossoms. Great golden papaws hung ripe and luscious from the heads of tall thin trees, where the flying foxes clung at nighttime. Orchids cascaded from spreading quela trees. The broad road leading from the native hospital at one end of the settlement to jungle at the other end was bordered with feathery casuarina trees whose branches lifted a lyric tracery against the sky.

Word had got back to Lorengau, perhaps by the incomprehensible jungle wireless, that we had foundered. Our presence reassured these good people, though the Nuloa lay stripped of sails and petrol in the lagoon at Naru. She would probably be able to reach Lorengau by herself when her sails were repaired, if the weather remained calm. But the engineer's first act was to wireless Rabaul of our plight and the schooner's position, that the Marsina might go to her rescue if necessary.

BEAUTIFUL ISLAND

Caxton next wirelessed to the effect that he and Mike and I were stranded unless the Marsina picked us up. And, in faith, we were. With the monsoon season upon us, if the Marsina failed us on this round there was no chance of our getting back to Rabaul for the next two months. I didn't mind—one place was as good as another to me, and Lorengau was beautiful—but I visioned Caxton frothing at the mouth in the necessary and complete inactivity of this island station if he were among us long. And it was coming Christmas time.

Distil the essence of your dreams of a South Pacific island, then close your eyes and vision Lorengau on Manus. It is a large island, dominating the Admiralties, and back of the station clearing rise dark green tiers of hills. Some one who cared must have laid Lorengau out. Palms fringe its white beach, and cocoanut palms crest the high hill from which the D. O.'s large bungalow commands sight of the sea and islands for leagues around. A stony road, that lies white in the moonlight, winds bumpily up from the beach to the large bungalow belonging to customs and the adjacent house of Mr. Wireless. The gardens of both bungalows almost tumble over a gorge that sheers, jungle-choked, down to a river that has finished its course to the sea. The river banks are gaudy with ginger flowers, lianas trial from the overhanging branches hung thick with tropic moss.

PLAY TENNIS

At the junction of the roads there is a tennis court, which until we blew in, no one had recently used. But our tennis wasn't much to brag of. It usually took place shortly before sunset. There would always be quite a gallery, for the dozen whites would be supplemented by twice as many entranced kanakas. The kanakas were informally dressed in loin-cloths, their wool free and wild or gathered into a psyche, their bodies welted in strange, geometric tribal markings, their noses spiked with a bone-pin or dangling a shell-ring or crescent. Sometimes a lad girt in a crimson laplap, and with a red hibiscus in his hair, would sit cross-legged in the grass across the road playing a long reed flute plaintively, just to please himself. From a spreading quela tree at one corner of the court there spilled a spray of perfect white orchids. It was the time of the waxing moon, and before the disk of the sun had dipped the great moon was rising, so that while there was yet a flood of deep rose in the west the moon cast a silver shimmer over the water. Imperceptibly day slipped into etheral night.

On such moonlight nights outrigger canoes steal silently into Lorengau from all over the islands, for the island steamer on its rounds will stop here, and the far-living plantations send mail or messages into Lorengau to be held against her arrival. Sometimes the canoes come 50 miles. In such cases, the messenger stops only long enough to leave his dispatch and gather what mail or supplies await his master, then as silently as he has come he turns back to make the best of the full moon.

STA WATER SOLD

Perhaps I loved Lorengau so well because it gave utter peace after turmoil. Awakening there in the morning was a thing apart from all other awakenings of my existence. It was fragrant and cool, with the sweetness of the adjacent jungle and the still closer lemon trees and frangipani. I awoke early, to the murmuring of kanakas talking together as they began the day's work, or passed by the road beyond the garden. I would lean out of my window as I quartered a great green-skinned orange, and watch the pleasing sight of my brown cousins at work while I idled. Sometimes, in the early morning, a string of bush-kanakas passed along, led by half a dozen savage warriors and trailed by their tattooed and grass-skirted marys carrying their babies in baskets on their backs. These came down from the hills to look around and perhaps to barter at the trade-store belonging to my host. Or, as likely, they came down to barter for the sea-water from the natives living along the the beach. For the hill native regards as a luxury the salt he gets from the boiled-down seawater. But it is considered that the sea and its treasure belongs to the native dwellers along its shore, and the salt water is sold by the gourdful to the innocents of the hills.

The beautiful bungalow of the D. O. on the top of a high hill was slowly going to ruin for lack of care, and that of the doctor, on a rising slightly beneath it, was in even sadder condition except for the scarlet splendor of hundreds of hibiscus bushes growing wild around it. For Lorengau had not had a doctor for a long time, and the last D. O. had died and not yet been replaced. He had been a huge man, weighing nearly four hundred pounds. For years the winding climb to his bungalow had been beyond his endurance. So he had a chair built on bamboo poles for him, and every time he went up or down the hillside four kanakas bore him on their shoulders. On the up-hill journey it took eight boys to complete the trip; four started at the foot, and were relieved by four fresh bearers half-way up the hill.

NEWS REPORTS

Who should turn up at Lorengau but Lowforth, whom we had left stranded and jobless with the Dennises. It seemed that he had got a break at last. The Meisters' plantation and comfortable bungalow needed an overseer, and he had landed the job. He was still the same, kindly, shiftless roamer, but there was about him now the air of a man who has a place in the world.

There being a wireless at Lorengau, we got news of the world. This was no Associated Press Bureau, mind you, but we did keep in touch with weather conditions in England and Sydney, rumors of war in China, and the latest aviation achievements. Every day at tea-time Mr. Wireless (no one ever calls him anything else) dropped in on us with a badly typewritten sheet and read off the headlines.

We didn't know what to expect of the Marsina. The first report from Rabaul was that she would stop at Lorengau to pick us up. Two days later the radio message was that she was not going to stop at Manus this trip, in which event we should be stranded over Christmas. Ten days elapsed before we knew we were going to see Rabaul again that year. After all, the Marsina did stop and pick us up.

GO SEPARATE WAYS

In the meantime the Nuloa appeared in Seeadlerhafen. By the grace of God and a fair wind she had made the trip down to safety and plentiful petrol. But the skipper was furious, and we couldn't blame him. He had expected the engineer to land us at Lorengau and then return in the pinnace to Naru. As he had not done so, both the skipper and the mate had concluded that we had come to grief. But the engineer had become so fond of Lorengau and his exceedingly comfortable billet that he had airily waved aside all thought of responsibility. Capt. Alys was torn between relief at our safety and wrath at the casual treatment of his anxiety. For a while he was in high dudgeon. Perhaps it was this incident that finally persuaded the engineer to swallow the anchor and strike out for the gold fields. At any rate he didn't make another trip. Nor did the Nuloa. Weeks after, upon her return to Rabaul, the powers that were decided that the experimental voyage had not been a commercial success. The schooner was reconditioned and sent back to Fiji.

And so we who had adventured together into uncharted waters, and our ship, have eventually gone our separate ways. Capt. Alys returned to Sydney. The engineer tried his luck with gold. And the mate? The mate is dead. He died at Madang of black-water fever.

BEACH COSTUMES FOR DOLLS

DOLLS PATTERN NO. 487

By LAURA WHEELER

In summer time, dolly must be cool and appropriately dressed, so what could be more stylish than beach clothes? They would be even more appealing if they matched those of dolly's mother. Pattern No. 487 offers both pajamas and sunsuit, each with a matching hat, so that dolly can be stylish in either ensemble, and a transfer pattern of the doll itself. Complete directions for making the clothes and the doll are included.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Prolonged heat is depleting to the delicate muscles of the face, softens the under-padding of tissues, produces wrinkles. That is why the beauty whose petals have fallen must do her facial tubbing with water that is barely warm, follow along with a cold rinsing, gentle drying, a five-minute tapping with a nourishing cream or muscle oil. Over-exposure to the rays of the sun is likely to injure the complexion that has started to toboggan.

If a girl yearns to bloom forth with eyelids shadowed, hasn't tried out the scheme before, she'll get along better with a creamy preparation than with one that comes in compact form. Extreme care must be exercised to place eye-shining cosmetics so that they won't look splotchy or smeary. A good substitute, one easy to manage, is a little flitting over with the rouge pad.

Very few women have normal, healthy feet that do not torment them now and then. Only 10 among 100 women are so blessed, claim the chiropodists. Nearly all foot ills are caused by bad walking habits—turning out the toes, walking on the side of the foot—or by shoes that are not properly fitted. When the little dogs smart and twinge, the entire physical system is affected, nerves get curly, dispositions sour. Best to dig into the beauty budget, give the poor little pedals a break. Take them to a foot specialist for examination, find out what's wrong, get the right kind of shoes, be a happy Mrs. Walker ever after.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

This is your Mail Box, fellows.

How would you like to help make it as entertaining and interesting as possible? First of all, of course, we want all the Junior Patrol captains and lieutenants to write letters telling Junior and Uncle Quin Hall news about their patrols—if you write interesting letters, which are full of interesting things your Patrol is doing, especially to help others, the Mail Box will be lots more fun for the thousands of Junior Patrol members who read it.

But we want lots of other things besides letters. We are still looking for pictures and we still want the names of all the Patrol members who want to talk, sing, or play over the radio.

And how about you artists? Can you draw cartoons or pretty drawings? If you can, we want to see what you can do. Draw pictures of your friends on pieces of cardboard and in black ink and send them in.

We want stories and the names of good books and stories, too. Libraries all over town have special sections full of swell books that many members of the Junior Patrol will enjoy reading. After you read a good book, write Junior and tell him all about it.

We were over past Lake Elizabeth the other day, and we have been noticing that hundreds of kids are going swimming every day. That's fine, and we're happy to know that so many Junior Patrol members have a good time in the water. Every boy and girl ought to know how to swim. But we want to remind you again to be careful. Don't swim too long in cold water. Don't swim where there is no lifeguard. One of the best ways we can think of for Junior Patrol members to help others is for them to learn to rescue persons who are sinking in the water.

There are some mighty fine letters in the mail box today. Here's a very good one from Stella Tracy, of 917 Kennedy street, Carnegie. She writes:

"Will you please send the buttons and the membership cards for these eight girls to my house? We have a club and we enjoy the fun.

"I never was so happy in my life. I enjoy the Junior Patrol comic, too. Will you send me a list of good times along with the buttons?"

We're glad to hear that you're happy with your Junior Patrol club, Stella. The buttons and the membership cards will be right along, and we hope to hear from you again when you have your Captain and First Lieutenant elected. Tell us about some of your good times.

You ask us for a list of good times. We figured, Stella, that each Patrol would like to do the things its members like to do the best to have fun, and help others, but here's a few suggestions we have made in the mail box all listed for you. Maybe this list will give you some good ideas of your own:

1—Learn to Swim.

2—Go to the library and get good books to read about interesting things.

3—Learn something new to make or do this summer—learn to quilt, knit, cook, or to play a musical instrument.

4—Learn to recite poetry or plays.

5—Go on hikes and picnics.

6—Take pictures.

7—Learn to play different games, like tennis, volley ball, checkers and chess.

William Hasson, of Renton, Pa., writes as follows:

"I am sending in 16 members to join your patrol. I think the oldest is 16 years old. Our first meeting will be this coming Tuesday. I joined myself a long time ago."

Tuesday is tomorrow, Bill, we hope you have the most successfull meeting ever. You can elect a full slate of officers and start having a good time helping others right away. Let us know the names of your Captain and Lieutenant.

There's no doubt but his women customers will especialy appreciate this.

Business Men Are Better

Got to hand it to one of our national business associations for its last conference in New York.

The convention only lasted one day. There was no banquet. There were no speakers. No outsiders. No singers.

It took place in June. The weather was hotter than a back log.

The boys numbered 250. No guests. Nobody got a loving cup. They just took off their coats and got to business. After threshing out things as best they could they adjourned and scattered to 48 states, some of which are still dry.

Now, let's look and pipe how this sensible business affair compares with the same kind of convention held around 1928 or earlier:

The boys would get to town and sober up. The first night they would go to the Follies, all the night clubs, and sober up again. This was at a time when there was prohibition. Or so they said. But why rattle old speakeasy keys?

The convention itself would take place in a lot of hotel rooms with plenty of brandy and soda. The boys would tell stories, slap each other on the backs and boast how they were knocking Wall street for a double row of false teeth.

They'd scramm around New York all week. On Saturday night they would have the banquet. About 1,500 diners would be there. Looking back at the records, we find there were more vice presidents than business men. The head man would make a speech that ripped the statistics off the roof. Everybody would get slogged to the ears. Some great toastmaster would get a thousand dollars for banging a gavel and vocalizing old gags that you could have bought 80 years ago for a dime a hundred. Then a famous opera singer would bellow a moose call for another thousand.

The front line of the Scandals, the Follies or the Vanities would step out on the mantelpiece and undulate their hips across the stage while the business men waved their hats three times around their heads and hollered, "Hooray for anything."

All that entertainment cost around $20,000. It didn't mean anything except that some paper-skulled patriots were making more money than they deserved.

Now, we're back to normal again. Business men are watching the store once more and allowing the college boys to take care of Broadway after dark.

Foreign Trade Illusions

Propaganda of Internationalists, If Followed, Would Be Costly to the United States.

In spite of the growing recognition, under President Roosevelt, of the importance of developing the United States as a self contained nation, the paid propaganda for an all-considered economic internationalism continues unabated.

Through a curious confusion of thinking, an attempt is made to link agitation for free trade with the ideals of international peace.

In seeking to pulmotor public interest in the dying cause of economic internationalism, Raymond Leslie Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association, attempts to knock down a straw man.

He violently attacks the economic isolationist, though no responsible group has been advocating complete isolation.

At most, it is suggested that the American people charge their emphasis and concentrate on policies to promote domestic trade, which accounts for 94 per cent of the national income, rather than exports, which in the peak years of 1927-29 constituted only 6 per cent.

Those who suggest this clearer thinking advocate no cessation of either exports or imports, though they know that fundamental forces have been altering established trade channels.

They do insist, however, that until outside competing nations raise their living and wage standards to the American level, American producers should be protected by an adequate tariff against the differential.

They likewise recognize that the "New Deal" agricultural relief and industrial recovery acts are price-raising in their nature, and that they presuppose, as Congress indicated, that American producers, conforming to improved social standards, will be protected against foreign interests, who still employ coolie or peasant labor.

Hitting a man of straw, Mr. Buell asserts:

"It is of course theoretically possible for the United States to become a hermit nation and to stop all export and import trade. But to become isolated in this fashion means a definite lowering of the standard of living. It means abandoning the material basis of our civilization and returning to a bare subsistence level."

Stuff and nonsense!

Our big job, as President Roosevelt has fortunately recognized, is to rehabilitate domestic trade, which, though up nearly 50 per cent from the March low, is still only 65.6 per cent of the 1928-30 average, according to Dun & Bradstreet's Index of General Business Activity.

As Dean W. B. Donham, of Harvard University, has pointed out:

"We have lost less than 4 per cent of our volume in agricultural, mineral and manufactured production through the collapse of foreign trade, but we have lost from 45 per cent to 55 per cent of volume of manufactured goods right in the home markets. Shall we seek to restore the 4 per cent in the international field . . . or shall we try to regain a far larger volume at home? We cannot do both."

The pernicious internationalist propaganda, if followed, would be more costly to the United States than to other countries, for it would challenge our superior economic position.

With 6 per cent of the world's population, the United States possesses one-third of the world's wealth, and receives between 40 per cent and 50 per cent of the world's annual income.

If, in accordance with Mr. Buell's preachments equalizing steps were taken, the progress of the United States would be retarded for at least a generation, with infinitesimal per capita benefits to the 94 per cent of the world's population outside our borders.

Though Secretary Hull seems to have accepted such internationalist propaganda hook, line and sinker, it is fortunate that Mr. Hull's chief understands that the more important procedure is to adopt policies which will accelerate recovery in the United States.

Happy Days Again

Rise in Pittsburgh Business Quickens Pace; Seasonal Precedents Are Ignored.

Continued expansion in Pittsburgh business activity is eliminating all doubts about the genuineness of the recovery. The increase in industrial production is made particularly impressive by the fact that improvement in business during the summer months is unusual. Declines ordinarily occur at this time of the year.

The change has taken place so rapidly that few of us realize just how extensive the recovery has been. The story is told in an impressive manner by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

This organization compiles a monthly index of business activity for the Pittsburgh district. The index takes into consideration the principal elements in the district's business life, including both industrial production and trade activity.

The index for June stood at 64.9. This represented a gain of 24.9 per cent over the level prevailing in May. It was 52.7 per cent in excess of the March level when closed banks brought business to the lowest state of the depression. It was 40.2 per cent over the level of June, 1932.

Steel, which is of particular importance to Pittsburgh, showed a gain of 56.5 per cent over May. It was 161.5 per cent over the level prevailing in March. The gain over the corresponding period of last year was 100.4 per cent.

While the recovery has not yet reached a point at which it can eliminate all the hardships of unemployment, it permits the hope that real prosperity is not far away. The improvement is beginning to be reflected in a decline in the number of families requiring unemployment relief.

Awake, Pittsburgh!

Wherein the Citizenry Is Called Upon to Do Something Drastic About the Weather.

So far as we know, a smashing, two-fisted editorial has never been written about the weather. When politicians ramble off the reservation they are immediately warned by the newspapers to come home and all is not forgiven. When crime rolls in waves, indignation swells and there is a great to-do.

This is all very well and good but what about the weather? The heat bothers more Pittsburghers than politicians and criminals do, but does anybody rise up in wrath and assail Mr. Brotzman, the weatherman?

In a word, the answer is no. In two words the answer is no, sir.

The Sun-Telegraph believes that something should be done about this. Let Mr. Park, the district attorney, let Mr. Reed, the special prosecutor of election frauds, let the Citizens Committee, let the Rev. Dr. Snodgrass do their duty by the public the next time Mr. Brotzman tries to get away with anything.

Better Deal With Both Hands

By Nelson Harding

You cannot very well deal cards
While listening on the phone;
It's wise at such a time to let
Those distance calls alone.

To accurately deal that pack
Requires both your hands;
Why use one for long, futile talks
With selfish foreign lands?

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love's Time-Limit

It won't be long now, according to the psychiatrists, before love and marriage will cease to be a gamble or an experiment and will become an exact science.

Before you sign a life-contract on the dotted line, you will be able to tell, with the aid of a psychoanalyst, just how long your love will last and what your parking time will be in a man's affections. That's what they SAY.

But, it all depends on what you MEAN by "love". Perhaps a good psychoanalyst can measure a man's capacity for infatuation or passion and a woman's ability to kid herself with illusions and romance. Maybe he can tell you all about your libido, and whether your temperaments and tastes will match as perfectly by broad daylight as they do by soft-shaded electric bulbs or the deceptive light of the summer moon.

Maybe it's possible to know in advance, just how much of her coddling the man will be able to endure. And just how much of his grouching the woman will put up with before her patience begins to snap.

Perhaps they can tell, by the man's past performances, just how quickly his love will slow down to a walk; and by the quality and quantity of the girl's old love affairs, just how many weeks, months or years her current emotion will stand the wear and tear.

But human nature changes. Just because the sun is shining today is no proof that it won't be raining tomorrow. And just because a man admires you today, is no sure sign that he will admire you just as enthusiastically next week.

Vanity, infatuation, romance and dalliance are merely the cut-flowers of love—and they always fade, sooner or later. But love—REAL LOVE—is something else, again. And it has no time-limit, except life.

* * *

LOVE is the imperishable, unfading, beautiful, ever-new, deathless thing, away down underneath all the vanity, all the physical attraction, all the illusions and all the selfish emotions.

* * *

And, when all the romance and passion and novelty have worn off. Love is that understanding, that tenderness, that spark, that SOMETHING between you, which has remained fresh and alive and unchanged!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 10.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay late, a soggy rain falling, and came to wondering if modern children knew the fun of looking for wiggle tails in the rain barrel. So up and talking to Will Rogers' Betty on the phone and reading a side-splitting retort to a note to Gilbert White.

Working until the sun popped out and through the town coming upon Clara Walsh and John Charles Thomas and he told me as hilarious a tale as ever I heard. So to Anne and Will Hamilton's and chatted with Emily Vanderbilt, Myra Kingsley, Esmond O'Brien, Freddie Prince and the Ted Woodyards.

In the evening to dinner at the venerable Myers Hotel along the water front and to a theater, talking to the handsome playwriting Kenyon Nicholson, here from California. Afterward to see the new pharmacy Moe Ducore opened on Seventh avenue and many Broadway tycoons there.

A juvenile despairist called today discouraged over a rejected manuscript that merely bore a penciled "N. G." I tried to explain that likely the initials were, by coincidence, of a reader who neglected to insert the customary rejection slip. If this did not fit as an explanation certainly the editorial turndown might have been softened. The Atlantic Monthly cushioned rejections of impossible mss. with: "The editor begs to be excused from the ungracious task of criticism."

And smokes, cigars, cigarets and pipe constantly while turning it out.

Brooklyn is the only metropolitan area left for mischievous youths who indulge the small-town deviltry known as "snapping shades." Many old homes in Brooklyn have basement dining rooms. While the family is enjoying the evening meal the snapper, through the opened window, gives the lowered shade a yank and up it flies with a whirr that scares the daylights out of everybody.

The champ shade snapper of our ward was Bill Geppert. He was graduated from tic-tacking where he got the hang of the best shades. We set out together to become newspapermen and did after our fashion. Only he owns a big newspaper and I'm one of his hired hands. When last we met we noticed each teetered as we stood on a corner talking. Sighed Bill: "The old rocking chair finally got us!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She's one of those people—exasperating creatures!—who go to sleep on a telephone line. You know 'em.

One minute you're chatting as briskly as possible, feeling as near and sure as though you were together in one room. The next moment that other Voice is gone. You find yourself talking into silence. You repeat your words. No answer. You wonder—has Central cut you off? Again you speak, presently you're shouting.

Then the Voice comes wandering back, exactly as though nothing had happened. What's the matter? Where has she been?

"Why, I've been here—right here all the time, listening."

But she hasn't been listening. Her body has been sitting by the 'phone, her ear has been laid against the receiver. But she, herself, has been dawdling and dreaming a million miles away.

Those human Fade-Outs—you find them everywhere. Working beside you in the office. Snoring beside you on the next pillow. And everywhere you find them they're beefing.

Beefing because they never get the breaks—

Because no one listens to them—

Because no one takes them seriously—

Because life passes them by.

And life does!

But why?

Life passes them by because they go to sleep on the line.

Human history is a telephone line, with a new message coming through every second.

Never have those messages come so fast. Never has the story altered so swiftly from year to year, from day to day.

Our world changes more in six months than it did in 60 years of our grandfathers' time. New conditions; new problems; new standards; new needs.

AND ONLY THE MEN AND THE WOMEN WHO HAVE KEPT CURRENT CAN TACKLE THOSE PROBLEMS; MEET THOSE NEEDS.

That doesn't mean that we must have university educations or political careers; mingle with great crowds; perform sensational feats.

IT SIMPLY MEANS THAT WE MUST STAY ON THE LINE.

Go on with our jobs, however small, but keep our eyes and ears and hearts open—wide open, no matter how much it hurts.

And it does hurt—to keep current. It raises Cain with our laziness and cowardice. We can't indulge in the dope of dreams. We can't dawdle along old sentimental trails, or waste our time in self-pity or self-praise. We've got to keep listening in, and adjusting ourselves as we listen. Junking our old prejudices. Blasting open our ignorance. Letting life put her messages across.

No use dropping the receiver and thinking you can pick it up again. Time was when Life waited for men to straggle along. Now there are too many men and they've started too many things. There's no time to wait for stragglers. No time to listen to whiners.

IF YOU WON'T STAY ON THE LINE—THAT'S YOUR BAD LUCK!

For life won't use, can't use, those who won't stay on the line.

Doesn't matter who you are—rich or poor, weak or powerful—unless you're willing to stay on the line.

Unless you're willing to learn what it's all about—

Unless you're ready to keep moving with the march of events.

YOU'RE DONE FOR!

The Human Side of the News

Great Sacrifice Made by Pearl King to Save Industry—Discovery and Beauty of Lake Louise.

By EDWIN C. HILL

PATRIOTISM consists of stern deeds of sacrifice, not flowery words of flub-dub. Only a real patriot would shovel into a blazing furnace at least $5,000,000 worth of his own perfectly salable property to save an imperilled industry of his country. When the leaders of the cultured pearl industry of Japan went to Kokichi Mikimoto and told him that his enormous store of cultured pearls was ruining the price of the product, the short, chunky, bow-legged, wrinkled-faced old shogun of the cultured pearl trade hesitated not one moment.

"Come with me, my friends," hissed Kokichi Mikimoto in his politest tones. They went with him to the furnace room of his pearl emporium. One by one he summoned his clerks as he waited by the open door of the furnace. The clerks appeared in a long procession, bringing cultured pearls by the basketful, and with his own hands Mr. Mikimoto shoveled into the fiery furnace 710,000 of his best pearls, worth anywhere from $5 to $500 apiece.

At least $5,000,000 worth of the sheening, shimmering, lovely things went into the fire and were gray ashes in half a breath. And immediately the market price of cultured pearls all over the world went up 30 per cent, while happy Japan rang with banzais for the Honorable Kokichi Mikimoto.

Learned Nature's Way Of Making Pearls

IF OUR well-known Farm Board had done something like that with its wheat and corn, there might be a few banzais in this country for that luckless institution.

Mr. Mikimoto, a gnomelike little man of 75, whose favorite costume is a gorgeous Japanese kimono and an American derby hat, is the Pearl King of the world. Many years ago he discovered Nature's secret for making real pearls in the heart of oysters. A pearl forms in an oyster whenever a tiny grain of sand, or some other infinitesimal bit of grit, gets under the shell and firmly imbedded in the soft flesh. Over that irritating bit of grit the oyster builds, layer by layer, a substance called nacre. Eventually these hundreds of thousands of layers become the finished, lustrous pearl.

Mr. Mikimoto acquired an oyster bed, fished up some specimen oysters and delicately, with his own hand, inserted the bit of grit, without injuring, one must suppose, either the constitution or the feelings of the oyster. Replacing his specimens upon the seabed he sat back and awaited, with Oriental patience, the result. And in the course of time, when once more he fished up his oysters, there were the pearls, so perfect, indeed, that the French courts, in a celebrated decision, said this about them:

"Japanese cultured pearls, produced by scientific stimulation of the oyster, are in no sense false or imitation pearls. They can be sold as real pearls without any indication of their origin."

Remember that when you are buying pearls in Paris. Only a little while ago a string of Mikimoto cultured pearls was priced in New York at $17,500.

Mr. Mikimoto owns 41,000 acres of oyster beds and the oyster beds and the oysters, working for him every minute of the year, produce a million dollars worth of the beauties from January to January.

Lake Where Great Spirit Spoke

IT WAS just 50 years ago that a fine character of the Northwest made his way through the forests of Alberta, Canada, and came upon one of the most beautiful pictures ever painted by the Almighty—Lake Louise. The Indians had hinted to my good friend, Tom Wilson, alive and vigorous today at the age of 73, that there lay, buried deep in the mountains, the lake where the Great Spirit spoke to the Red Man in the thunder of the avalanche and in the rolling crescendo of His heavenly artillery—the place where God made His thunder and painted His masterpieces.

So Tom Wilson, with the soul of a poet and the eye of a painter, struggled behind his Indian guides for many miles, through untraveled mountain canyons thick with windfall timber, over boulder-strewn brooks and ancient Indian trails, until he burst through the brush and stood speechless at the magnificent beauty of the spectacle that lay before him.

Described Scene of Matchless Beauty

"AS GOD is my Judge," said Tom Wilson, telling the story of his discovery of Lake Louise to me and later to Bob Davis, "I never, in all my exploration of these five chains of mountains through Western Canada, saw such a matchless scene. The surface of the lake was as still as a mirror. On the right and left forests that had never known the ax marched down to the blue-green water. A mile and a half away the background was white, opal and brown, where a great glacier merged with the shining water. The sun, at high noon, poured its clear light into the pool which reflected the lovely landscape.

"I tell you, sir, no man has ever been able to describe that picture, painted for the Indians by the Great Spirit. I felt puny in body, but there was glory in my soul. I was then 23 and believed in God. I am now 73 and know there is a God."

Tom Wilson named his discovery "Emerald Lake," but the Canadian Government changed the name to "Lake Louise" as a compliment to a daughter of Queen Victoria. And as Tom Wilson sits today in his home in Banff, smoking his pipe and peering through his amber-tinted spectacles, and looks back over a fine, clean life, he can take satisfaction in having been the messenger of Providence in giving to the world an ineffably beautiful, enduring picture.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Many women make guests uncomfortable in their efforts to be entertaining.

Then they are too effusive, so much so that there is an evident lack of sincerity.

The welcoming smile of certain hostesses is so artificial that it chills instead of warming those upon whom it is lavished.

Flitting around from one group to another constantly is tiresome.

It is so much more delightful to visit the calm hostess, easy and free from extravagant enthusiasm in efforts to entertain.

The well poised hostess puts her guests at ease.

She presents an example of calm, encouraging hospitality, drawing out the best from her guests and anticipating their wishes without seemingly to be too watchful.

You have been entertained in homes where favorable impressions of a sincere and lovely hostess cling for a long time after a visit.

But oh, the flutterbudget kind.

Always too solicitous, always anxious over the success of her party.

Such women seek popularity but frustrate their own wishes by overdoing the matter.
